

Radio Horn to Be Doomed, Belief

Loud Speaker of Future Will Be Compact and Won't Distort, Says Tapp.

By International News Service.
New York, July 12.—"The radio 'loud speaker' of the future will not have a horn, nor other 'sound' and will be so compact that it may be carried in the pocket concealed within the average receiving set itself or disguised as some unobtrusive bit of brisa-brace on the living room table. The horn is not only ugly, but it is scientifically unsound," says Harry F. Tapp, consulting engineer for the Radio Research corporation.
"Most of the distorted sounds emanating from a radio set may be attributed to the 'loud squawker' rather than to any fundamental shortcomings of the set itself," says Tapp.
"Experiments toward this end which we have made in our laboratories prove beyond doubt that it will be possible before long to design a simple mica diaphragm, with soft, iron center, which, supported between two synchronized coils, will impart a mellowness to radio music thus far considered impossible.
"A device applying these general principles has been built on a larger scale, but has not yet been employed for the privately-owned radio set.
"The average horn actually contributes nothing to the volume of sound originating in the diaphragm of the loud speaker. It merely concentrates and, incidentally, distorts, these sounds in the same way that a megaphone appears to magnify and twist into almost unrecognizable squawks the sound of the human voice.
"Physicists know," declares Tapp, "that you can't get out of any mechanical device any more energy than is imparted to it. You merely change its form. That's what the horn does—changes the form of the sound until it bears little resemblance to the original."

Girl "Tourists" Camp Out in Show Window

The window wizard at the Oakland Motor company store, Twentieth and Harney streets, fixed up a great camping-out scene in the window with tents and fires and everything. Elizabeth Eileen and Charlotte Danne, two employees, saw it and remarked: "Dear me! How lifeless and deserted it looks! Why don't you have some living models in it?" "You go in and be the living models," suggested a salesman. "You're on," said Netty and Lotte, taking the dare. And there they are, in the window for a week, cooking their meals for all to see and living like true campers.

New York, July 12.—Political circles were awaiting with interest a statement regarding the national democratic ticket which William G. McAdoo indicated he would issue on leaving for Europe today with his family. Friends of John W. Davis were confident that the nature of the statement was forecast by the fact that McAdoo called on Mr. Davis yesterday and that in the evening after ladnage by Will Rogers at a theater Mr. McAdoo made a short speech ending: "Now that the convention is over let's all get together and make sure we elect a democrat."
Roped into an impromptu address by Rogers, Mr. McAdoo began protesting: "Really, I thought I was done with politics."
"You are," Rogers cut in and the house rocked with laughter.

Aspiring Harvest Hands Delayed When Motorist Finds His Car Gone

John Blake, 17, 2824 Harrison street, and Joe Duddinski, 15, 3414 Harrison street, wanted to work in the harvest fields.
Having no money to pay out in railroad fare they hit on the happy idea of borrowing an automobile.
Thus it happened that M. F. Matzer, 2315 I street, found his automobile missing. For it was his car that had been borrowed.
In Lincoln the boys were caught. They were brought back to Omaha by two police detectives.
Saturday morning they were ushered before Judge L. B. Luy and introduced by the names they gave police. The judge smiled.
"I know you," said he. "You've been here before."
Whereupon they admitted that their real names are Barney Pitowsky in place of Blake and Joe Bazar instead of Duddinski.
The judge hasn't decided what to do with them. The harvest, however, will have to be cared for by others.

"It is impossible to determine cancer through a blood test," the doctor declared.
