

Loeb Was Actual Slayer of Youth, Defense States

Final Touch of Grotesque Added to Strange History by Testimony of Dr. Bernard A. Glueck.

expected the witness to spend his lunch hour at a task of forgery. Defense attorneys Darrow and Bachrach, however, fairly warbled their sense of "insults." Then they went out to lunch.

When both had been swallowed, the doctor resumed his testimony, at the afternoon session, with a quotation of Loeb's reaction to the thought of death on the gallows.

"Well, it's too bad a fellow can't read about it in the papers."
To the prospect of long imprisonment:

"I wonder if I could arrange to have all the newspaper clippings about me saved until I get out."
Leopold, said the witness, gave answers to the same questions just as disconcerting, if not quite as flippant: "I would rather hang than betray my dignity by revealing the secret of my life and thoughts."

Whatever secrets of life and thought are still Leopold's after a week of expert vivisection of both, he may keep forever, according to defense counsel, who announced that neither defendant will be called to testify under any circumstances.

Twenty Students Called.

They will plead with many tongues but not their own. Twenty university student friends of the pair will be called to give their under-graduate version of the alienists' final finding that Loeb—

"is suffering from a disordered personality; the nature of his disorder is primarily in a profound pathological discord between his emotional and intellectual life. We might designate it as a split personality."

And Leopold—
"is a paranoid personality, suffering from an exaggeration of the ego and a profound disorder of judgment."

These are Dr. Glueck's terminology, not very different from that of his two alienist colleagues of the defense and the terminology that has never failed to bring a foam of remonstrance to Crowe's lips. By now any word beginning with the consonant "p" is a red rag to Crowe, be it psychology, psychosis, personality, paranoid or pickles and he begs to be informed which one of them means what he and the spectators mean by "bughouse."

Film Actress Sues Mining Magnate

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gallagher.

By International News Service.

Los Angeles, Aug. 6.—While a jammed courtroom waited today for resumption of testimony in the suit brought by Ann Luther, actress and estranged wife of Ed Gallagher of vaudeville fame, who seeks $100,000 from Jack White, mining millionaire, for alleged breach of a contract to start her in pictures, hoping that many notables of the moving picture world already mentioned in the case would be called as witnesses, interest centered in letters, telegrams and notes made public by Miss Luther.

All of these, the actress claimed today, she had received from White. Supporting the letters was a telegram Miss Luther avers was sent her by White the night she left on her return journey to New York after coming here to arrange with him the details of the motion picture company she claims White promised to form for her. The telegram read:

Los Angeles, Cal., July 9, 1922. Miss Ann Luther, St. Francis Hotel, San Francisco, Cal.: Fond recollections and best wishes accompany you. I sincerely hope that you arrived safely. Love, Jack."

'Death Trap' Set for Mine Bandits

Posse Abandons Plan to Flood Workings With Gas Fumes.

By International News Service.
Grand Junction, Colo., Aug. 6.—All attempts to flood the Palsade mine, near here, with chlorine and sulphur fumes in an effort to "gas" the besieged bandits who have been hiding in the mine for four days were abandoned today and a "death trap" was set near the mouth of the underground workings in the belief that the men will be starved out.

Members of the posse that are guarding the portal and exploring the inner chambers of the mine declared that they saw only two men yesterday and it is believed the third desperado was fatally shot in a gun battle that ensued when he made a dash for liberty early in the week.

Business is virtually at a standstill in the little settlement of Palsade while citizens join officials who are besieging the mine.

By Associated Press.

Grand Junction, Colo., Aug. 6.—Death by bullets from the guns of guards working under federal and county officials today awaited the three men suspected of a $15,000 post-office robbery, who are hiding in the workings of an abandoned mine at Palsade, near here.

A. W. Deming, postal inspector, who is co-operating with County Sheriff Watson in the effort to take the three fugitives, issued orders to the guards to shoot to kill if any of the three suspects are sighted.

This order followed the completion of a death trap at a point 200 feet in the main entrance of the mine. The three men are known to have visited that point in the workings at a late hour each night. Today the guards strung electric wires to places near the spot, arranging two groups of lights, one on each side of the place where the men meet.

If the men visit the place late at night or early in the morning, one of the guards, who is stationed at a point of vantage, will pull a switch and the place will be flooded with light. Other guards, who lie in wait for the men, will fire with deadly intent, in accordance with the order issued by Inspector Deming.

The plan to kill the three men was inaugurated after officers and guards, who have been besieging the mine since they traced the men to the mouth of the mine Sunday, gave up hope of taking them alive.

RAIN ASSURES FINE CORN CROP

Humboldt, Neb., Aug. 6.—A much needed rain in this vicinity has assured a fine crop of corn.

Geneva, Neb., Aug. 6.—An inch of rain fell here Monday night and was timely for the corn fields. High wind blew down the big chautauqua tent, property of the White-Meyers bureau, and put lights and telephones out of service.

Albion, Neb., Aug. 6.—A rain of 2.21 inches fell here Monday night. Small grain is all in the shock and will prove a good crop. Corn is making rapid progress and will win the race with Jack Frost if the season proves an average one.

York, Aug. 6.—Rainfall of .44 inch Monday night over York county relieved a spell of extremely torrid weather. The mercury for several days registered around 93 degrees.

