

Stop, Look and Listen

All this driver tried to do was push the train off the track.

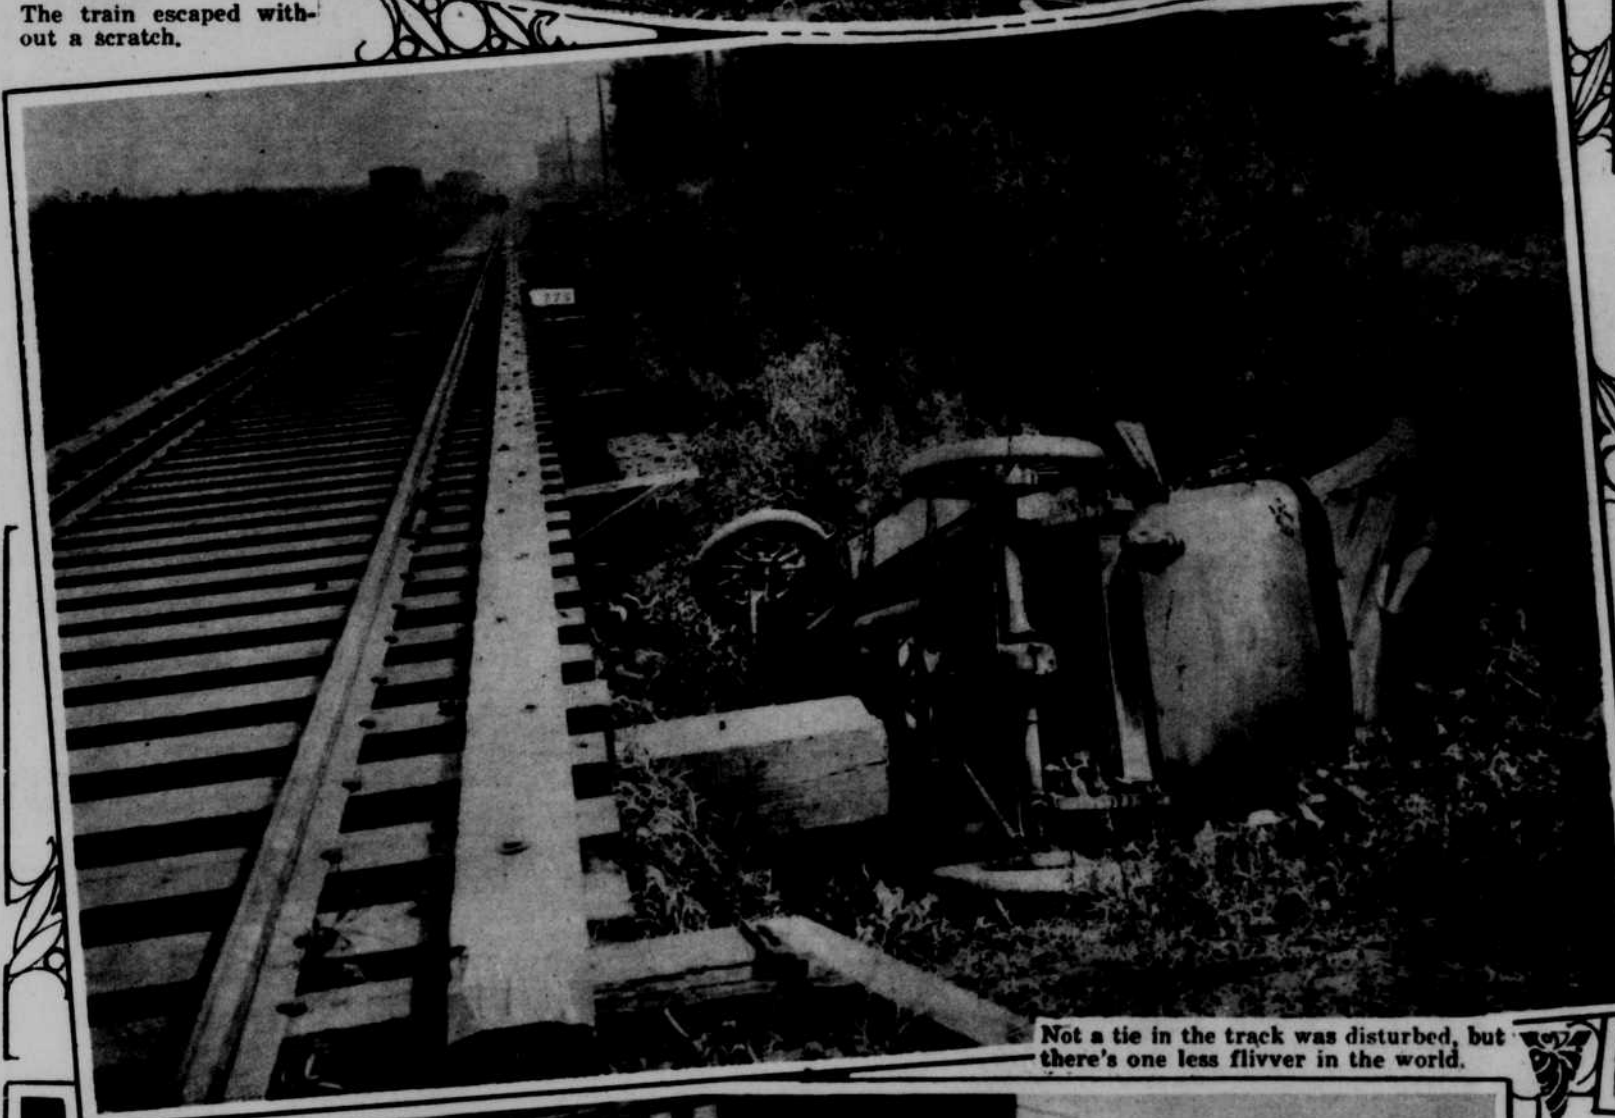

The driver of this car thought he could beat the engineer. He did—to the hospital.

