Traveler to Omaha on Train Carrying Major Martin to Washington

Mrs. Gladys Kiplinger, formerly of Omaha, who is here from Seattle for several months, visiting at present with Mrs. Clarke G. Powell, made the journey from the Pacific coast, leaving May 27 on the train which carried Maj. Frederick L. Martin, flyer, who crashed into Alaska mountains on his attempted journey around the world.

Major Martin was on his way to Washington, D. C. With him was young Sergt. Alva Harvey, en route to Illinois, following the Alaskan disaster. Mrs. Martin said goodby to her husband at Seattle. She was composed though obviously regretful of the parting, Mrs. Kiplinger stated. The young son was with her.

Reporters filled the eastward bound train, and many unofficial interviews were on the job. Major Martin on one occasion exhibited the flag which had been given him by the Adventurers' club of Chicago, to carry on his trip. This club exists in London, Chicago and Los Angeles. The flag, a gold banner, given Major Martin, had been carried around the world previously by Dr. Gowan, author of "The Sea Tracks of the Speed Jocks." Dr. Gowan made the trip in a yacht going on time schedule, and arriving in the home port of New York one hour and 15 minutes late.

The Adventurers' club claims that it was this lucky flag which saved the major's life. It is true, Mrs. Kiplinger said, that in the crash in Alaska, the stick holding the banner was badly broken.

Mrs. Kiplinger was impressed with the food upon which Major Martin and his companion subsisted for 11 days. It was made of raisins, peanuts, rice, barley and dates and other ingredients, and was so rich in food value that two teaspoonsful in a quart of water constituted a large meal. Major Martin said they lived on this for so many days that they did not enjoy real food when they could have it. He seemed broken hearted over his failure to complete the journey, according to the Omaha traveler, though he looked perfectly well. He was quite tanned and looked about 45 years old.

Miss Marjorie Menold Wed

At 11 Tuesday morning Marjorie Menold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Menold, was joined in marriage to John Stocker, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Stocker of Nebraska City, by the Rev. James Wagner of the First Methodist church.

The bride was her loveliest in a gown of white chiffon, fashioned with a long bodice, sleeveless and with a round neckline, the skirt was white with two full circular tiers across the front.

Wide bands of pearl embroidery formed a girdle, and two of these strands, hanging from the shoulders fell to the hem of the gown in the back. She carried pink roses and lilies of the valley and wore white satin slippers with rhinestone buckles. The pink and white effect in the bride's bouquet was carried out in the decorations of the home of the bride's parents where the ceremony took place. An improvised altar in the sunroom was banked in pink and white peonies and roses, and later at the wedding breakfast a mound of roses decorated the bridal table.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Stocker of Nebraska City, Mrs. W. H. Menold of Wall Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Menold of Council Bluffs attended the ceremony.

At noon the bride and groom left by motor for Christmas Lake, Minn. The bride's going away costume was in shades of Lavin green, with a small felt toque, and a straight-line coat trimmed in natural color squirrel.

Mr. and Mrs. Stocker, Jr., will be at home in Nebraska City after July 1.

Rose-McEvoy.

Cards have been issued for the marriage of Miss Mary Eileen McEvoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. McEvoy, to James L. Rose the morning of Tuesday, June 24, at St. Agnes church. A reception will be given at 8 o'clock that evening at the home of the bride's parents, 4738 South Eighteenth street.

Your Problems

By Martha Allen

Out to Win.
My dear Martha Allen: Having read your wonderful advice to others, I shall also come to you. There is a certain young man around here who is well respected. He calls on me most every Sunday afternoon.

Now, there is another girl, also in this neighborhood, who is "blum dimpy" over him. She even goes so far as to ask him for dates. That's the only way she would ever get a date. She believes in leap year. I guess his folks object to his acceptance of her dates and, as he says, he can't refuse her. When in Sunday school or otherwise he never speaks to her, but she tags him around, and just as soon as he begins to speak to me she walks our way and stops. Then he quite speaking and walks away. I really don't know what to think about it, although I honestly believe she is foolish, as she is almost four years older than he is.

Now, Miss Allen, do you really think he cares for me more than her? My closest friends tell me he thinks more of me, as he always speaks a good word for me every one. They may just be trying to stuff me, so I don't take to heart everything I hear. I think he is a mighty nice boy, and I can't help admiring him for all that. How can I get this young man to thinking more of me without giving him, or anyone else, the impression that I am "sunning after" him? He is quite a bit taller than I, although we are just as old. If your advice proves successful, I will let you know. Please answer in your next issue of The Omaha Bee.

