Counsel to Move to Quash Indictments, Alleging Confession Read While Youths Under Duress.

Chicago, June 12.—The first play by defense counsel for delay in the trial of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, indicted for charges of having slain Robert Frank, will be made July 25. It was learned today when Clarence Darrow, chief of counsel, will move to quash all indictments on the ground that the confession of the boys was read to the grand jury while the boys were under duress.

No success is anticipated for the motion. It will be a strategic move to gain time while "mob hysteria" subsides, it was said.

A corps of alienists and psychiatrists under direction of Dr. James Whitney Hall started today to lead a defense of "moral insanity" for Loeb and Leopold.

The youths have had no "emotional outlet" since they left the cradle and the natural trend of their over-educated and over-privileged lives from babyhood has been toward some brutal slaying of such a kidnaping and slaying of the Frank boys, the defense will maintain.

Defense counsel secured permission through the sheriff for the examination of the youths in their cells by alienists developing what will be an elaborate document in criminal-psychological study.

Lefts Urge Painleve to Withdraw

Chamber and Senate Heads Asked to Quit Presidential Race in Favor of Third Man.

Republican Votes Sought

Paris, June 12.—Edouard Herriot, leader of the radical party and potential premier, and Aristide Briand, another of the leaders of the left coalition, today asked Paul Painleve, president of the chamber of deputies, to withdraw as a candidate for the presidency of the republic.

The action was taken after Gaston Doumergue, president of the senate, and the other possible candidates for the Elysee palace of the left parties had told a committee sent to him by leaders of the coalition that he would not withdraw from the race, but would pledge himself in favor of the leading republican candidate in the event of the presence of a reactionary candidate.

Before the caucus of the parties of the left convened and polled 206 votes for M. Painleve and 149 for M. Doumergue in a ballot to select the man they would support before the national assembly tomorrow, M. Doumergue announced he was not a candidate before the caucus, but that he would stand for the office at Versailles tomorrow.

After the caucus, leaders of the left coalition met and sent a committee to M. Doumergue asking him to withdraw. He added that such a step was not necessary, since he had not been a candidate before the caucus and added that in the event of his being put in a majority before the national assembly and if there were present a candidate of the opposition party, he would be in favor of the leading republican candidate.

The request for M. Painleve's withdrawal was brought to him by a committee who spoke for M. M. Herriot and Briand. He was asked to retire in order to permit the coalition of the left to put forward a third candidate, outside of either M. Doumergue or M. Painleve, who would be able to rally to him all of the republican votes, the committee said.

"Hell and Maria" Is Selected at Night Session of Delegates

Ex-Illinois Governor Refuses Second Time to Enter Race for Vice Presidency After Overwhelming Vote in His Favor—Delegates Reassemble After Recess to Make New Selection.

Coolidge Nomination, Earlier, Almost Unanimous

Convention Hall, Cleveland, O., June 12.—Charles G. Dawes of Illinois, the "hell and Maria general," was nominated for the vice presidency by the republican national convention tonight after it once had nominated Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, and he had refused to accept the place.

Convention Hall, Cleveland, June 12.—Faced by a situation unparalleled in party history, the republican national convention after having nominated Frank O. Lowden for vice president, reassembled tonight to pick out some one else because Mr. Lowden would not accept.

Never before had a convention gotten into such a snarl. After the Coolidge leaders were all set for the nomination of Theodore E. Burton, congressman and former senator from Ohio, the Lowden delegates took the bit in their teeth and in one of the most spectacular proceedings ever witnessed in a national convention ran away with the nomination for Lowden despite all efforts, including his own, to stop them.

Party managers under the new regime waited calmly on the platform for the votes to turn to Burton as they expected, saw the Lowden strength suddenly leap and grow and carry the convention off its feet.

Lowden Tide Grows.

Like a snowball rolling down hill the Lowden movement began to double itself every time it turned over and before any human being could stop it, delegations were changing their votes and hurling votes for Lowden at the chair in such an avalanche that the clerks and convention officials lost all track of the count.

