

Legion Editor Raps Radicals Miles Says Third Party Advocates Are "Blushing Reds."

"Most of the new third political party advocates are blushing reds posing as working men or laborers," said Frank F. Miles, editor of the Iowa Legionnaire, in sounding a warning of the radical menace before a joint meeting of the American Legion, Spanish-American war veterans and three service clubs in Council Bluffs, Thursday evening.

"If you would look these men over, you would find that most of them have their callouses on their feet from tramping," said Miles.

He read a bulletin containing a copy of an inflammatory circular recently broadcast by the communist party, in which laboring persons are urged to train themselves in the use of arms and prepare for a revolution.

"In the latter part of 1922 and early in 1923, $25,000,000 was spent to sovietize and propagandize this country," said the speaker.

Miles detailed an interview with a paid representative of the Russian government in the east, to explain why the people of Iowa do not appreciate the radical menace.

Iowa for Legion. "I'll tell you about Iowa," said the radical leader, "There are nothing but a bunch of ignorant farmers there and the whole state is nuts about the American Legion."

The legion editor pointed out the widespread use of dope and the increase in the number of murders and other crimes as other menaces requiring the attention of the American people. He said there has been a 35.5 per cent gain in the number of persons in penal institutions during the last five years, as compared with only a 17.5 per cent increase in population.

"The world is sick and it is the duty of the American Legion to arouse the people in this crisis," he said. "Our best remedies are more old-fashioned Christianity and education."

Short talks were made by William McLean, superintendent of the Bellevue Vocational school; Charles E. Swanson, president of the Kiwanis club, and Sam Greene, new department commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans of Iowa.

Before the meeting at the Grand hotel Miles was guest of honor at a dinner attended by Leon Morse, Terry Black, John DeWitt, Charles Miller, Alfred Anderson, Fred Heuvelink, Paul Flaxbeard, C. L. Smith and Ned E. Williams.

Deaf "See" Sound With Invention New Instrument Literally Turns Sound Into Light by Vibration.

By CHARLES A. SMITH. International News Staff Correspondent. London, July 13.—Dr. E. E. Fowler of Albany, eminent scientist and world famous for his work on seismism and his invention of the octophone, the instrument by which the blind are enabled to read ordinary print, has announced the invention of an apparatus which by its development may mean that the deaf will "hear" by seeing.

Stylish by Dr. d'Albe as an acoustic spectroscopic, the apparatus may be said to turn sound into light. It consists of a series of resonating boxes provided with minute mirrors attached to mica reeds. Each of these reeds is turned to correspond to the fundamental note of its own resonator. When this note is sounded with sufficient volume in the room where the apparatus is placed the reed, and therefore the mirror on it vibrates.

A beam of light is directed downward on these mirrors, and vibrating spots of light are reflected on to a ground-glass screen.

Dr. d'Albe, demonstrating his invention, said that it was only provided with 20 resonators, covering just over an octave of sound, but when a phonograph record was played about four feet from the apparatus the spots of light on the screen danced incessantly to the tune, indicating notes coming within the scope of the octave provided for.

After a short time it was possible for the people witnessing the demonstration to recognize the recurrence of certain notes by these vibrations.

Dr. d'Albe then demonstrated that speech would cause vibrations. "I see no reason," he declared, "why speech should not ultimately become visible to the deaf in this way. Music presents a comparatively easy problem.

"Even though the pitch and tone of every human voice varies," d'Albe added, "there are fundamental tones which occur in every pronunciation of the same vowel, for example: The ear can distinguish a word no matter how it is spoken, which is really a very wonderful thing.

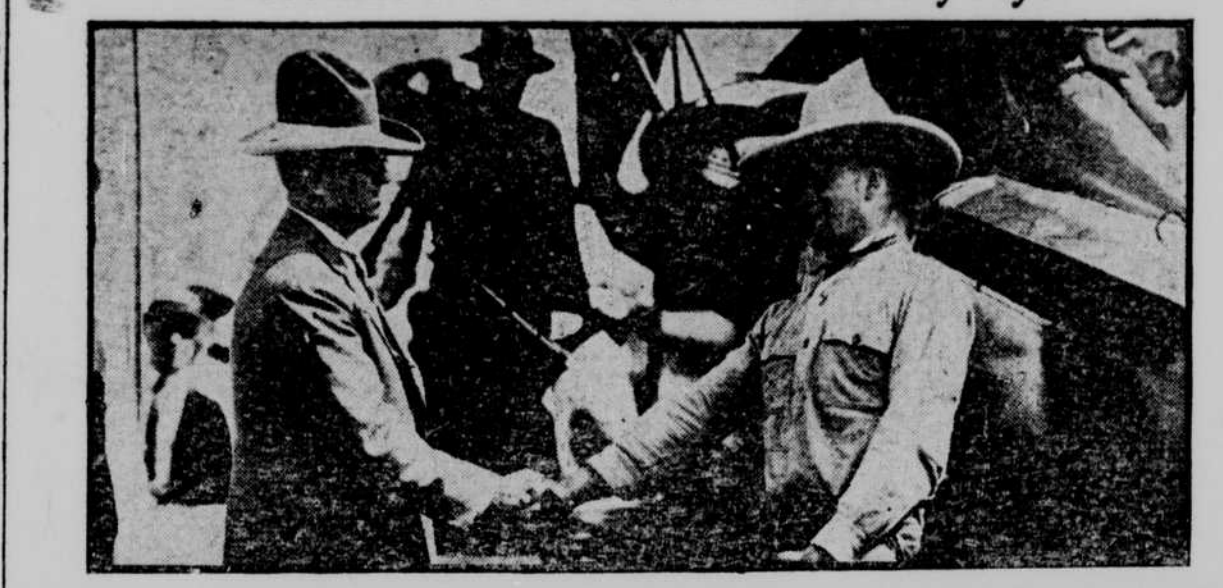

"I believe it will be quite possible for the trained eye to 'see' speech owing to these fundamental tones, which will give some characteristic form to the melody of vibrations produced by a word, no matter who speaks it."

South Omaha Vets Fight for Bellevue School

Will Be Need for Vocational Center for Years, Says Commander. The Omaha chapter of the Disabled Veterans of the World War is staging a fight for the continuance of the Bellevue vocational school term until the government decides to close vocational schools indefinitely, according to John M. Watt, commander.

"The vocational school at Bellevue has proved eminently successful in rehabilitating and restoring to normal mental conditions and good health and in training for useful occupations, more than 800 disabled veterans of the world," he says.

Eight schools of similar character have recently been discontinued or are about to be discontinued at an early date in other parts of the United States. The Bellevue school is showing a steadily increasing attendance so that it now has an attendance 20 per cent larger than a year ago.

The Omaha chapter of the Disabled War Veterans is now trying to cooperate with the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, the Omaha Chamber of Commerce and other civic bodies interested in the work done at the Bellevue vocational school. At the recent convention, the senators and representatives in congress from the states of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri were urged to assist in procuring the permanent establishment of the training school.