Thanking you in advance, I remain yours
"DICKIE."

The way for you to succeed is to be a little finer girl than the other one. He seems to resent her conduct, doesn't he? Well, then, take warning, and don't act the same way. Don't be rude to the other girl, however. Be polite to her. The young man will respect that quality in you, whether he likes the other girl or not. We all respect self-control and honor in others.

Friendly Reader: It isn't true that boys do not like decent girls. There are many fine young men who know and they prefer nice girls. A girl sometimes likes to blame her unpopularity on the fact that she is good, when, instead, it may mean she is simply dull or uninteresting. I think even more than looks, boys like friendly companionship in a girl. I know nothing which creates this more quickly than an interest in athletic sports.

Why not invite the boy to call if you are interested in him? This is a girl's privilege, and can be done in a way that will not be considered forward.

Tea for Mrs. Martin

Mrs. W. S. Weston and her daughter, Mrs. Virgil Haggart, entertained at tea this afternoon for Mrs. Howard V. Martin of Sioux City, Ia. Mrs. Weston's daughter, who is spending the week here following her return from a winter abroad.

The rooms were decorated with pink and white peonies, and a basket of these blooms stood on the tea table, where Miss Carolyn Stringer, and Mrs. Herbert Small's poured. Others assisting the hostesses were Mesdames C. L. Johnson, Jr., William D. McHugh, Jr., Misses Emily Keller, Katherine Denny and Ruth McCoy.

Miss Helen Porter to Be Wed Wednesday of Next Week.

Miss Helen Porter, daughter of Mrs. Mary Beck Porter has set the date for her wedding to Charles B. Morearty, for Wednesday, June 18. The ceremony will be performed at 9 that morning in St. Cecilia church by Father Smiskol, and will be a very quiet one to which members of the two families and a few intimate friends will be invited.

The bride will be attended by her sister, Katherine Porter, and the groom by his brother, Milton Morearty. Miss Marguerite Fallon will sing, and the groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward Morearty, will play the organ processional and during mass. A wedding breakfast will follow at the home of the bride's mother in the St. Regis.

The young couple will spend their honeymoon in California and will live in the St. Regis.

Due to illness in the bride's family, Miss Porter and Mr. Morearty are not accepting pre-nuptial invitations.

Birth Announcements.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. VanDerCreek announce the birth of a son, Jack, June 6, at Jennie Edmondson hospital. Mrs. VanDerCreek was formerly Miss Rita Bradshaw of Council Bluffs.

Trinity Chapter Meeting.

For Graduation Class.

The 50 graduates of Miller Park school were entertained by Billy Sallander at his home Monday evening. Miss Sallinger and Miss Pollock, teachers, were also guests at the affair.

Indian Omelet.

Prepare a four egg omelet, substituting four tablespoons of shutney to the beaten egg yolks in place of the milk or water called for in the recipe. Then fold in the stiffly whipped egg whites and turn into a heated omelet pan, containing two tablespoons of hot bacon fat. Cook over a very moderate heat until risen and the edges begin to brown delicately; then spread thickly with a layer of steamed rice, moistened slightly with a rich curry sauce, and mixed with a tablespoon each of minced sauted onion and green pepper and a tiny pinch of powdered sweet herbs. Turn the omelet over into a neat half circle and serve imported on a hot platter. Pour over half a cup of the curry sauce.

Coffee, Cocoa and Butter in Creamy Filling for Cake

1/2 cup unsalted butter,
1 1/2 cup confectioner's sugar,
2 tablespoons cold, very strong coffee,
2 teaspoons dry cocoa.

Mix the cocoa and sugar, sifting them. Add the coffee and stir until smooth. Cream the butter and pour in the sugar mixture, working it in until well blended, flavor with vanilla if desired. Spread between layers of cake. It may be used for the top also if the creamy type of frosting is liked. Mrs. R. S. M.

French Custard.

Make a rich, plain, boiled custard of the yolks of six eggs and leave the whites to use in the following way: Beat them very stiff, adding four dessert spoonsful of sugar gradually with a teaspoonful of vanilla or almond flavoring. Drop the mixture by tablespoonful onto a very lightly greased baking dish and cook it in a very slow oven until it is a delicate brown. Meantime, cool the custard.

Ladies of Elks Card Party.
