Secrets of Hair Dressing Art

Here is a way to bring out all the lustrous softness your hair possesses. It is a method known and treasured by many beauty specialists and women famous for lovely hair. It is a simple matter of using the right shampoo. It is not advisable to use a makeshift, but always use a preparation made for shampooing only. You can enjoy the best that is known for about three cents a shampoo by getting a package of canthox from your druggist. Dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready.

After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp grows with the health that insures Band Concerts and Competitive Drills Mark Annual Convention.

Boston, July 9.—The election of John C. Price of Columbus, O., as grand exalted ruler and the selection of Portland, Ore., as the next annual meeting place of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks were the chief events of the executive session of the grand lodge here today, held in conjunction with the sixtieth annual convention of the order.

The new chief, who succeeds James G. McFarland of Watertown, S. D., received over twice as many votes as his only competitor, Charles F. J. McCue of Cambridge, Mass. Price recently completed two terms as attorney general of his state and was prosecuting attorney of his county for four years previously. He is a member of the Ohio state board of charity and a former member of the public recreation commission of Columbus.

While the grand lodge members were laboring, their comrades played band and glee club concerts and military maneuvers on the Boston common and sightseeing trips through Boston and its environs took up the day with competitive drills between lodge teams at Braves field in which trophies were awarded.

Other officers elected today were: Grand esteemed leading knight, John B. Knapp, Williamsport, Pa.; grand esteemed loyal knight, George W. Eddington, Idaho Falls, Idaho; grand secretary, Fred C. Robinson, Chicago, (re-elected); grand treasurer, John C. Burch, Grand Rapids, Mich.; grand tiler, F. B. Williamson, Jackson, Tenn.; grand inner guard, J. E. Brough, Biloxi, Miss.; grand trustee, Edward Cotter, Hartford Falls, Conn.

For the fifth year the Jackson, Mich., Zouaves won first place in the drill competition held in connection with the Elks annual convention. The Purple Devils of Atlanta, Ga., were second, and Buffalo, N. Y., third.

Man, Wife and Child Walking to Illinois From Los Angeles

Columbus, Neb., July 9.—Walking from Los Angeles to their former home in Illinois, a man, his wife and a 3-year-old child, practically destitute, the woman about to become a mother again, arrived in Columbus on foot along the Lincoln highway and were given food and a meal here by the police. The man told Chief Lehman that he had been thrown out of a job in Los Angeles and subsequently the family lost their home and everything they had.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Though hope he gone, just keep on going: The end you have no means of knowing. —Peter Rabbit.

Again the Unexpected Happens.

Peter Rabbit couldn't see any chance for escape. He knew that he couldn't fire out Reddy Fox by running. He himself was growing more tired every minute. It was harder and harder to dodge. He knew that Reddy Fox felt absolutely sure of catching him this time and he himself felt that Reddy had every reason to feel sure.

Still there was just a wee bit left of hope left in Peter's heart. Something might happen. He couldn't think of anything that would be likely to happen, but still some thought might happen. Anyway, he wouldn't give up. He would run and dodge just as long as he had strength enough to move a leg.

"You may as well give up, Peter Rabbit," snarled Reddy at his very heels. "You haven't a chance. Some lucky things have happened to save you in the past, but now I've got you where I want you. Nothing can happen to save you this time."

Peter thought that Reddy was right, but he had no intention of giving up on that account. Twice Reddy's black jaws all but landed on him as he dodged. Each time Peter seemed to gain new strength from the narrowness of his escape. But this couldn't keep up much longer, and Peter knew it.

At last Peter was out in the Lone Little Path once more. Just ahead of him was a sharp turn. Around that turn he went lipperty-lipperty-lip. It was down hill. Peter, with his eyes rolled back to watch Reddy Fox, didn't see what was ahead of him. And so it was that he almost ran right up to Bowser the Hound and Farmer Brown's Boy. He didn't see the latter at all, but he did see Bowser just in time to keep from running straight into his mouth. He made a frightened leap to one side, and then all his strength seemed to leave him. Bar Association Committee Favors World Tribunal

Philadelphia, Pa., July 9.—Belief that a permanent court of international justice would "give precision by judicial decision to conflicts arising from different conceptions of international rights," was expressed today in the report of the international law committee of the American Bar Association, presented by James Brown Scott, Washington, the committee chairman.

The report said: "Your committee believes that the least benefit which a permanent court of international justice would confer upon the nations, is to give precision by judicial decision to conflicts arising from different conceptions of international rights and of international duties, thus tending to secure a uniform, universal application of them."

Commanding five bills for improvement of the administration of justice now before congress, the committee on jurisprudence and law reform particularly stressed one that would substitute for the review of judgments the remedy by appeal instead of the "cumbersome and experimental way of error," process prevalent. The bill, the report stated, had been passed by the senate and favorably reported to the house where it has yet to be voted on. Passage of the bill would introduce into federal practice a reform enjoyed by many states, it was declared.

John W. Davis, democratic presidential elector, was one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association in Philadelphia. He spoke in support of the committee's report.

Snowden Wins Budget Fight

Labor Government Withdraws Tory Attack in All-Night Session.

By International News Service. London, July 9.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden today emerged victorious from an all-night battle with the Tories in the house of commons when the first labor budget passed the committee stage.

The debate started Tuesday afternoon and raged throughout the night. The Tories fought until 6 this morning in an effort to force changes into the budget. Amendment after amendment was proposed, but Snowden opposed them all.

Only minor concessions were made and the principal features of the budget remained intact.

Lady Torington was the only woman member of commons to stick out the entire session.

Laborites claim that Snowden's victory has materially strengthened his position as well as that of his party.
