PERSIAN GOVERNMENT GIVES PLEDGE TO APPREHEND AND PUNISH GUILTY PERSONS. Official Probe Ordered

Germany All Set to Pawn Vast Wealth

Entire National and Private Fortune to Be Pledged to Allies Under Dawes Plan.

Necessary Laws Drafted

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND, International Service Staff Correspondent. Berlin, July 19.—Germany is all set to carry out the biggest pawning transaction in history, pledging the whole national and private fortune of a nation of 60,000,000 persons in order to pay for the lost war.

The laws to make this transaction possible, as provided under the Dawes plan, have been completed except for final scrutiny and filing with the reparations commission.

I learn the government has definitely determined to place the laws before the reichstag and drive them through with all the power at command as soon as they come back from reparations commission, but will make their operation dependent on the passage of a special enabling law.

Ask Definite Date. In order to get the enabling law, however, the government considers it essential that the allies assembled at the London conference be asked first, to set a definite date at which time the Dawes plan is to go into effect and second, that Germany be given assurance that the allies will have carried out their part of the Dawes plan by that date.

Under "the allies' part," Germany includes not only the complete economic liberation of the Ruhr and the Rhineland but also military evacuation of the Ruhr, for which it has asked that definite dates be set. These demands are not made as "conditions" but are termed "irrevocable propositions contained in the Dawes plan itself," without whose fulfillment Germany will be unable to carry out its end of the bargain.

The transaction itself is provided for in three laws. The first provides the German-owned railroads for a total of less than $3,000,000,000. The second was German industry and trade for $1,250,000,000, the money thus raised to go to the allies through the reichsbank, which is to be reorganized as a collection agency and turned over to foreign control by the third law.

New Railway Company. The management of the railroads and ownership of rolling stock and money taken in by the government are to be turned over to the "German National Railway company," a private corporation under allied control, which, though still to be founded, will become the biggest single railroad company in the world.

The normal title to the railroads remains in the control of the government but the company will have control of operation and the right to divide the profits, according to the agreement reached by representatives of the reparations commission until the debt is canceled.

MAIL FLYER HAS NARROW ESCAPE. Missing an elevator tower by a few inches, Pilot L. H. Garrison of Omaha, who files the night air mail between this city and Chicago, narrowly escaped a serious accident and perhaps death at 10 Saturday morning at the Des Moines landing field.

Pilot Garrison was flying low over Des Moines through a dense fog and did not see the tower until he was almost upon it, he said, after he arrived in Omaha Saturday afternoon. Due to the poor weather conditions, the mail arrived in Omaha at 1:45 Saturday afternoon, more than 12 hours late.
