

Chinese General Asks Foreigners to Leave Towns

Manchuria Leader Announces Intention to Bomb Two Cities and Attack Ships of Enemy Force.

Chinese commercial interests, supported by semi-official foreign expression, were exerting today pressure to effect an armistice.

By Associated Press. Shanghai, Sept. 21.—A Japanese agency publishes an announcement from the Fengtien (Mukden) headquarters of Chang Tso-Lin, saying that the seventh mixed brigade of Chihli (Peking) government troops, coming from Jehol, northeast of Peking, arrived at Chaoyang, in Chihli province, near the Manchurian border, Friday, surrounded and attacked the vanguard of the second Fengtien army.

According to the communication, the Fengtien, strengthened by reinforcements, launched a counter-attack and repulsed the enemy, with the result that 200 Chihli soldiers were killed and 400 wounded.

After that, says the account, the Chihli forces attacked again with three battalions of infantry and a company of cavalry. They again were repulsed. The Fengtien casualties in the encounter were 50 killed and wounded.

Campaign Outlined. The reported Fengtien plan for the drive on Peking calls for the first army, commanded by Chiang Teng-Hsuan, to oppose the second Chihli army, under Feng Yuh-Siang, known as the "Christian general," who is expected to attack. The second Fengtien army, commanded by Li Ching-Lin, will attack the third Chihli army, under Wang Hui-Ching, then drive toward Jehol by way of Chaoyang. The third Fengtien army, led by Chang Hsueh-Liang, is to attack the first Chihli army, under Peng Shou-tsun, near Shanhaiwan, on the extreme southwestern border of Manchuria. The fourth Fengtien army, commanded by Chang Teh-Siang, is stationed in reserve on the second line, with Chinchow, Manchuria, as the base. The fifth and sixth Fengtien armies, commanded by Wu Chun-sheng and Han Lan-Chow, comprised principally of cavalry, has been ordered to capture Chihfeng, in the northern part of Chihli, and then advance toward Jehol, co-operating with the second army.

LADY VESTEY'S MOTHER IS DEAD

Superior, Neb., Sept. 21.—Mrs. Mathilda Brodstone, 79, died here Saturday following a short illness. Mrs. Brodstone is the mother of Lady Evelene Vestey, who was married in New York a few weeks ago to Lord William Vestey, head of the Vestey Cold Storage and Packing company, the largest international packing company in the world. A son, L. T. Brodstone, publisher of the Philadelphia West, also survives.

Before Lady Vestey left Superior to wed Lord Vestey she purchased the largest residence in Superior for her mother to live in.

Mrs. Brodstone died before she had moved into the new residence.

For years Mrs. Brodstone traveled over the world with her daughter, who was then Miss Evelene Brodstone, chief auditor for the Vestey interests. Eight years ago Mrs. Brodstone and her daughter returned to Superior.

Ambassador Resigns.

By Associated Press. Rome, Sept. 2.—Prince Gelasio Caetani, Italian ambassador to the United States, who has been on vacation in Italy since early summer, has requested permission to resign his office and Premier Mussolini has consented. He will return to the United States next month, fulfilling his duties as ambassador until the new year.

Zanni Delayed.

Hong Kong, Sept. 21.—Major Pedro Zanni, the Argentine "round the world flyer," who was expected here today, is not looked for now until tomorrow. An advice from Hainan stated that he had been forced to postpone his departure from that city until tomorrow morning because of a leak in his gasoline tank.

Ex-Follies Girl, Wife of Millionaire Publisher, Given Her Child and Judicial Scolding for Evil Associates

"Go, and Take the Child," Shouts Judge, After Lecturing Defendant in Divorce Case.

By LLOYD LEHRBAS, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Sept. 21.—"Go and take the child."

The mother, Mrs. Dorothea Campbell Young, formerly of "The Follies," clutched a little girl to her breast with a sob.

The father, Courtland H. Young, millionaire publisher of "Breezy Stories" and other magazines, slumped down in his chair and rested his head on his arms.

In that setting, Supreme Court Justice Levy awarded the custody of the 3-year-old daughter of the Youngs to the mother, at the end of an all-day session. The court echoed with scolding charges against father and mother.

Child Plays "Lady."

At one time during the hearing, after the little girl had "played lady" by using a lip stick on her tiny lips and had powdered her nose, Justice Levy had intimated that neither parent should have custody.

