READY FOR SHIPMENT. Only the lid to be poked down and these three little puppies are ready for shipment, fit and snug in a shoe box. But judging by their sad expression they would rather be just where they are.

IZAAK WALTON OF FUTURE. Like a painting from life is this picture of the barefooted fisher lad. His name? He was much too busy getting his worms ready for bait to be disturbed as to name and age.
