BUSINESS MEN WANT EFFICIENCY

"Let a young man or young woman by their acts show to their friends a determination to win in business pursuits and all their neighbors and friends feel like lending a helping hand and expressing themselves in a complimentary way concerning these ambitious young people," says H. B. Boyle, of Boyles College.

"Employers are always in quest of capable office assistants. With the opportunities placed before young men and young women to train for business pursuits, there is no excuse for those who neglect such opportunities.

"Those who are employed during the day can attend night school and those who otherwise would fritter away their time during the summer months may attend the summer school of Boyles College and thus improve every day towards acquiring special training for business. Students may enter Boyles College any Monday in the year."

Business Men Calling for Proficient Help

The demand for our graduates is a great source of satisfaction to the faculty and management, says Prof. J. A. Youngstrom of the American College of Business, second floor, 1912 Farnam Street.

The expansion and improvement in every line of business in Omaha requires more office assistants and is keeping the demand for our bookkeepers, stenographers, secretaries and comptometer operators continuous. Seldom a week goes by but we have two or three calls for graduates.

There is, however, he says, considerable difference in the call now and a couple of years ago. Business men are demanding that their office assistants be thoroughly proficient, and almost every call, whether it is for a young man or young woman, requests someone who has a knowledge of more than one thing, i. e., someone that can do both bookkeeping and shorthand and frequently they want someone who understands not only bookkeeping and stenography, but also the comptometer or calculating machines.

TEACHERS' SCHOOL NOW ACCREDITED

The College of Saint Mary purposes to contribute a share towards the promotion of a great cause by preparing young women to become good teachers.

Strong courses are offered for kindergarten, grade and high school teachers. The College of Saint Mary has been approved by the state superintendent of public instruction and granted the same privileges as the state teachers colleges of Nebraska.

On the completion of any two-year course, the student is granted teacher's first grade state certificate, which becomes a professional life certificate after three years of successful teaching.

CENTRAL COLLEGE ADDS TO FACULTY

Announcement has been received through President Carrell that the faculty of Nebraska Central College at Central City, is to be strengthened during the coming year.

The 25th anniversary of the college, just closed, proved to be the most satisfactory in the history of the school. A campaign for new students is now in progress.

M. Herbert Watson, Miller, Kansas, will be professor of history. Professor Watson is a graduate of Penn college, with both the bachelor's degree and the master's degree from that institution. Mrs. Edith J. Comfort has been secured to serve as head of the English department. A number of new courses in both the college and academy will be offered this year.

Student Journalists Find Delight in Black Hills

Sturgis, S. D., July 21.—Eight student journalists of the University of Missouri made a trip through the western part of South Dakota last week to gain practice in writing travel correspondence. They report that of all the territory they had visited in Iowa, Missouri, Minnesota and South Dakota, the Black Hills country was most pleasing. They were much impressed with the climate and scenery. Members of the party were Prof. Mann, O. K. Armstrong, Irwin Borders, Roscoe Ellard, James Hague, C. H. McMurtry, Ben Nee, W. J. Peterson and Guy Yeldell.

CREIGHTON COURSE MOST PRACTICAL

The Creighton university college of commerce, finance and journalism, in addition to preliminary training, is directed at the problems met by graduates, not in the first few years of business life, but in the period beginning a few years after entering business, when the opportunity for real executive responsibility confronts them.

It trains them to early positions of responsibility, positions that could only be reached by a lifetime of apprenticeship.

During the summer months the college maintains an office at 1236 First National bank building to assist the student in planning a business course.

York.—Mrs. Anna Van Gordon, 61, of Gresham, died at a York hospital Saturday after a long illness.

VAN SANT SCHOOL IS ALL BUSINESS

When students enter the day classes of the Van Sant School of Business they are put at once upon a business basis as to hours. Those entering for the full training for stenographic positions, eventually leading to the secretarial work, are assigned to a program covering 870 hours of class work, with approximately 370 hours of study and practice.

Thus, for eight hours daily over a period of 150 working days, students in this school are under supervision of several instructors, all experienced in business as well as in teaching. This insures the practical character of the training.
