

Farmer Advised to Sell Slowly by Business Men Urged Not to Rush Grain to Market and Break Present Profitable Price.

(Continued from Page One.) growers to hold their crop and spread the deliveries over a longer period of time, thus conforming to the operations of the law of supply and demand.

Lincoln bankers and state officers agree with Omahans as to the advisability of marketing with caution. Morehead Sees Price Rise. "I certainly would advise every farmer who can do so to hold at least 60 per cent of his present wheat crop," said Mr. Well, president of the National Bank of Commerce, Lincoln.

John H. Morehead, representative in congress from the First Nebraska district, believes that every assistance should be extended to the farmer to enable him to hold his wheat for a while and not rush it to market at once. He believes that in view of conditions the price of wheat and corn will rise, especially corn.

Pool Advises Holding On. "I advise my farmer friends to hold on to most of their wheat for a while," said Secretary of State Pool. "I will have a little wheat, and I am going to follow my own advice. I believe it would be a good thing for the banks to extend all possible assistance in this matter."

L. C. Chapin of the Central National bank, Lincoln, said he thought supply and demand would regulate the price despite all other efforts. He would not commit himself further than to say that it was human nature always to want just a little more on the market offered. If the price went up past the $1.50 mark it would be human nature to hold for $1.55, and so on.

South Platte in Good Shape. W. B. Ryons of the First National bank, Lincoln, said the farmer who had old corn in his crib was pretty apt to be on easy street. But he said it would be a good idea to hold on to it at least for a couple of months.

Shumway Doubtful. "Every possible aid should be extended to farmers who need aid to make it possible for them to hold their wheat," said a prominent financier who declined to permit the use of his name. "I am satisfied that wheat and corn will command a much higher price, especially wheat, at some way can be developed to prevent its being dumped on the market from the threshers."

Science into Blood Tests. London, July 20.—Remarkable and far-reaching discoveries about the human blood have been made as a result of recent researches, according to scientific authorities. It is stated that tests initiated shortly after the world war have conclusively proved that the human race is divided into, roughly, four main blood groups, and that this division of the above description in several of the vernacular newspapers in Tokyo. Upward of 100 Japanese tourists are said to have visited Mikurashima as a result of the report of the traveler and to have caused some surprise to the residents in the place, which normally is isolated.

Leopold-Loeb Admit Second Slaying to Legal Counsel for Defense in Trial of Franks Murder Case

Richard Loeb.

Frank Tracy, whose Death Puzzled Police for Months, Alleged to Be Victim of Boy Super-Criminals.

Chicago, July 20.—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, millionaires' sons who say they kidnaped and killed Robert Franks, a neighbor, for excitement, have confessed another slaying and mutilation operation, the Herald-Examiner this morning says it has learned from a source close to the two boys. The alleged confession was not made to the state, the paper said, but was told to attorneys for the defense and alienists.

The defense made the alleged confessions public at the trial, the newspaper says, in order to show, it was said, that the boys are mentally unbalanced. The slaying, to which police have no clue, is that of Freeman L. Tracy, a university student, who was shot, beaten and hurled from an automobile in the south part of the city. He had been to a dance and a friend had taken him by automobile to the Midway Plaisance. He had started to walk from there to his home, supposedly. Nothing more is known of his movements until his body was found the next morning.

Chauffeur Victim Chloroformed. The other crime was the mutilation of Charles Ream, taxicab driver, who was held up at the point of pistols by two men, whom he described as "a couple of college boys," taken to a prairie and chloroformed. When he awakened he was in intense pain, and it was only after he had crawled five blocks to a telephone and summoned aid that he knew the serious result of the experiment performed on him.

When Leopold and Loeb were being questioned in the state attorney's office at the time of the Franks slaying, Ream was led to the prosecutor's office and there, seeing the two boys being taken out, screamed, "those are the two. They did it. I'm sure. Oh, I'd never forget their faces."

The authorities, however, were skeptical. Chief of Detectives Hughes said: "We are not going to pay any attention to these rumors and other 'identifications.'"

Preparations for the trial were being rounded into shape under the greatest secrecy by both the defense and the state. Rumors of some sort of a surprise move by the defense on Monday were circulated today but attorneys refused to comment on the reports. The basis of the defense, they indicated, might be a plea of compound insanity, that the youths alone were incapable of crime but that together, their mental processes were such as to make them dangerous.

Children Barred. It has already been ruled that boys and girls will not be admitted to the trial. Out-of-town writers are already arriving here to cover the proceedings. Lawyers tonight in discussing the probable result of Monday's hearing said the next move is naturally up to the defense, and that there are 12 defense attorneys are considering. 1. A motion to quash the indictments charging kidnaping for ransom and murder. This is likely as a matter of record.

2. Motion to determine the state furnish a full list of its witnesses, also probable as a matter of record. 3. Motion for a continuance, which defense attorneys are considering. 4. Motion for a special sanity hearing preliminary to the trial. 5. Motion for a change of venue from the court of Justice John R. Caveney of the criminal court to another court in Cook county. 6. Motion for a change of venue to a court in another county. 7. Motion to exclude certain evidence on the ground that it is illegally obtained. This might refer to the boys' confessions, lawyers said. 8. Motion for a severance of the trials of the two. 9. Motion to take the case out of Illinois jurisdiction and compel the state to prove venue on the ground that the Franks boy may have been killed in the state of Indiana and his body brought back here. 10. Motion for an immediate trial. 11. Motion to admit the accused to bail. 12. Plead the boys guilty as charged. A newspaper conducting a canvass of its readers on a proposal to broadcast the trial, announced that of 8,137 opinions received, 4,774 were against the proposal.

Shaver Assumes Active Charge of Demo Campaign

New Chairman of National Committee Picks Up Reins of War Chariot.

