Love of Girl Puts Youth in Jail Cell

Arrested and Held for Forgery After He Tries to Buy Sweetheart Present With Bad Check. Her Billet Doux Found

For the love of Helen Southien, 1907 South Twenty-eighth street, his bride-to-be, James Gilliland, 20, 3016 Evans street, attempted to cash a check Wednesday to purchase her a cedar chest. He is now at police headquarters on a forgery charge.

When arrested, a permit signed by Gilliland's father and the girl's father, authorizing their marriage was found in his pocket. Police say the permit is false. Numerous love letters from Helen were found in his pocket.

Gilliland purchased the cedar chest from Orchard & Wilhelm and tendered a check bearing the signature of "J. M. Carey" for payment. The check was for $35 and cost of the chest was $17.50. The check was sent to the cashier's desk, where Gail Carey, an assistant, called the bank and discovered no J. M. Carey account existed there.

Mother Would Prove It. Gilliland protested and asked Carey to walk to Seventeenth and Howard streets, where his mother was waiting in a car. She would prove the check was good, Carey asserted. They failed to find the mother. Gail Carey pushed the lad into the Briessard cafe and police were called.

The love letters and notes found showed that the "grand passion" was at its height in their hearts, and even as they sat in church together they couldn't forbear giving written vent to their feelings.

Carried Church Note. One written on stationery of St. Xavier church was in pig-Latin and signed Helen, read: Dear Jimmie: I love you with all my heart. On the same sheet in English, Jimmie replied: Honey: Please forgive me. I'll never get money that way again. I love you. Do you still love me? Are you going to marry me? Yes, Helen replied: Another was a bit of poetry sent to Jimmie by Helen. It follows: 'Tis sweet for the stars to kiss the sea. But not so sweet as your kissing me.

It doesn't mean a thing I know, But I like to hear your lies and so The moonlit night has a thousand charms as I lie content in Your warm eyes. Kiss my finger, my hair, my eyes, whisper a thousand precious words. Kiss my neck, my arms and then—kiss my trembling lips again. Love me, hold me forever until the stars are turning white. (This is how much I love you.) A letter read: "Dear Beloved Jimmie: I sure love you and will be your wife. The first week after my vacation you can get the license. Your future wife, "HELEN."

The vacation appeared to trouble Jimmie. He replied: "Dear Helen: "When you go on your vacation I will be true to you and not ever step out on you and I want that you'll never step out on me any time. Oh, sweetheart, I sure love you are away and even before I'll begin getting things fixed up so we can marry and have something to start out with. From one who is true to you." Helen wrote the following to keep Jimmie's aching, jealous heart from breaking: "Jimmie: "You need not worry I am not going to step out on you because I love you. Maybe I won't go away. Wouldn't that suit you better? Oh, I love you with all my heart which you now have. I know we will be happy. "From one who loves you most of all, better than anyone on this wide, wide world."

Bryan Boed and Hissed in Plea for McAdoo Vote

New York, July 2.—That stormy petrel of democratic politics, William Jennings Bryan, added another tumultuous chapter to his long career today when he went before the democratic national convention in an attempt to stem the tide of opposition to William G. McAdoo.

Interrupting an all-day succession of inconclusive ballots for a nominee for the presidency, the three times candidate of his party plunged the convention into a near riot and finally was all but driven from the platform by heckling delegates and booing galleries.

Besides Mr. McAdoo, he mentioned seven other presidential aspirants who would be satisfactory to him, but none of them aroused more than momentary enthusiasm and when the balloting was resumed scarcely a vote had been changed.

Little Change. Neither did the conferences of the leaders during an emergency recesses materially alter the situation, and the convention went on into another night session with its disagreement over the nominations still in a jumble. McAdoo and Smith, both unable to make material headway, kept their relative places at the center of the list.

McAdoo made West Virginia lead a few votes, but remained in third place, and the supporters of Ralston of Indiana became more active in presenting the qualifications of their candidate as a compromise selection.

The entire effort of Mr. Bryan's appearance before the convention was not immediately apparent. The McAdoo men declared the incident would stimulate a new rally in the lagging fortunes of the former treasury secretary, but the Smith supporters said Bryan had turned the trick for which they had been waiting, and had relegated the McAdoo candidacy definitely to the limbo.