Young instituted the proceedings as a prologue to the divorce action he is bringing against the former "Follies" beauty.

A private detective testified Mrs. Young often had met Edward Mooney, a chauffeur, and had kissed and hugged him in public on numerous occasions.

A negro maid in a New York apartment house testified Mrs. Young had given numerous "wild revels" there.

Counsel for Mrs. Young contended that many of the witnesses against the mother had been influenced by Young's money and had pictured a sordid mirage, at variance with the facts.

Given Scolding.

Justice Levy said: "The circumstances, however, give rise to a justifiable suspicion against Mrs. Young, but I can not find that she is immoral. Rather she has, at times, been guilty of folly and indiscretion. Mrs. Young has made it impossible for me to give him custody of the child. The mother has almost done the same. There is very little choice unless the mother sees her responsibility in a new light."

And, then, turning to the mother: "I fervently hope you will merit the trust I repose in you by being a good mother to this baby. It would be well to discontinue these associations that may be misconstrued. You must keep this baby in an atmosphere of decency and give it advantages of culture, things greatly needed in raising a little daughter."

Western Union Ex-Cashier Held in Fund Shortage

Payrolls Padded, Auditor Charges, Following Check; Accused Man Refuses to Talk.

Sam M. Hall, 163 Drake Court apartments, former cashier of the Western Union Telegraph company, was arrested Saturday afternoon on a charge of embezzlement arising from a shortage alleged in the accounts of the company.

The shortage was discovered two weeks ago when T. O. Haeblich, company auditor, checked over the accounts.

Haeblich declares that the shortages cover a period of more than five months and represent payroll padding. Hall, it is charged, added amounts to cash requisitions from bosses of line crews.

The total amount of the shortage is $3,000.

First intimation of irregularities in the company accounts came last July. Nothing definite was discovered but the auditor reported that the books were not quite right in some way.

As a result of this report a second audit was ordered. This audit was completed two weeks ago and Hall's resignation was requested.

M. J. Hurley, a clerk in the Western Union office, declared Saturday night that he knew nothing of Hall's habits while outside the office. The company had Hall's address on file as 842 Park avenue. It was only by accident that the police discovered where Hall really lived.

Hall has refused to talk to police at all. He neither denies nor affirms the charges which have been brought against him.

Police are now holding Hall incommunicado. His bond has been set at $5,000.

OMAHA SUSPECT HELD FOR JURY

John Sapp, Omaha, charged with bootlegging, Saturday waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury under bond of $500. At the time of his arrest by Motorcycle Officers Harry Saint and William McDaniels, Sapp begged the officers to release him, denying ownership of the five gallons of wine and two gallons of whiskey found in the car. He told the arresting officers that he had been hired by a man in the country to drive the car to the Bluffs. He was, however, unable to remember his alleged employer's name.

Artisans Begin Construction at Ak Show Grounds

Carnival Area Named "Bull-fornia"; Shows Will Open Tuesday.

Carpenters, painters, electricians and other artisans began work Saturday on the carnival grounds, which this year have been put back at the old location with the main entrance at Fifteenth and Capitol avenue.

On next Tuesday at 1, the gates of the "joy zone" of Ak-Sar-Ben will swing open. "Looney" Nash, chairman of the amusement committee, says he is going to buy the first ticket or perish in the attempt.

Lachman Shows Here.

The carnival area has been named "Bull-fornia" in honor of the show which held forth in the den this year. The Lachman Exposition shows, a gigantic aggregation of amusements are unloading from their special train.

The shows have two lands, 20 different attractions, featuring the big water spectacle, "Neptune's Daughters," said to be unsurpassed by any other company anywhere.

The minstrel show of 20 people with their own band and orchestra is in a class by itself. The wild west show is a real thriller. There are also numerous free attractions.

The South Omaha street cars will run on Fifteenth street instead of Fourteenth street starting Monday, because the carnival grounds will extend across Fourteenth street.

"Bull-fornia" will not close until October 4. It will be closed, however, on Sundays.

First Ak Horse Show.

The festivities of Ak-Sar-Ben are growing more intense daily. Last week the horse show was the only attraction. This week there will be the races and the carnival daily. And next week there will be the electrical parade the night of October 1 with the grand entry of King Ak-Sar-Ben XXX.

