GERMANY ACCEPTS RUHR AGREEMENTS

Dawes Plan May Now Be Enforced

France Will Evacuate Within One Year—Berlin Stock Exchange Quotations Continue Firm. Satisfaction Is General

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND, National Service Staff Correspondent. Berlin, Aug. 15.—Germany has accepted the Dawes plan for the Ruhr within a year.

Quotations on the Berlin stock exchange continue firm and business circles are pleased. The German delegates to the London conference had sought a withdrawal from the Ruhr within a shorter time than one year.

Germany has bowed to what she considers an ultimatum from the allies and America and accepts the agreements on the Dawes plan despite the continued occupation of the Ruhr for another year—because she cannot do anything else.

This decision was arrived at after almost continuous deliberations of President Ebert and the party leaders since last night, with constant exchanges of views with the delegates at London by means of telegraph and telephone.

At the same time the acceptance of these terms puts the Marx cabinet to face with a crisis which, in view of the wrought up state of popular opinion, it is doubtful if the government can survive.

Stock Exchange Firm. Through the tactics adopted by the German delegates in London there was at first produced an undue optimism, though the delegates then put themselves in the position of suffering a big defeat.

Therefore, the instructions from Berlin to the delegates were to not give a straight-out and out "yes" but to make counter proposals and attempt to persuade Premier Herriot to make some dramatic concession, like evacuating some of the big cities or drastically cutting the number of troops, which would enable the German cabinet to square itself before the people and help persuade the reichstag to pass the laws to enable the enforcement of the Dawes report.

It is significant of the attitude in the business circles in London the Berlin outlook in London the Berlin business exchange continued firm, fearing the break-up of the conference much more than the continued occupation of the Ruhr.

Dawes Loan Affected. But there can also be no doubt, speaking for the population generally, that the four months' difference in the stay of the French troops between what Premier Herriot demanded and what the Germans were willing to concede will be just the difference between Germany having a real will to fulfill the program and Germany fulfilling the agreement under the prick of bayonets. This difference may be of the highest importance to American investors in the Dawes loan.

Most extreme cynicism has taken the place here of the high hopes that were held for a new order in Europe. The French are believed here to be holding on to the Ruhr so desperately in order to use it as a club for commercial concessions from Germany when German faces France alone in trade negotiations.

German Agreement May Mean Arms Conference

Decision of the Germans to accept the agreements on the Dawes plan which carries with its evacuation of the Ruhr district within one year may mean early action by President Coolidge in fulfillment of the promise made in his speech of acceptance to propose another world limitation of arms conference as the next step toward world peace.

In his speech the president said: "When the reparations plan is in operation, I shall deem it an appropriate time to approach the great powers with a proposal for another conference for a further limitation of armaments and for devising plans for a codification of international law. I personally should favor entering into covenants for the purpose of outlawing aggressive war by any political means."

Acceptance of the Dawes plan by the Germans does not immediately place the reparations scheme in operation. It will be necessary for certain laws to be passed by the reichstag. The president may not deem the time appropriate for the arms conference until such laws have been passed.

Jury Finds No Evidence Upon McCoy

Inquest Verdict Is That Mrs. Mors Was Slain by Unknown Person—Suicide Not Mentioned. Alleged Slayer Guarded. Los Angeles, Aug. 15.—The coroner's jury investigating the death of Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, found shot in her apartment Tuesday night and in connection with which Kid McCoy, ex-pugilist, is being held, late today found the woman came to her death from a gunshot wound inflicted by a person or persons unknown.

The verdict made no mention of whether the woman's death was a case of suicide or homicide.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 15.—Fearful that in view of startling new developments in the case, he may attempt suicide, the authorities today ordered a heavy guard placed over Norman Selby, better known as "Kid" McCoy, in the city jail where he is held accused of the murder of his sweetheart, Mrs. Theresa Mors.

District Attorney Asa Keyes ordered that two special guards be placed outside the cell of McCoy and these be maintained both day and night. Keyes' action was said to be based in part on the fact that Hubert Kittle, dare devil aviator and bandit, friend of McCoy, killed himself here three months ago rather than face trial for alleged participation in the Arcadia bank robbery case.

Dejected Appearance. The officers investigating McCoy's case and others who have talked to him have been impressed by his dejected appearance and his despondent attitude.

"McCoy would have committed suicide if he had not been captured," said Assistant Captain of Detectives Herman Clinton. "He'd kill himself now, if he had a chance."

While precautions were being taken to guard against any suicide attempt on McCoy's part, it appeared that the coroner's inquest over Mrs. Mors' body, scheduled for this afternoon might have to be postponed.

Los Angeles, Aug. 15.—The sun that killed Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, for whose death "Kid" McCoy, ex-pugilist, is being held, was held within two feet of her head, a fact that might tend to support McCoy's story of the woman's suicide, the autopsy surgeon announced today.

Father John Williams, 89, Venerable Rector of St. Barnabas Church, Dies

Worked as Machinist While He Studied for Work in Ministry.

