The best catches of big bass now are being made after sundown and as late as 11 p. m. with the white artificial bait more attractive to the heavyweights than other colors or even live frogs. Jack West of Woodlake declares work while the moon is out. Daylight fishing also is good, and no trouble is experienced in catching the limit, either with plugs or frogs, which are fairly abundant.

Some of the largest strings and biggest bass the last week are reported from Rat and Beaver lakes, 40 miles south and west of Woodlake and Johnstown. These lakes are considered two of the best bass lakes in Cherry county or any other part of north Nebraska. They in reality are one big lake, as they are connected by a wide and deep channel,