Tourist Reports Crops Are Best in Eastern Nebraska

Beatrice, Aug. 6.—Wallace Robertson, president of the Beatrice National bank, and family, are home from a 5,000-mile auto trip to points in the east. In speaking of crops, Mr. Robertson says he saw nothing on the route that would compare with eastern Nebraska. In Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa he saw some good corn, but much of it appears to be immature or backward. Conditions were never brighter for a bumper crop of corn in Nebraska than at present, according to Mr. Robertson.

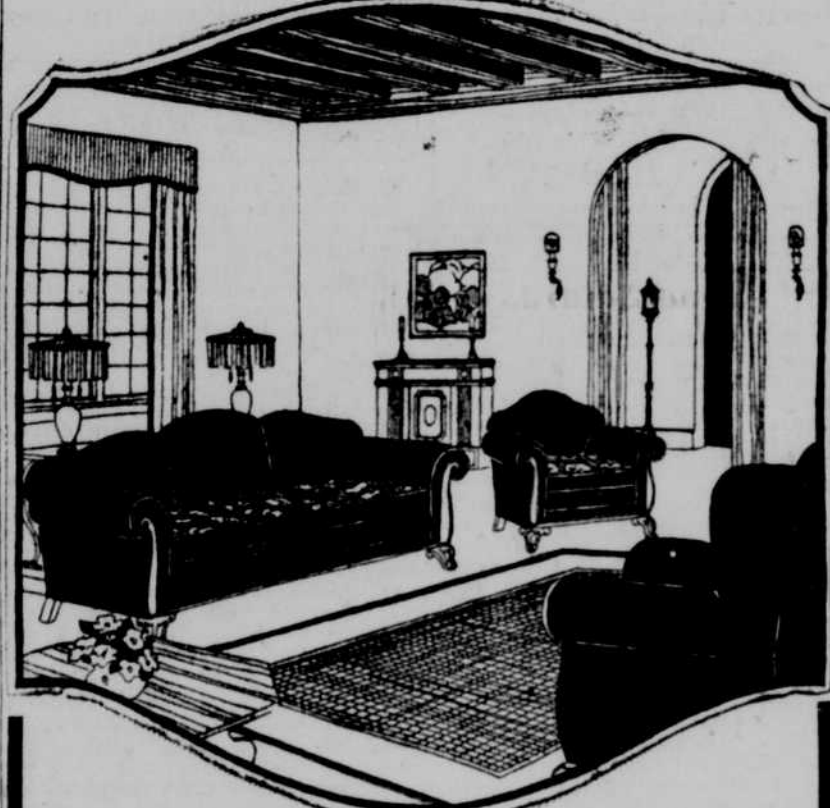

Motor Cop's Mother Hurt When Riding With Son

Shenandoah, Ia., Aug. 6.—Miss J. W. Egan, mother of George Egan, motor officer, received a severe cut when riding with her son which caused her to go to a local hospital. Egan, who has caught many speeding motorists, says he was not speeding at the time of the accident but turned aside sharply to avoid another car and hit a rut.

Oklahoma Klan Candidate Leads

Tulsa Congressman Ahead of Ousted Governor on Early Returns.

By Associated Press.
Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 6.—Congressman E. B. Howard of Tulsa, Klan-favored candidate, held a slight lead over J. C. Walton, ousted governor and Klan opponent, in the race for the democratic nomination for the United States senate as returns from yesterday's primary trickled in early today.

Unofficial returns from 1,137 precincts of the 2,996 in the state gave Howard 27,482 and Walton 23,814. The three other candidates in the race are apparently out of the running.

In the republican senatorial contest W. B. Pine of Okmulgee, Klan-endorsed candidate, had a lead of nearly 8,000 over his nearest opponent, Eugene Lorton, Tulsa publisher and adversary of the Klan, when returns from 456 precincts were tabulated.

W. B. Pine, Okmulgee oil man, held a commanding lead for the republican senatorial nomination in the returns from 412 precincts.

The vote: Pine, 12,892; Eugene L. Lorton, 5,441; Hugh Scott, 3,481, and C. B. Leedy, 444.

Driver Weeps in Death Hearing

Mention of Little Victim of Crash Brings Tears.

James Decker, 19, 314 North Nineteenth street, wept Tuesday in municipal court as he was ordered held for trial by Judge Frank Dineen in connection with the death of Thomas Healey, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Healey, 2955 North Thirty-seventh street, in an auto collision July 22.

The state claimed that Decker was driving a truck at an excessive rate of speed when he collided with the car driven by Mrs. Healey. He was exonerated of blame by an inquest jury and later was rearrested on order of County Attorney Beal who alleged he has found new evidence.

The defendant waived examination. Judge Dineen set his bond at $2,500. "I can't raise that, judge," pleaded Decker. "Why have I got to be kept in jail for six months waiting trial?"

"How about that little boy under the seat that can never get out?" returned the judge.

Decker burst into tears.

"Steel Horses"

It has been told in story fashion that the grizzled, hardened stagecoach drivers smiled politely when "tender-feet" from the east told them about big steam-driven "steel horses."

It wasn't long before puffing out of Omaha went the first train of what is now the Union Pacific System—the world's finest railroad.

Only sixty years ago—with in the lifetime of many Omahans—the first ground was broken for the Union Pacific.

Today, instead of the little stage-coach town, stands

Omaha—America's fourth center of railroads.

It is estimated that 6,000 railroad passengers come in or go out of Omaha every day over the thirty-two railroad lines that enter the city. Our city is served with railroads that have a trackage of more than 62,000 miles.

As the city develops Electricity must keep pace. More than $3,000,000 worth of construction work is now being carried on by our Company, in order to keep ahead of the Community's growth.