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR. Universal Service Staff Correspondent. Washington, July 20.—Clem L. Shaver of West Virginia who led the fight for the nomination of John W. Davis for the presidency, has taken charge of the democratic national campaign.

His formal election as chairman of the democratic national committee will take place in Clarksville, just before Mr. Davis is formally notified on August 11 that he is the democratic presidential candidate. Shaver succeeds Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who announced his withdrawal in a statement lauding his successor as "an exceptionally able man."

Main headquarters for the democratic campaign, Shaver said, will be maintained in Chicago and New York. Regional Headquarters. In addition, he said, there will be regional headquarters, at least in the far west, and one in the south. The national committee headquarters in Washington will be continued, and Shaver will divide the greater part of his time between the national capital and the two main headquarters.

An executive advisory committee is expected to assist in the management of the pre-selection contest. The personnel of this committee, Shaver said, is yet to be determined. Financial problems too, Shaver said, have not been passed upon. The identity of the treasurer and the others who will be called upon to raise funds for the campaign will be determined in the near future.

Mrs. Blair Retains Post. Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, now vice chairman of the national committee, retains her post for the present, but there are indications that she would be replaced. After his meeting with party leaders who will serve on his board of strategy throughout the pre-election contest, Shaver left for Clarksville. He expects to return to Washington on Monday to take up the task of selecting the personnel for the campaign battle.

NOMINEE PROBLEM PERPLEXES DEMOS (Continued from Page One.) cock-Mullen crowd to the political kingdom come. It is all so sweetly mixed. Out-state democrats declare that an Omaha democrat couldn't win at all. Omaha candidates and their friends argue to the contrary. Real Demos Spurn La Follette. Democrats who want to win at any price are not to be admitted to the trial. Out-of-town writers are already arriving here to cover the proceedings. Lawyers tonight in discussing the probable result of Monday's hearing said the next move is naturally up to the defense, and that there are 12 defense attorneys are considering.

SEAMAN'S SOUL GOES TO BIRD By International News Service. Los Angeles, July 20.—There is a superstition of the deep that when a seaman dies his soul enters the body of a gull. The superstition assumed a new color when the Panama Pacific liner Manchuria arrived here from New York bearing the body of one of her men and, in an adjoining cabin, a bird of brilliant plumage, which mysteriously came out of the air the morning after the man died. It was while the Manchuria was far off the coast of Mexico that Cornelius Van Ree, assistant baker, died. A few hours later the bird appeared.

Investigation Proves Motorists Careless at Railroad Crossings

Do you stop, look and listen before crossing railroad crossings? A very large majority of persons neither stop nor look, according to a survey just completed by the Burlington railroad.

The survey does not specify about the listening, probably because the observer was unable to determine just how much listening was being done. It does reveal some startling facts, however, especially in view of several recent and tragic crossing accidents. The observer placed himself at a crossing of the D. L. D. highway over the main line of the Burlington railroad, about four miles east of Ashland, Neb. It was on July 2, a bright day, when scores of cars were on the roads. And during the 10 hours which the observer spent at the crossing, 45 automobiles and trucks passed over it.

Majority Prove Careless. Of this large number, 255 drivers failed to look either way; 51 drivers looked only one way and 99 sane, cautious drivers actually looked both ways before crossing, but without bringing their cars to a stop. The observer had spent an hour or more at the crossing, and had almost decided that caution is a dead quality in this world of speed, when a driver stopped at the crossing and looked both ways before driving over it. Only seven other drivers had the patience to take this precaution during the 10 hours he was on duty. Two near tragedies occurred during the 10 hours of observation. Once a family party in a closed car was driving at rapid speed toward the crossing. A local passenger train, traveling at about the same speed, also was nearing the crossing. The driver looked neither to right nor left, nor did he slacken his speed. He had apparently failed to hear the shrill whistle of the engine. When he was but 15 feet from the crossing the engineer cut loose with another shrill whistle, attracting the driver just in time to enable him to bring his car to a screeching, skidding stop a few feet from the train as it roared past.

Carelessness Predominates. It required both the engineer's whistle and the frantic waving of the observer to stop a man, driving rapidly toward the crossing and destruction. Other notes made by the observer at the crossing show that not a single horse-drawn vehicle passed over the crossing; that a boy riding a mule neither stopped, looked nor listened; that one motorcycle driver was equally indifferent about an approaching train; that three Lincoln-Omahas failed to stop, although one slowed down at the crossing; that one car was driven by a small boy of about 10, and that engineers on all passing trains whistled long and loudly as they approached the crossing.

Newspapers to Aid. "I am intensely interested in the careful crossing campaign," said E. Flynn, general manager of Burlington lines west, who had the observation made. "So many reports come to me of auto accidents at crossings which show such utter disregard on the part of the driver to the most simple rules of safety, that we must look to our representative newspapers to correct the evil."

AERODROME FOR TOKIO IS ASKED Tokyo, July 20.—Increased demands for the establishment of a central aerodrome in Tokio have been brought before the military authorities and the members of the imperial diet recently. The arrival of the American fliers in Tokio, the trip of Captain D'Olay, the French flier, and the knowledge of a general increase in world interest in aviation has caused the authorities here to bring out the plan submitted last year for a central aerodrome in the heart of the city of Tokio, and a place for water landing to be reserved at the mouth of the Sumida river, near Tokio.

Y., society woman. Attorneys who filed the suit for Mrs. Gill refused to state the nature of the case but it was reported to be an action for breach of promise. Mr. Priestley characterized the suit as "blackmail."

"I have known Mrs. Gill for many years," he said. "I knew that she and her mother came here last week to attend a musicale. I certainly had not expected a suit of any kind and our relations certainly never have justified a breach of promise suit, if that is the nature of this one."