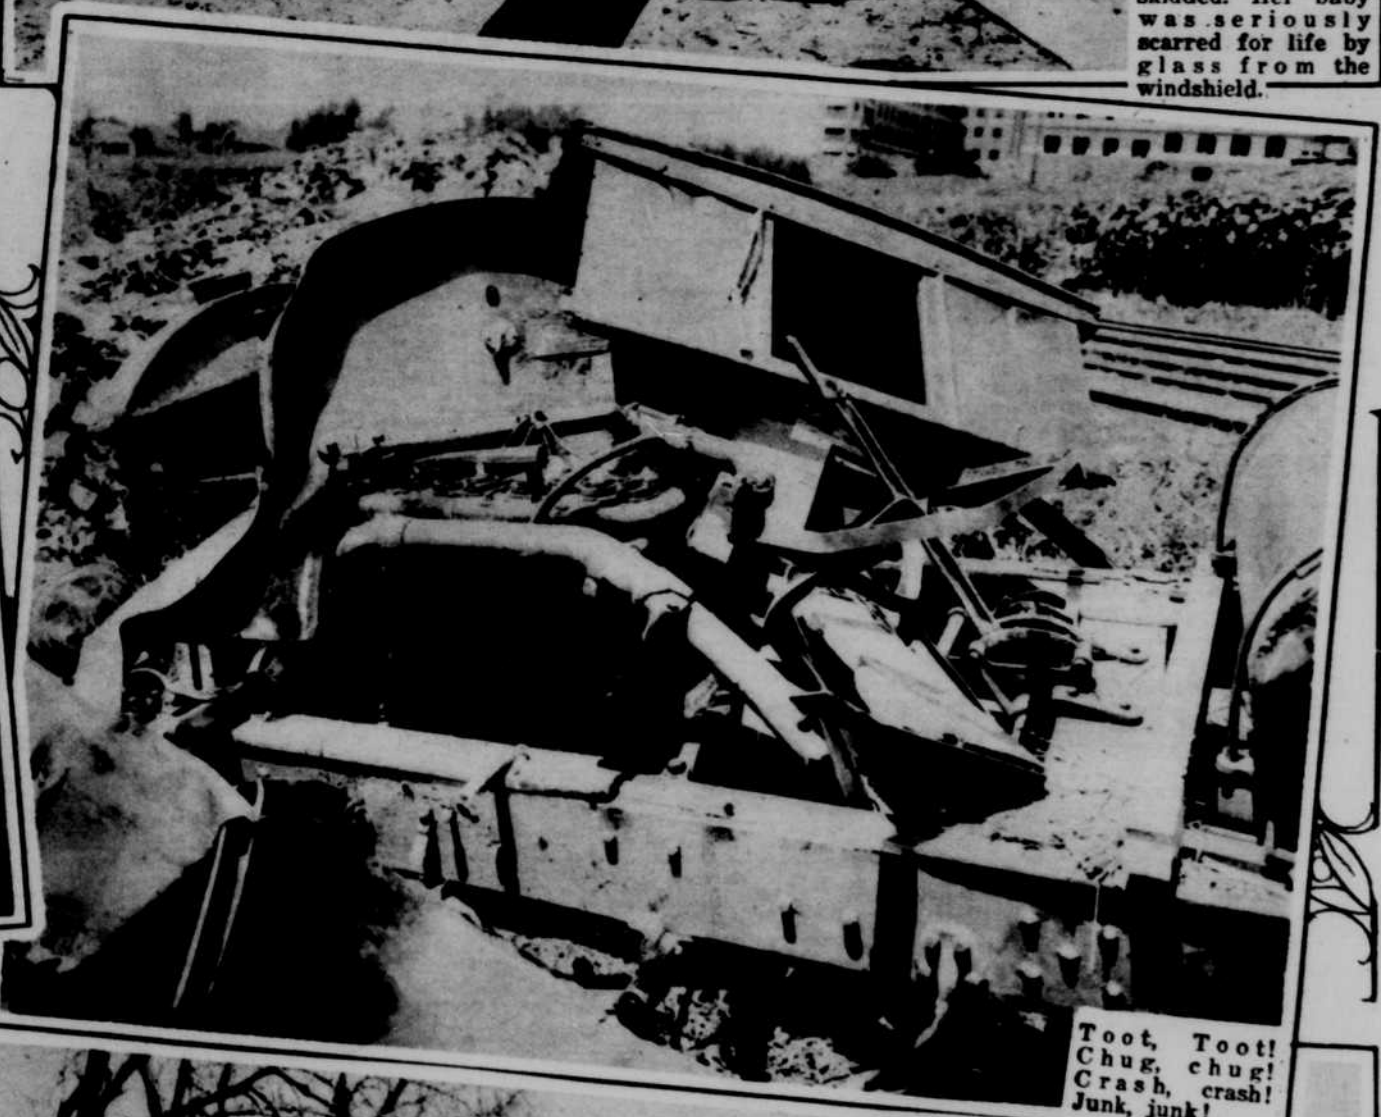

The train escaped without a scratch.

The woman driving this car lost control when the machine skidded. Her baby was seriously scarred for life by glass from the windshield.

Not a tie in the track was disturbed, but there's one less flivver in the world.

Toot, Toot!
Chug, chug!
Crash, crash!
Junk, junk!

The driver of the closed car tried to make a left-hand turn at Sixteenth and Farnam streets. He had to buy a new fender for the runabout.

This driver didn't believe in signs.