

CINDERELLA SCARF. A contrast in black and white, this stunning scarf is quite as attractive as its pretty owner.

AND IT'S SUMMER SPORT, TOO. Up on the high stretches of Rainier National Park, Washington, the park's visitors are enjoying a rather unusual summer sport amid ice and snow. P. & A. photo.

SUZANNE TAKES TO SIDELINES. Mlle. Lenglen, world's champion woman tennis player, has been indisposed lately, but she seems fairly comfortable here as she referees a match between Vincent Richards and M. Borotra held in London. P. & A. photo.

READY, SHOOT! But Rex Beach, the author, seems to take the "shooting" rather calmly as one of his many dogs takes a paw at the movie crank on the grounds of Mr. Beach's estate at Ardsley-on-the-Hudson. P. & A. photo.

MOTHER LOVE. All the evidence of deep maternal affection and filial devotion are here in one of the most remarkable animal pictures ever taken, snapped at the Grant Park zoo in Atlanta, Ga. P. & A. photo.

STRUGGLING AGAINST NATURE. Continual rains have made it impossible for Cal Townsend to use his teams in working his farm near Balcoe, Mo., just over the Iowa line, so he has been compelled to recruit every member of his family for work in the fields in order to bring forth a crop. Even the little girls take a hand. Photo by Dewell.
