

SOCIETY AND WOMAN'S PAGE

Double Exhibit at Fine Art Gallery

One hundred cover designs are being shown in the galleries of the public library by the Omaha Society of Fine Arts. These designs were chosen from 600 entered in the contest of the house beautiful. Substantial prizes were offered so that artists of ability and prominence were attracted to it. Most of the designs are very colorful. Various in their display of technique and originality they form a fascinating study. The exhibition will be on view until next Monday.

At the same time the society is showing for the first time a part of the collection of French railroad posters which were presented last year by Burgess-Nash Co. They, too, are full of color. They comprise designs of the great mountain regions of France, of harbors, chateaux, ruins of great buildings, landscapes, etc. These posters were not made for foreign propaganda but for the railway stations in France. They are said to be the most successful solution of the problem of outdoor advertising yet found.

Thursday Speaker

Whiting Williams

What's on the worker's mind is the question Whiting Williams will answer when he speaks at the Orpheum theater Thursday, June 5, at 8 p. m. under auspices of the League of Women Voters. "Politics and Potatoes" is his subject.

Mr. Williams left his position as vice president of a steel corporation, then overalls and became a journeyman laborer in the mines and factories of this and other countries, just to find out the things that were uppermost in the mind and life of the worker. He figured there was but one way to find out and that was to become a laboring man, do his work, live his life, eat his food, endure his hunger and fatigue, associate with his friends and help to fight his enemies.

Your Problems

Martha Allen
The Eternal Question.

Dear Miss Allen: I would appreciate your advice in regard to bobbed hair. How the bob being worn most plain or curled or curled and marcelled? And I'd like to know the latest style for bobbing the hair? How long are skirts being worn in Omaha now? INQUIRITIVE.

The shingle bob, uncurled, is the latest style for bobbing. The ends turned under a little, and a wave on top, are also good if it is curled at all. The important thing is that the coiffure follow the contour of the head. In other words, the bob is short in back and rather plain. Skirts are from 8 to 10 inches from the floor, some shorter, the tendency being to shortness for summer clothes. One's height and age, of course, make some difference as a matter of taste.

Dear Miss Allen: Recently, when on a visit to my sweetheart, for whom I have cared during two full years, I made the suggestion that, as I was a little behind in regard to money matters, we stop going to amusements until the slate was clear. She agreed, but when I asked if it would be all right to call two or three evenings a week and either go for a walk or stay quietly at home and chat, she declined. She will not let me come even once a week. Do you think this is a test, as she has never had cause to worry where I went when not with her? Do you think it is fair to me, as it leaves me alone? ALFRED.

You would do well to look at the "kimmie sister" just as she is—and then look away. The "kimmie girl" would make a fish seem warm-blooded by way of contrast, and she makes other women find their temperatures going to fever heat. The woman who won't stand by a man when he comes upon hard times isn't really a woman at all. The girl who can't make up her mind to do without a few gasolines and diversions and give her sweetheart encouragement and consequent courage during his dark days isn't the sort of person for him to keep anywhere in his consciousness. When a girl won't stand by a man during hard times, how can he for one minute suppose that it would be a safe thing to marry her?

June Justifies Itself as Bridal Month at Wedding of Miss Emily Burke and Mr. Anderson Last Night

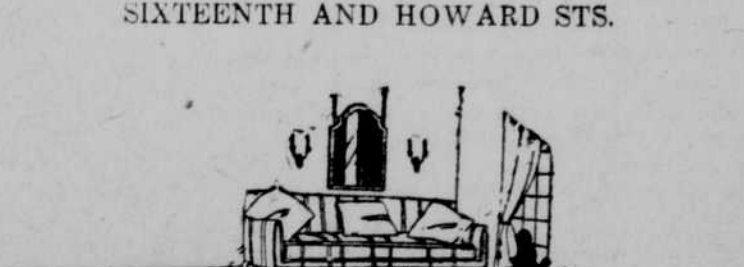

All Saints Church Altar a Bower of Summer Greenery—Reception Guests Wander in Terraced Garden 'Neath Weeping Willow Trees.

June justified itself as a bridal month last evening when Miss Emily Trowbridge Burke was wed to Grenville Tremaine Anderson of New York. At All Saints church, where the ceremony was solemnized, the altar was a bower of summer greenery, wandered beneath weeping willows and through a terraced garden which seemingly had blossomed for the event. The bride wore a gown of heavy white with georgette, with all-over beading in crystal and silver, fashioned with a round neck, and very tiny sleeves. The slender lines of the dress were emphasized by the pattern of the beading which formed a giraffe and was elaborately worked out in a panel down the center of the skirt. Her veil, which Mrs. Richard Mallory, matron of honor, had worn at her own wedding when Mrs. Anderson was a bridesmaid, fell from a coronet of rose point, held with orange blossoms, and was caught with orange blossoms to the satin train in which a center panel of white georgette was outlined. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white sweet peas.

The bride preceded by her bridesmaids, the Misses Katherine Schwab of New York, Adaline Kent of Kentfield, Cal.; Winifred Smith, Mary Jorsman, Ernie Reed and Ruth McCoy, who were gowned alike in frocks of apple green chiffon, fashioned over pale gold satin, with cape backs, and apron overskirts, heavily shirred and edged with rickings of box pleated green and gold taffeta. They wore wide leghorn hats, with green and gold flowers falling over the right brim. Mrs. Mallory, who served the bride as matron of honor, wore blue chiffon over silver green satin, made with a lace cape and with lace insets in the apron. Her satin hat was in matching nuances.

All the bride's attendants carried round bouquets of Columbia roses and pink sweet peas and wore metal slippers with skillfully wrought brilliant buckles. These ornaments were Mrs. Anderson's gift to her bridesmaids, presented at the rehearsal dinner Monday evening at the Country club. Mrs. William B. Anderson of New York City, mother of the bridegroom, who, with her daughter, Sally, was a guest of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Gifford during the pre-nuptial festivities, was gowned in French blue beaded satin, she received with Mrs. Burke, who was charming in white and gold, made with a short blue velvet slide train caught with gold beads. Assisting at the reception were Mesdames Milton Barlow, Charles O'Futt, Victor B. Caldwell, Charles Johannes, Hallock Rose, George Cassells Smith and Harold Gifford. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson have gone west for three months. Their first destination will be Carmel-by-the-sea in California. After visiting other points in the state, they will go to Zion National park in Utah. Returning east en route to their home in Flushing, Long Island, they will stop in Omaha for a visit late in August. Mrs. Seabury Entertains. Mrs. George Seabury will give a luncheon at the Field club on Wednesday of next week for 24 guests.
