Self-Government, Good Joke. McAdoo Is No Quitter. The President's Son. Warning to Parents. By ARTHUR BRISBANE

What we call self-government may not be real, but it is at least amusing. Spatenmen of the political boss type spent yesterday "confering," which means discussing various deals, to decide on a democratic candidate. After they decide, you will have the pleasure of getting excited about the man thus chosen, and will vote for him—unless you happen to belong to another party.

What the people want means nothing. The insiders ask upon whom we agree? What man, sufficiently eligible to save us from being ridiculous, will suit us all, and those for whom we work? Nobody asks, in that inside conference, "whom do the voters want?" Or what candidate has deserved a nomination? It is purely a question of political expediency, and agreement among bosses. If they can find a man that will stand hatched, keep his promises to the men that name him, regardless of platform promises, that is the man you will get for candidate.

Occasionally, as in 1896, when Bryan nominated himself, a man not selected by the insiders gets the nomination. But that happens rarely, and when it does happen the bosses on both sides unite to beat such an upstart.

In this case, just one thing seems agreed upon. McAdoo, who came to the convention with the biggest support, almost all of the delegates, must get out.

All bosses and the "big men" they work for, are agreed on that. Whether they can put the program through you will know, perhaps, today or tomorrow. The suggestion that McAdoo quit "for the sake of party harmony" is interestingly preposterous. McAdoo, of course, will not do anything as yellow as that. His men may quit him, if they are yellow. But he will stick.

The public interest is divided between the democratic convention and the White House, with deepest concern and sympathy concentrated upon the president and his wife in their great anxiety. Cramped for generations it came yesterday, was more hopeful. Surgeons felt that the operation would save the boy's life.

All fathers and mothers should be put on the guard by the illness of the president's son. The boy wore shoes, or sandals, with no stockings, as thousands of boys and girls do, every day, in summer. That is most dangerous.

The earth, everywhere, is impregnated with dangerous germs, including the germ of lockjaw, and innumerable other germs that may cause blood poisoning if a slight wound be neglected.

The feet, and especially the toes, are more easily infected than any other external part of the body. Cramped for generations in shoes, deprived of their natural blood supply, very often, the toes lose their power of resistance to germ attack. Constantly you read of blood poisoning that starts in the foot.

Wearing shoes without stockings, neglecting a cut, or blister, as children often do, any germs accumulated are persistently and continuously rubbed into the tissues and into the blood circulation, with no protecting stocking, between the foot and the leather. The pluckier the child, the more probability of a neglected wound. And boyish courage unfortunately, is no protection against germ attack.

Children with feet completely bare are in less danger. The sole of the foot becomes hardened.

COME OUT OF THE ECZEMA-STRICKEN PIMPLY CROWD

Here is Positive Relief for the Worst Cases of Eczema

Mercrex is Guaranteed to Heal.

No matter how long you have suffered with eczema, pimples, itch, blackheads, poison ivy, ringworm, or other skin troubles, we have positive relief for you. We know that you can be relieved. Physicians in our State had cases of up to 27 years' standing. Mercrex relieved them all, and thousands of others, to the satisfaction of both patients and physicians.

Do not confuse Mercrex with the usual dark ointments that merely grease the surface. Mercrex is not a patient medicine, but a scientifically proved, professional remedy of an entirely new composition, produced by one of the country's oldest scientific institutions and prescribed by many physicians.

Mercrex is different from all other skin remedies. First, because it penetrates—vanishes—through the outside skin and acts on the true skin underneath, where your trouble really is.

Second, it does not advertise your trouble to others. Mercrex has no drugy smell and makes no dark stain. Its perfume is only a very faint fragrance that women like and men will not notice, and its color is just a natural, invisible pink. No tell-tale trace of Mercrex remains to stain your skin or linen.

Start your relief today. Don't wait. Buy Mercrex at any drug store, 75 cents, on a money-back guarantee. If you want extra information about treatment, write for booklet. Address Department B, E. D. Calk Company, Milford, Delaware. We also recommend Mercrex Soap.

There is no chafing of the skin, no rubbing of germs into the cuticle. Feet bare, compel caution in walking and running. And from a bare foot, rushing through grass and weeds, germs are rubbed away, not held and rubbed in.

How do the English hold their great empire together? How do they keep 300,000,000 Asiatics in order, with only 100,000 Britons in all India? You get an answer, in the death in China of Edwin C. Hawley, and the action taken by the commander of his British majesty's ship Cockchafer.

Hawley, murdered by Chinese junkmen—which means piratical seamen, not dealers in "junk"—was not even a British subject. He was "only" an American. But he was employed by a British firm, and that was enough for the British sea captain.

He landed his men, compelled the Chinese authorities to execute two of the Chinese junkmen as a little lesson to the others. And then he compelled everyone of the high Chinese officials of Szechwan province to walk humbly behind the hearse of the murdered American's funeral.

The Chinese authorities "protest" against such rudeness by the commander of the British gunboat, but that won't do them any good. Our State department "makes representations" about the murder of an American citizen and that won't bother China.