Father John Williams, venerable rector of St. Barnabas Episcopal church, died at 7:15 at his home, 4308 Dodge street, after an illness of several years. Father Williams was 89 June 21. His wife and son, Leslie, were at his bedside. His other three sons, William, Edward and Lyman, are now on their way to Omaha.

"Mother and I wish to say that Bishop Shaylor has been very kind during the last illness and that Father Hoisapple was with him Thursday night and practically all of today," said Leslie Williams last night. "It was also father's expressed wish that no flowers be sent," he concluded.

Father Williams was the rector of St. Barnabas church for 37 years. He was known to his friends and parishioners as "the grand old man." He retired from active church work in 1914.

He was born in County Kerry, Ireland, on June 21, 1835. He came to America with his father and uncle when he was 14. For 10 years he worked as a machinist in Lynn, Mass., Boston and New York. He felt an inclination to study the ministry and entered the Seabury divinity school where he remained five years working during vacations at his trade in the east.

Ordained in 1863, Father Williams went to Hastings, Minn., and came to Omaha in 1877. He started his work at St. Barnabas church when the church had but 30 members. For 37 years he conducted his services in the old frame structure at Nineteenth and California streets. The rectory was just south of the church.

The rector was for years identified with the Knights of Labor and was called in on many occasions to help arbitrate labor troubles and address labor meetings.

Courage of Coolidge Is Praised Here

President Reflects "Sober Judgment of U. S.," Says One Commenter on Notification Address.

"Courage and common sense" was the epitome of President Coolidge's speech of acceptance, as expressed Friday morning by the many Omahans who commented on the president's presentation of national affairs.

Not only on account of the thoughts outlined by the president did the speech meet with favorable reaction, but the clear and concise style of expression won admiration everywhere.

Congressman Willis G. Sears stated that he believed everyone should read the speech, regardless of party affiliation. Another Omahan expressed the thought that the president shows that what the farmer needs is economic rather than political readjustment. The president's views on national finance impressed many.

"The president reflects the sound, sober judgment of the American people at this time," was another comment. "The address is typical of Calvin Coolidge; terse sentences and broad common sense," was an opinion heard while several men were discussing the speech.

A few of the many comments heard Friday morning are quoted as follows: Congressman Willis G. Sears: "Every one should read the president's address. It is worth the time of every American. The speech takes one back from jazz music to home, sweet home. My impression of President Coolidge while I was in Washington was that no president could have a greater sense of responsibility of his high office. His speech is a concrete and concise presentation of our present-day national life."

Courage of Coolidge Is Praised Here

President Reflects "Sober Judgment of U. S.," Says One Commenter on Notification Address. Clear, Effective, Verdict. "Courage and common sense" was the epitome of President Coolidge's speech of acceptance, as expressed Friday morning by the many Omahans who commented on the president's presentation of national affairs.

Not only on account of the thoughts outlined by the president did the speech meet with favorable reaction, but the clear and concise style of expression won admiration everywhere.

My impression of President Coolidge while I was in Washington was that no president could have a greater sense of responsibility of his high office. His speech is a concrete and concise presentation of our present-day national life."

Abel V. Shotwell: "The acceptance speech of the president is additional evidence that the estimate of the American people of him as a great man and sound thinker have been right in every respect, and that he should be continued in the leadership of the nation; that the ruling principle of his administration has been the application of common sense and that policy will continue to be applied in the solution of all of our problems, both domestic and foreign. It is a clear and satisfying statement of the questions of the day and their solution. It will appeal to the good sense of the country and be accepted as a sincere statement of principle by an honest and fearless leader, and not as a lot of wild promises for the purpose of getting votes, and with no expectation of fulfillment. The nation is fortunate in having a man like Calvin Coolidge to lead at this time."

John W. Towle: "I was very much impressed and pleased with President Coolidge's speech of acceptance. He has covered every important issue and has done it in a manner so simple and so clear that it cannot help but lend confidence to the business and farming interests."

"I wish to especially commend that portion of his speech which touches on economies in elections. One of the greatest wastes we have in this country that comes from our election system is the unnecessary and extravagant expenditure of funds for campaign purposes. I cannot help but feel that the policies outlined by Mr. Coolidge, conscientiously carried out, will put this country substantially prosperous in the future and it is my belief and hope that he will be returned to the office of president so that he may be able to put in force his wonderful ideas."

New Air Mail Center Here Helps Omaha

Decision to Make Hub of Service Here Greeted With Joy by Chamber Leaders. Announcement by Col. Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, that within six weeks Omaha will be made headquarters of the air mail service of the United States was received enthusiastically here Friday.

To aerial enthusiasts the announcement is another dream come true. Speaking in Omaha a month ago, Colonel Henderson said the day was fast approaching when air lines for mail and freight would run not only east and west, but north and south from Omaha.

