

Bullet Fired by Assassin Kills Deputy

Italian Legislator Slain in Vengeance for Death of Matteotti; Slayer Captured.

DENIES AID OF ACCOMPLICES

By International News Service Milan, Italy, Sept. 12.—There was tragic reversion from the Matteotti today when Armando Casalini, a fascist member of the chamber of deputies, was shot and mortally wounded on his villa estate today by a private guard. Casalini died a few hours later.

It was first believed that crime was one of private vengeance without any political significance, but it proved that the assassin had acted from a political motive.

Announcing the preliminaries of the fight to battle the nation was warned that "if the overwhelming increase in the use of cigarettes is not immediately checked the welfare of the whole nation will be seriously impaired."

OSTEOPATHY A Dependable System of Spinal Treatment

Bentley—Miss Arpie Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Smith of Cortland, died at a hospital in Lincoln after a brief illness.

Ex-Actress, Helplessly Maimed, Sits by Window After Conquering Pain, Keeping Her Cheerful Smile

"Time Heals Everything and It Will Heal Me," She Says Optimistically.

New York, Sept. 12.—Persons fond of asking why the wicked should flourish like the green bay tree, why the young father of a poor family should be struck down to his death by accident while some worthless, unloved old man may pass the hundred-year mark, why evil days come to the brave and why the coward and the cutthroat may pass unscathed—these people may ask themselves another riddle.

It concerns the pitiful case of Dorothea Antel. Dorothea, young, beautiful and once a talented actress, for the last five years has not risen from her bed. Nor has she yet been able to lie upon it. In rigid sitting position, sustained by a steel packet, Dorothea has nevertheless triumphed over the fiery dragon of pain that rest during the day, the better to ravage their victims by night.

And under her fighting armor of steel Dorothea Antel must surely wear the red badge of courage!

You don't see the badge right away. First you see the invalid in a room as lovely as a stage setting. She is as faintly as a bisque doll. Golden curls, a light blue, quilted silk dressing gown, pillows piled up behind her—dimpled cheeks. All soft and pretty with no suggestion of pain or cruelty.

Injured Spine in Fall. Then a friend lifted the sheet—and disclosed the cruel thing that happened to this young girl.

Five years ago, when she was hurrying after a performance, down a rickety staircase in an old theater, Dorothea Antel fell and injured her left leg and her spinal column. Since then she has fought and won an endurance contest with all the devils that beset a hurt body. Massage is out of the question—to soothe nerves or restore circulation—since the injured girl cannot endure the agony of a vigorous touch. When the bed linen is changed and the mattress turned, she must take opiates to endure being turned over. Only once in a few weeks can this operation take place, yet the linen is always fresh and sadly unwrinkled—owing to the rigidity of the bed's occupant.

"Time heals everything, and time will heal me," Dorothea says. "I had to have a home and an income, and I had to lift my mind out of this horror. So I went into business."

The nurse, meanwhile, had ever so gently lifted up the sheet to show her patient's injury. The miracle of human resilience—that a lovely young woman so stricken can smile as she tells you about it all!

Partly Supports Self. The left foot is dark, swollen and useless. "The doctors gave me no hope—at first, you see, I had no money—and

DOROTHEA ANTEL.

It was hard to get the right attention. Then I knew I would have to systematize my life, even though the suffering could not be avoided."

In the cozy apartment at No. 609 West 134th street, Dorothea Antel has an agency for a well known and reliable brand of hosiery. She has a magazine subscription agency. She takes orders for holiday cards.

In spite of her own efforts at self-support, friends insist upon helping. So that many prominent actresses and other professional women plan a benefit for their beloved Dorothea—among them Eva La Gallienne, Minnie Dupree and Mildred Holland.

"Mildred Holland got me the stocking agency, and Minnie Dupree has also done wonders for me. I could never have got on without them. Sure She Will Get Well. There is a darling little child, actress of 8, Minerva Bartz, who comes every day to pray five minutes with me. She is sure her prayers will be answered and that I shall get well, but—well, sometimes I get so weak from the pain that my hands shake. I never sleep more than four hours a night.