Then Senator Willis of Ohio moved to make it unanimous and the delegation from Wisconsin cast the only dissenting vote.

Then, a letter, written by Mr. Lowden and addressed to the convention to be read in the event that it persisted in nominating him, was read from the platform. Still refusing to recognize his declination, Senator Willis moved to lay it on the table and adjourn.

"This thing has been done, it can't be undone," he exclaimed. But there was opposition to that procedure and while the leaders were wrangling and wondering where to turn, Associated Press dispatches were received in the convention hall direct from Oregon, Ill. Mr. Lowden's home, reiterating his refusal to accept the nomination.

Chairman Mondell informed the convention that the "latest and most authentic information" on the subject was contained in The Associated Press dispatches which he read to the convention.

Apparently convinced then that it was no use, the Lowden people abandoned hope that the former governor would accept and each little group of leaders turned helplessly to the other wondering what to do next. In the meantime the convention hall was in the greatest disorder.

Charles E. Warren of Detroit, chairman of the resolutions committee and one of the party veterans, stepped into the breach and succeeded in making himself heard from the speaker's platform.

"If the convention will return to proper procedure," he shouted, "I want to propose something orderly."

Moves Recess. They got the attention of the delegates and Mr. Warren moved a recess until 9, so Chairman Mondell could communicate directly with Mr. Lowden and get a formal declination for presentation to the convention.

Meantime Mr. Lowden, at his home in Oregon, gave to The Associated Press for delivery to Chairman Mondell, his formal reply to a telegram from the latter. This was delivered to Chairman Mondell in The Associated Press offices in convention hall and as that was being done the same message arrived over the commercial telegraph lines addressed to Mr. Mondell by Mr. Lowden.

It was agreed on all sides that the only thing for the convention to do was to go to it again and begin balloting for vice president all over.

Oregon, Ill., June 12.—Former Governor Frank O. Lowden tonight again declined to accept the nomination as vice presidential candidate on the republican ticket after receipt of a telegram from Chairman Mondell urging him to accept the almost unanimous action of the delegates.

Mr. Mondell's telegram was first communicated to Mr. Lowden over the telephone by The Associated Press and he quickly and firmly dictated the following answer to The Associated Press and asked The Associated Press to deliver it to Chairman Mondell:

"Telegram just received. I am deeply grateful for the action of the convention. However, I have said a thousand times, I think, that I would decline if nominated and I must keep my word. To yield now would mean the loss of my self respect. I shall do what I can for republican success as a private citizen but I cannot accept a place on the ticket."

Mr. Lowden appeared to be keenly interested in what the convention was doing, but said he was at a loss to understand why the convention, in face of his many statements, persisted in thinking he would accept the nomination.

Up until 20 minutes before the convention was scheduled to convene from their recess, the former governor had not received Mr. Mondell's telegram. Mr. Lowden was particularly anxious to know if his answer which he gave The Associated Press for delivery to Mondell had reached the chairman.

Mr. Lowden was told that The Associated Press made an attempt to charter an airplane and fly to his home at Oregon.

We Have With Us Today

C. W. Taylor, Sales Manager, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mr. Taylor is associated with the Metro-Goldwyn picture corporation at Pittsburgh. He is a former Omaha man, being at one time local branch manager for Metro pictures. Taylor sees great possibilities for the film business, which he believes still to be in its infancy. "The people of today want good, clean super-pictures and are willing to pay the price," said Taylor. "They are getting away from cheap productions."

Taylor stated that Omaha picture houses had a larger seating capacity than the houses in Pittsburgh and the exterior of local houses are even more attractive than a great many houses in the east.

The consolidation of Metro and Goldwyn makes it the largest film corporation in the world today, said Taylor. They have an outlet of four studios, Metro, Goldwyn, Cosmopolitan and Louis Mayer. Taylor is in Omaha to testify in the Binderup film suit.