Boost for Omaha. "It is a wonderful thing for the city," said Ralph Kiewit, chairman of the chamber's aerial transportation committee. "And it is only the start. Colonel Henderson's picture of Omaha as the center of a web of air lines is destined to become a reality. If only the air mail is given the support it deserves there can be no doubt of Omaha's future on the aerial standpoint."

"Omaha's important position as an aerial center will be strengthened," said Randall K. Brown, chairman of the chamber's federal relations committee. "It will make the city a distributing point for mail."

"It means more publicity for the city," said Harley Conant, chairman of the chamber's bureau of publicity. "The fact that it will bring even a score of families to Omaha helps, but is not so important as the fact that the air mail is a continual news-producing institution. Flying has a general interest, and air mail flying will never become so commonplace but that its triumphs and occasional difficulties will be of interest. Moreover, it places Omaha in closer touch with a department of the government. And this is bound to be beneficial."

More Space Arranged. Custodian Charles Saunders of the federal building, announced Friday morning that he expects to make room for additional air mail forces which will come to Omaha as a result of the change. It is understood that Carl F. Egge, superintendent of the air mail, has been offered space for the general headquarters in the army building at Fifteenth and Dodge streets, but that he prefers to have offices in the postoffice.

Superintendent Egge is out of town, driving west along the air mail route to the west coast, according to Postmaster Black. There is much rejoicing over the fact that Egge, a former Omaha man, who came to Omaha with the opening of night air mail flying, will remain here permanently.

Hough Seen Thursday—Iowa Road

Man Sought in Connection With Girl's Death at Bedford Borrowed Rifle From Farmer.

Girl May Be Identified

By JEROME TOWSLEE, Staff Correspondent The Omaha Bee. Bedford, Ia., Aug. 15.—With Elmer H. McKinney, farmer, of Herrick, S. D., hurrying here to identify what he believes is the body of his daughter, Lillian, 22, and Sheriff P. A. Lainson of Pottawattamie county checking a report that Carl Hough, wanted for questioning in connection with the girl's death, was seen at Oakland, Ia., Wednesday night, and again Thursday, authorities are beginning to unravel the tangled threads of Taylor county's most sensational case on record.

Despite denials by Hough's mother, who lives on a farm five miles from Oakland, that her son has been at the farmhouse since he stopped there last Sunday with a bobbed hair girl, whom he introduced to her as his wife, four persons living in or near Oakland have declared that Hough was in Oakland on Wednesday and was driving east on the White Pole road Thursday afternoon.

Hough Armed. From Will Chambers, farmer, living not far from the Hough farm, I learned that Hough is armed with a rifle lent him by Chambers. The man said he wanted the rifle to shoot wolves, Chambers said.

Frank Rutt, manager of an Oakland battery station, and Milton Purdy, an Oakland filling station, both say, without hesitation, that Hough, or as he is also known, Carroll Lewis, was in Oakland Wednesday afternoon.

L. L. Ellinger, farmer living on the White Pole road, is authority for the statement that Hough was driving on the road Thursday afternoon between 2 and 3.

Working with Sheriff Lainson is Hiram Long of the state bureau of criminal investigation. The two men were in Oakland this afternoon and later drove to Avoca. They are sure to be confident that Hough is in the vicinity of his mother's farm.

Await McKinney's Arrival. Meanwhile, plans for an inquest here are held up pending the arrival of McKinney. Hough is said, by McKinney, to have eloped with his daughter August 5.

A new theory was advanced by Sheriff Parrish Friday morning. "Person whose name might have been responsible for the girl's death," said Parrish.

"Her escort, the 'mystery man,' found he had a body on his hands. In panic he dumped it over the bridge and drove away. The bruises and contusions in evidence on the girl's face and shoulders could easily have been caused by her striking the ground."

Sheriff Parrish pointed out today that several persons who had viewed the body had declared that they had

Good Morning, George!

By Cinnamon Toast. Good morning, George! Good morning, Mr. Toast! What bobbed up this morning, George? Now that's a pretty good lead, Mr. Toast, 'cause it reminds me of something which happened last night. I was calling on my girl and she says she had a big surprise for me. I says to lay her cards face up and let me see what has she got. So she says the next time I come around to take her to the movies I would have a pal with bob hair.

I says to her that's just the same kind of a surprise you can get in the hush at our house, and so I don't touch it ever, and bob hair ain't no pleasure thing to stroke. Then I says you can pass me the ring that makes you for me. That was a awful blow to her because she likes to fix her back comb a lot so the folks can see what a nice glimmer she is totin' on her third left.

Just then the door opened and in walks her mother and she says, well how do I look with my bob which I just got me. I took hold of the back of the chair and just stared at her and kept on saying nothing 'cause I was too dumb founded to speak.

She says just you wait a minute we got another surprise for you and in walks my girl's grandmother and she says, well I look with my bob which I just got me. I took hold of the back of the chair and just stared at her and kept on saying nothing 'cause I was too dumb founded to speak.