Recent "Lecturing." The most vociferous interruptions to the speech of the commoner came from the galleries, jammed with New Yorkers rooting for Governor Smith, but it was apparent that a large bloc of the delegates themselves resented what they regarded as a gratuitous effort to lecture them. Anti-McAdoo delegations broke in with a chorus of questions about McAdoo's "oil retainer" as soon as the candidate's name was mentioned, and tried vainly by parliamentary tactics to have the speaker removed from the platform.

To these appeals Chairman Walsh presented a deaf ear, although he turned savagely on the galleries and at one time ordered that part of them be cleared. Mr. Bryan obtained his leave to speak by requesting unanimous consent to explain his vote on the 35th ballot. (Turn to Page Two, Column Four.)

Californian Near Majority in Spurt; Needs 732 Votes

Increase From 444 Votes on 38th Ballot Attributed to W. J. Bryan's Plea on Floor of Convention—Missouri and Oklahoma Back in Ex-Secretary's Column.

Smith Drops to 317; Davis Fails From 106 to 70. Madison Square Garden, July 2.—On the 41st ballot in the democratic national convention, the leaders stood: McAdoo, 504.9; Smith, 317.6; Davis, 70.

Madison Square Garden, July 2.—For the first time since the balloting began, William Gibbs McAdoo shot over the 500 mark in the democratic national convention. On the 40th ballot the total for the leaders stood: McAdoo, 505.5; Smith, 317.5; Davis, 70.5.

With Missouri back in the McAdoo column, the 39th ballot in the democratic national convention tonight showed these totals among the lead ers: McAdoo, 498; Smith, 320.5; Davis, 71. McAdoo gained 55, Smith lost one-half vote and Davis of West Virginia lost 35 votes.

Still Reeling. Madison Square Garden, July 2.—Still reeling under the effects of the bombardment and counter attack which swept the democratic national convention late this afternoon when William Jennings Bryan took the platform for William G. McAdoo and was put under a cross fire of questions respecting McAdoo's connections with "oil" and tax refunds from the government to corporations, the convention assembled at 5 tonight for the 38th ballot.

The effect of Bryan's move and the storm which accompanied it was the sole topic of discussion among the leaders when the convention assembled. Who had been benefited and who had been hurt were the great questions. There was an agreement on all sides that if anything had been necessary to solidify the Smith people, it was Bryan's reference to the necessity for a candidate whose position was right "on the liquor question." It was obvious that Bryan had brought out on the floor of the convention a subject which the McAdoo people had no relish for throwing into open debate—the oil question and the tax refunds.

Ralston People Anxious. The Ralston people were anxiously looking about to estimate how their candidate had fared under Bryan's open endorsement. Senator Walsh of Montana, a declared supporter of McAdoo, had given way in the chair for the night session to Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, a declared supporter of Smith, so that he may be saved any embarrassment for clearing the galleries from Smith rosters if they came so unruly as to stop the convention proceedings as they had done at the afternoon session when they snored Bryan down under a cloudburst of howls, catcalls and uncomplimentary epithets.

Slowly the total of ballots was climbing toward the records made at Baltimore and San Francisco where it took 46 and 44 respectively to find a nominee. If nomination were made tonight, the record was in a fair way to be broken. At $15, Chairman Walsh beganaveling for order; silence, the hall, waved delegates and alternates to their seats, shook a Leonine head at the galleries to keep order and announced that Dr. Frederick H. Knubell of the United Lutheran churches would lead in prayer.

Feed Need of Music. The New York police gleu club then sang some songs. Evidently the convention managers felt that some music was needed to soothe the savage beast of convention. No chances were taken, however, on the effectiveness of the music; enough cops to compress several gleu clubs marched around the hall looking for trouble.

McAdoo lost a half in Arizona, which was given to Smith. The dinner recess had not shaken Arkansas loose from Senator Robinson, nor California from McAdoo. The vote remained as usual until Michigan was called. There McAdoo lost one, Smith lost one, Davis and Ritchie picked up the two votes. McAdoo Gets Half Vote.

Missouri with its 35 for Davis Hampshire, McAdoo picked up a half vote which had been going to Senator Walsh of Montana. In North Carolina, Davis picked up a half vote from McAdoo. Oklahoma passed.

In Pennsylvania, Robinson's one went to Glass. The list ran on without change until Vermont was reached, when the one McAdoo vote there was taken away and cast for Mayor Jackson of Burlington, Vt. The remainder of
