

Omaha Attorney Dies Suddenly on Eastern Visit

W. J. Connell Is Victim of Indigestion at Atlantic City; Opposed Bryan for Congress.

William J. Connell, 78, prominent attorney of Omaha, died suddenly in his apartment at Atlantic City, N. J., Saturday morning of acute indigestion.

He had gone to Atlantic City on July 22 to visit his two grandchildren, Helen Connell and Mrs. Florence Brown, children of his late son Ralph, and his great-grandchild, Helen, daughter of Mrs. Florence Brown.

Mr. Connell had spent the winter in Miami, Fla., with his daughter, Mrs. E. A. Creighton of Omaha, and was apparently in good health when he returned to Omaha on April 1. He had continued his practice of law up to the time of his death.

In June before the courts were closed he tried a case with his nephew, Herbert J. Connell, attorney. Mr. Connell was a senior member of the Omaha Bar association and of the Nebraska Bar association. He came to Omaha in the pioneer days and often told of driving through herds of buffalo in order to get to the place where courts were held.

Born in Canada near the Vermont line, he came to Omaha in 1867 as a young man and was a clerk in the store of Tootle & Maul. Later he took up the practice of law and was admitted to the bar in 1870. He studied law in the offices of Colonel Chase, B. B. Kennedy and James M. Woolworth.

Two years after his admission to the bar the republicans elected him to the office of district attorney of the Third district, which then included Douglas, Lancaster and 10 other counties. He was re-elected in 1874 on account of his good service.

Ran Against Bryan.

Mr. Connell was city attorney for four years during the administration of Mayor Boyd and established his reputation as a lawyer. He served one term in the national house of representatives being elected as a representative from the First congressional district. He was defeated by William Jennings Bryan and in the fall of 1890 returned to the practice of law.

In 1892 he was again elected city attorney. For 20 years he was attorney for the street railway company.

Mr. Connell had just completed "A Review of the Judges and Decisions of the Supreme Court of Nebraska," from 1867 to 1924. It was his intention in his writing to make the review a fair criticism as well as a merited commendation of both judges and decisions.

Mr. Connell attended nearly every term of the supreme court since its organization. He was familiar with every decision and knew every judge. A short time ago he completed an autobiography which was elaborately bound and very complete.

Funeral in Omaha.

Mr. Connell's wife died several years ago. The large Connell mansion on Thirty-seventh and Farnam streets was sold some time ago and while in Omaha Mr. Connell made his home in the Blackstone hotel. His offices were at 1919 South Tenth street.

He is survived by one son, Dr. Karl Connell, who will leave Saturday evening for Chicago to meet the body, which will be returned to Omaha; two daughters, Mrs. E. A. Creighton of Omaha and Mrs. J. M. Raymond of Lincoln, Neb.; six grandchildren, Barbara Connell, daughter of Dr. Karl Connell; John D. Edward and Billie Creighton; sons of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Creighton, Florence Connell and Helen Brown Connell, daughters of the late Ralph Connell; two sisters, Mrs. Laura Sanford and Mrs. Mary Haskell of Columbus, O.; two nephews, Herbert and James R. Connell, sons of the late Dr. R. W. Connell of Omaha; a niece, Mrs. Malcolm Baldrige of Omaha.

Funeral services will be held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. A. Creighton, date to be announced later.

JAILOR DENIES ALLEGED LAXITY

Jailor Joe Sherry said Saturday he has heard nothing of reports that trusties supply cigars to juvenile prisoners.

He also said trusties never are allowed to go outside the jail without a jailor in charge of them. This followed reports that a man under long penitentiary sentence has been seen outside the jail.

"That man is serving one year and his time will be up in 10 days," said Sherry. "Besides, he never performs work outside the jail unless accompanied by a guard."

Angered Woman Demands Ring of Divorce Judge; Shakes Digit at Hizzoner

"I want my ring!" exclaimed Mrs. Margaret McGinnis, shaking a finger under the nose of Judge Day in juvenile court Saturday.

It was at the end of a session in which she and Mrs. Margaret Gallup, 4123 North Twenty-fourth, exchanged rapid-fire remarks, in which stealing sugar, poisoning chickens and calling names were mentioned.

John Gallup was discharged and Judge Day said he would keep the ring until Mrs. McGinnis could prove she owns it. John said he found it.
