Adele Garrison "My Husband's Love"

The "Few Words" About Savarin Harry Underwood Uttered.

The engine pistons chugged off the seconds while I searched my brain wildly for an answer to Harry Underwood's query. He spoke again, a bit impatiently, before I had found it.

"Does that little speech mean that you think I'd would be better off if she had me back again than if she gave me the gate, and took up the job of keeping Papa Savarin alive?"

His tone, even more than the slighting reference, confirmed an old suspicion of mine. That Harry Underwood cared very deeply for the doubted, even as I was skeptical that his feeling for her ever had been more than comradeship and a distinct admiration for her capabilities. But he was virtuous enough to be jealous of anyone else taking the place which had been his, and I had seen on other occasions his deep regret for Robert Savarin, a version only topped by the loathing which the artist had for him.

If he remembered his own past performances, I told myself sardonically, he had not the slightest vestige of justification for any jealousy whatever. But jealousy never has been accused of any delicacy, prudence or otherwise, with either justice or reason, and I knew that his dislike of Robert Savarin brought no troublesome memories of the episode in which Grace Draper had figured.

To my own great surprise I found that a decisive answer to his query grew easier with the passing seconds, and I nervously voiced the decision which was mine.

"Honestly, Mr. Underwood, I don't know how to answer you. Perhaps I hesitated, then hurried on—I may think that the best thing for her would be to—"

"Ought to be shot."

I found myself faltering again, and Mr. Underwood, with a most tantalizing twinkle in his eyes, finished my sentence disconcertingly.

"Give us both the gate?" he queried. "And live in widowed meditation, fancy free?" he finished the atrocious parody with a mocking laugh which irritated me to the point of the decisiveness I had lacked.

"Yes, I mean just that," I retorted pettishly. "A woman of Lillian's mental resources, and possessing a child like Marion, surely has no need of a husband—"

"Especially considering the hard luck with the child she did have," interrupted with the suspicion of a sneer, then checked himself summarily, and said contently:

"I ought to be shot for a speech like that," with a quick glance at my face blazing with anger. "You know I yield to nobody in my respect and admiration for Lillian, and the only thing which Tom Morton had on me was that he was a bigger rotter than I, and that's saying something. If ever anybody deserved a new deal with a clean deck, it's old Lil. But I'll be eternally frapped if I see how she's going to stack up against a turning nurse to that blasted old artist. Why, the man has one foot in the grave and the other one slipping right now."

"A Caustic Joke."

"You're mistaken on that point," I said, a bit maliciously, I am afraid, for his patent appreciation of his own splendid strength and physical at-

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Are Women 100 Per Cent Efficient?

How many women do you know who are one hundred per cent efficient? That means every nerve and sinew of the body pulsating with life and health as nature intended. Do you not know more who are half dead and half alive, with aches, pains, nervous, irritable and despondent, making themselves miserable and every one around them? Women in this condition should let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rebuild and restore them to a normal healthy condition which will make them one hundred per cent efficient and life worth living. There are women in every section of this country who testify to its merits.

Lemons Bleach the Skin White

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug-gist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

VAN SANT STAFF NAMED WITH CARE

No school is greater than its faculty. No matter how suitable its location or how well chosen its equipment, if the instructors lack understanding and sympathy and do not inspire the student to the best efforts, it is obvious that the work must fail. The owner and director of the Van Sant School of Business has selected instructors with all these factors in mind.

Each member of the faculty holds her position because of valued personal characteristics, in addition to special training and business experience.

The atmosphere of the Van Sant school is one of co-operation and students are working with the other students and with the instructors in the same spirit in which they will be working with fellow employees and employer.