"At first I lived in a dark place. For months I didn't see the sky. Then I got my friends to select this bright apartment, and I ordered my bed put near the window. By day I can see the sunlight, and at night I can look at the stars."

At the bedroom window hang draperies of thick rose-colored material. Dorothea explained that they had been made from old stage costumes—explained with a smile. She believes she will get well and has established the superiority of her own will power over events in a way to shame those whose spinal columns and legs are intact but whose souls are inert.

20,000 March in Omaha's National Test Day Parade

Celebration Here Pleases Officers of Seventh Corps Area; Turnout Rebuks to Bryan.

Brennan's Independent Pipe and Bugle Drum corps. Four army motor trucks brought boys from Father Flanagan's home to take part in the parade. Four trucks were filled with girl employees of the Woodmen of the World, while one truck accompanied the Women's Overseas league. A reserve motorcycle corps was organized for the parade by Capt. George Knight, Red Cross canteen workers and Daughters of Veterans participated in the celebration.

Dr. A. S. Pinto advised Mayor Dahlman not to leave his home on Friday. Although suffering from a cold, the mayor wanted to attend the exercises. City Commissioner John Hopkins represented the mayor.

Sermon on Patriotism. Rabbi Frederick Cohn enrolled in the Red Cross division Friday morning. He delivered a sermon on "Patriotism" at the service Friday evening at Temple Israel.

Around 7,000 registrations for the Defense day parade were received at the defense test committee's office in the Army building. Miss Mary Kennedy has been in charge of the registration.

Two hundred twenty-five nurses were organized by Mrs. A. F. Leermakers for the parade. Miss Gladys Kiplinger, in charge of the motor corps, secured 600 cars for volunteer service.

Two hundred employees of the Wright & Wilhelm company organized the 60th ordinance corps and marched in the parade. The 22nd signal battalion was organized by employees of the John Deere Plow company.

The Ford assembly plant organized motor transport command No. 381 for the parade. Five cars carried members of the Custer Relief corps in the procession.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Lincoln, Sept. 12.—Thousands crowded down town streets in Lincoln tonight to witness Defense day festivities arranged by civic and military organizations of the city. Following a parade Earl M. Cline, past state commander of the American Legion, spoke on "The Meaning of Defense Day" at the city auditorium.

The streets of the city were colorful all during the day because of uniform decorations with American flags carried out by loyal citizens of Lincoln.

In the evening at 7 a parade more than a mile in length marched on the principal streets of the city in charge of Frank D. Eager, marshal. Thirty-five organizations participated.

The Nebraska National guard from Crete played in front of the auditorium as the crowd assembled there. John J. Maher presided, while Dr. W. T. L. Moore of the First Baptist church pronounced the benediction. Following is the line of march of the parade, one of the largest in the history of Lincoln:

By Universal Service. London, Sept. 12.—Lady Maxim, widow of the famous inventor, has donated to the nationalist association the most valuable portion of the late Sir Hiram's library. It is a large case of books, which were much admired by the late Lord Morely, John Burns and W. E. Gladstone.

Among the volumes are the Dresden edition of Ingersoll, and first edition works by Darwin, Huxley, Herbert Spencer, Tyndall and Voltaire. Before her marriage, Lady Maxim was Sara Haynes of Boston.

Farm Dwellers Use More Milk Than City Families

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Farm families use three times as much butter per capita and twice as much milk and cream as do dwellers of the city, according to a statement issued by the Blue Valley Creamery institute after a survey of 8,650 farms by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The American farmer consumes his own dairy products generously, the survey states. During 1923 the average farm individual consumed 83 gallons of milk (including cream), while the average for the entire United States was only 52 gallons. This would equal 39.1 gallons for the average city dweller.

During the past 10 years the annual per capita consumption of milk on farms has increased from 72 gallons to 80.8 gallons and butter from 36 to 38.2 pounds.
