

Farmers Not in Debt, Survey by U. S. Bank Shows

More Than Half of "Typical Section" Free of Encumbrance — Discourages Propaganda.

Farm lands in the middle west are not heavily encumbered with debt, a survey of 80 sections of land in a typical middlewestern farming district just completed by the Federal Land bank of Omaha proves, and discounts political propaganda which recently has lamented the dire financial straits into which the farmer was supposed to have fallen.

For the purpose of getting at the facts as to the average mortgage indebtedness of farms in the district served by the Federal Land bank of Omaha, its investigators chose 80 sections of land surrounding Palmer, in Pocahontas county, Iowa. The only reason for picking this particular district is that it is typical in value and farm operations to the middle western farming section in which the bank transacts most of its business. This land is valued at $200 an acre.

As a result of the survey the bank reports that 58.3 per cent of this 80 sections is free from debt. Of the remaining 41.7 per cent of the 51,200 acres but 5.6 per cent are encumbered more than $100 an acre, 10.5 per cent carry a debt of $100 or less an acre; 13 per cent are encumbered for $75 an acre or less, and 13.6 per cent for $50 an acre or less.

The survey further substantiates the opinion of economists and financial experts that whatever difficulties the farmer may have suffered, the remedy is in his own hands, and that agriculture of the middle west is working out its own solution to the problem without interference from the administration of any so-called political "cure-alls."

Husband Charges Wife Threw Dirt on His First Mate's Grave

Hans Sleck of Millard, middle-aged, acted as his own lawyer in the suit of his wife, Johanna Sleck, for divorce, heard Friday in domestic relations court.

Mrs. Sleck said that soon after their marriage in 1919 he told her she had only "half a set of brains." She said he spent $6,000 of her money, never earned a dollar for her, left her, saying he didn't want to live with her. She said she was afraid of him.

Sleck had several bulky objects in his pockets and Judge Day ordered a deputy sheriff to search him. They proved not to be dangerous weapons, but only pocketbooks full of papers, which Sleck said were "his witnesses."

Nebraska Women May Be Asked to Serve on Juries

Will Be Drafted If Supreme Court Sustains Appeal of Man Convicted of Assault.

Nebraska women may be called for jury service in the future should an appeal, now before the Nebraska supreme court, be decided in favor of the plaintiff. A man, found guilty of assault with intent to wound, had pinned his hopes of freedom on the success of the appeal.

Under the constitution of Nebraska no woman may serve as a juror. Under the constitution of the United States a woman may serve in any capacity on a jury.

Steve Boras was tried and convicted in Judge Charles Leslie's court for shooting and wounding W. L. Tindell. The jury which heard the evidence was composed entirely of men.

Attorneys John O. Yeiser, sr., John O. Yeiser, jr., Joseph Lovely and Lawrence Fredrickson appealed the case on this ground. They contend that the defendant was not given a fair trial since the federal constitution definitely declares "the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

The right to vote, the attorneys point out, carries with it the right to serve on any jury for which one is fitted. The jury commissioner, the attorneys declare, purposely struck the names of all women from the jury panel for that term of court under the state statute.

"The jury commissioner in leaving women off the list of 3,000 names, purposely discriminated against sex because of past servitude and practices of subordination," says the appeal.

The 19th, 18th and 14th amendments to the constitution of the United States are cited as grounds for the appeal.

Should the appeal be upheld the women of Nebraska will be called on for service on juries and the sections of the constitution and statutes of the state which now govern jury duty will have to be changed.

Mr. Wadley was a civil war veteran. He came to Jefferson county in 1875, settling on a farm near Old Plymouth. Funeral services Thursday at Plymouth Methodist church were conducted by Rev. Martin.

Another Fight in Chicago Court Means Jail Cell

Judge Threatens to Incarcerate Belligerent Attorneys If Last Week's Battle Repeated.

Chicago, July 25.—If there's any more fighting in Judge John J. Sullivan's courtroom both—or all—participants will go to jail. The great Saal divorce suit is still on. It was during a session last week when 100-pound Attorney Charles Erbstein won the heavyweight championship of the court when he blammed 200-pound Attorney Albert Fink on the nose.

Erbstein represents Henry G. Saal, 50-year-old millionaire phonograph maker, the complainant.

When H. T. Roberts, erstwhile friend of Saal and now a witness for Violet Fiel Saal, 23, was testifying today, Erbstein suddenly asked: "Did you say you knocked a quart of blood from my nose?" "I did," replied Roberts, "and will yet," as he half started from his chair. Roberts is a big man. Erbstein jumped to his feet.

"When?" belligerently retorted the pugnacious attorney.

"Another fight in this court, and the participants will go to jail," thundered Judge Sullivan. It was the usual day's thrill. Quiet reigned thereafter.