On October 2 will be the military parade, second annual track and field meet of the Seventh army corps, and exhibition by the Sixteenth observation squadron, Fort Riley.

The ball will be the night of October 3 with coronation of the new king and queen. During that day there will be also the mid-west polo tournament.

And on Saturday, October 4, there will be the first annual Ak-Sar-Ben horse show, a new feature.

BOY IS INJURED WHEN HIT BY AUTO

$15,000 Lawsuit Quickly Forgotten and Once Again Cupid Is Victorious

Love and lawsuits are seldom synonymous, but the $15,000 suit for damages filed in district court Saturday by Margaret S. Pike, public stenographer at Hotel Paxton, against Conrad C. Eckhard, part owner of Vogue clothing stores, may result in complete and lasting harmony between the two, in the opinion of the plaintiff's attorney, John M. McFarland.

Mrs. Pike charged that Mr. Eckhard used caveman tactics in wooing her, asserting that his method of obtaining kisses was particularly violent. She explained that they had "kept company" for several years and considered themselves sweethearts.

But, complained Mrs. Pike, in her petition for damages, Mr. Eckhard became especially impetuous last February, and as a result she suffered crushed wrists and a dislocated vertebrae.

All this was apparently forgotten by Saturday evening, however. For shortly after Mrs. Pike's suit was filed, the two met in her attorney's office, and when they left together.

"We have been together all day," said Mrs. Pike, at her apartment Saturday evening. "I have nothing to say, but you may talk to Mr. Eckhard."

"Well," said Mr. Eckhard, "we've been together all day and I can state that we are getting along fairly well. We expect to be together again tomorrow, also. In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if we got along quite well for some time to come."

World Fliers at Tucson, Arizona

Airmen Are Presented With Blankets at Public Meeting at University.

Tucson, Ariz., Sept. 21.—Uncle Sam's round-the-world fliers completed another lap in their long journey today, landing at the Tucson aviation field at 1:15 mountain time, after an uneventful flight from El Paso.

Thousands of persons were massed around the field when the big planes, flying in close triangular formation, appeared over the rugged Rincon Mountains, circles the field twice and then landed at two-minute intervals.

Tucson will no doubt be remembered by the world fliers as one place where they were not stormed, but welcomed by the city's people, by enthusiastic crowds when they clambered from their machines. A guard of United States cavalry, assisted by National Guardsmen and sheriff's deputies kept the crowd at such a distance from the planes that the pilots and their mechanics had the field practically to themselves.

They taxied their planes into position, stepped from them and then walked to a point where the guards were keeping even the official reception committee back of the ropes.

Guests at Luncheon. A varied program awaited them here. Immediately after leaving the field they were guests at a luncheon given by local reserve corps officials.

During the afternoon the fliers visited the United States Veterans' Bureau hospital here. A public reception was held for them in a local hotel. Later the fliers and mechanics devoted an hour to going over their planes.

This evening the world fliers were presented with Indian blankets at a public meeting held at the University of Arizona. The gifts of various Arizona cities.

Governor G. W. P. Hunt, who had planned to welcome the fliers to Arizona, suffered an acute attack of appendicitis in Phoenix yesterday. In his place he sent his secretary, H.

Two Cars Damaged by Runaway Train: No Persons Hurt

Power Fails, Brakes Slip on Wet Rails and Trolley Travels Backward for Three Blocks.

Several automobiles were damaged and several motorists narrowly escaped injury shortly after 7 Saturday night when street car No. 944, piloted by Motorman George Cooper, was unable to negotiate the Dodge street hill and slipped backwards.

The trolley had started up the hill and had almost reached Nineteenth street when the power seemed to fail, the wheels failed to grip the rails, made slippery by a light rainfall, and the street car traveled backward into the automobile of A. A. Thorspecker, 2735 Saratoga street.

Thorspecker, attempting to dodge the street car, backed his machine into one driven by E. G. Clemenson, 637 South First street, Council Bluffs, who was directly behind him.

Clemenson, in turn, attempted to dodge the Thorspecker automobile and cut across the street. He crashed into two parked automobiles on the north side of Dodge street.

The street car ran on down the hill and was finally stopped at Sixteenth street. Luckily, no one was hurt and the only damage was to the automobiles.

Motorman Cooper declared that the power was useless to drive the street car and the brakes would not hold because of the slippery condition of the rails.