What impresses the Chinese and others scattered about the world, is the simple directness of a Briton, when he thinks his nationality has been insulted. "Zest thou a man diligent in his business, he shall stand before kings."

A man who is not diligent and earnest in his business, where British dignity is concerned, does not stand well before the British king.

Miss Wills, the wonderful young girl from the wonderful California climate, has shown extraordinary and precocious power, against the crack players of Europe. She and Mrs. George Wightman on Saturday won the championship in the woman's doubles in England.

These victories mean to this country much more than mere athletic victory. The brain does more than the muscles in a game of quickness and skill. Every movement of the muscles starts in the brain. Speed depends on mental power.

That is why the French are so proud of the marvelous Mademoiselle Lengien. She typifies in her way the power of the French brain. (Copyright, 1924.)

Court Defines State Policy on Paying for Keep of Insane

Lincoln, July 7.—Policy of the state as expressed in a statute which requires citizens to pay for the keep of relatives in state hospitals for the insane has been sustained by a decision of the supreme court in a suit in which the state sought to recover from the estate of a deceased person who had been maintained at a state hospital. Relatives unable to pay are required to make a showing of that fact to the board of control. The law is interpreted as intended to reach well-to-do persons who refuse to pay for unfortunate relatives.

Son Finds Father, Missing 17 Years, Dead at York Home

York, July 7.—An item recently published in state papers noting the death of Charles Nelson at the state I. O. O. F. home in York brought both joy and sorrow to his son, Edward Nelson, now of Grand Island. Through a chain of circumstances the Nelson family became broken up 17 years ago and ever since Edward Nelson has been endeavoring to locate his father. Reading the death notice he called the home in York to obtain a description of the man. Feeling satisfied from the description the deceased was his father, Mr. Nelson came to York with his family in time to attend the funeral services. He expressed his gratification at the assurance that his father had received good care.

A pathetic incident in connection with the case is the fact that Charles Nelson was in attendance at a state meeting at the home in York but in the crowd failed to see and recognize his father.

Milk for Babies Good Investment Pays Best Dividends for Years to Come; Cash Greatly Needed.

Where is the only place you can put your money and be absolutely sure you will never lose it? Answer: In charity. Give it, for instance, to the Free Milk and Ice Fund conducted by The Omaha Bee. Business can go "blooey" but it can't affect that investment. That investment will continue to pay you dividends of satisfaction through all the storms and stresses of life. And the infant life your money saved will go on producing joy to itself and others for many, many years. Some investment, isn't it? This fund is in dire need of money to pay for the pure milk so desperately needed by the babes of scores of widows in Omaha's poorest districts. Unless the money comes in some of the little ways must suffer. Write your check now. Make the investment. Your money back if it doesn't do all above stated.

Co-Op Course for Creighton, Plan

Students of Business to Get Practice, Theory at Same Time.

College students will apply to practical business the lessons learned in the classroom in the new co-ordination plan being launched by the Creighton University College of Commerce, Finance and Journalism. This college will inaugurate the new plan of instruction with the opening of the new term, September 15.

Under this plan, the practice of business is taught in an office or factory under actual commercial conditions and the theory underlying the practice is taught in the college. The aim of the co-ordination plan is to train students in both theory and practice so that they can meet the demands of industry for executives and employees who possess broad theoretical education and actual practical work as well.

Makes Theory Easier. It is believed that by alternating actual work in banks, newspapers, offices, factories and stores with periods of study the student will be enabled to attack each one with greater interest and intelligence. He can apply the theory learned to the work and come back to the study of the theory with greater and more concrete understanding by reason of his experience in working out actual problems.

Seventeen of the larger universities have already adopted this new plan and have found it valuable from an educational standpoint. Creighton will be one of the first in the middle west to use it. The requirements for entrance to the Creighton University College of Commerce, Finance and Journalism are equivalent of graduation from an accredited high school.

Special Students Enrolled. Students who cannot fulfill these requirements may be admitted as special students if they seem to possess the ability to complete the course in accordance with the university's standards of scholarship. Courses will be offered in sales management, advertising management, retail management, business administration, banking and finance, journalism, accounting and secretarial science leading to the degree of bachelor of commercial science.

In addition, a pre-college course will be offered as well as work of the same nature as that offered by business colleges. During the summer months, the college is maintaining an office at 1238 First National bank building in order that prospective students may secure information about the new college.

BUSINESS TRAINING IS VITAL MATTER

"For a quarter of a century I have been encouraging young men and women to take training for business because I believe business is the greatest profession there is." This remark was made by H. B. Boyles, president of Boyles college, who continued: "Whenever I run across bright young men and bright young women who seem to be misfits in the positions they occupy, I feel some regret when I think of the struggle that lies before them. "The untrained young person cannot compete with trained ones in business. Many young folks will not take the advice of their parents and friends and prepare for life's work and, of course, they must suffer the consequences. "But I notice in each successive year more young men and women are attending Boyles summer school, because they feel that a special preparation for business is a matter of vital importance to them. Students may enter Boyles college any Monday of the year."
