New York, Sept. 20.—Responding to the influence of easy money, bond prices last week turned definitely upward after fluctuating within a narrow trading area for a fortnight. Of the major industries, that of steel shows gradual betterment. A decided turn for the better seems probable in textile manufacturing. Differences between employers and employees as to wages can be adjusted without strike or lockout. The prospect of agreement seems good.

There is no sign of improvement in the oil business. The copper industry which seems to have huddled its troubles, again is dull and depressed. Much better reports come from automobile centers and the rubber people seem to have gotten rid of their troubles. News of the building industry is not wholly optimistic. In some cities it is declared, there has been over-building, which will entail unpleasant readjustment.

LONDON CATERS TO SMALL INCOMES

London, Sept. 21.—With the American "invasion" of London in full swing, the manager of a big Oxford street store has estimated that the visitors from over the Atlantic were spending somewhat more than $500,000 a week in the English capital.

London shopkeepers have awakened to the fact that by far the greater number of Americans who come to England these days are people of moderate means, who watch their shillings and pence as carefully as does the frugal Briton. There are still visiting millionaires who amaze the English by the prodigality with which they scatter money about, but there are only one millionaire where there are a thousand people of relatively small income.

Hence Bond street shopkeepers are finding it to their advantage to mark the prices on their window displays. This has stimulated trade with the visitors. Ten years ago Bond street shopkeepers thought it beneath their dignity to have price labels in the windows.

The German, Walter Cron, a Friedrichshafen hand, hid himself inside the LZ-120, which was turned over to Italy in 1919, several hours prior to the start of the flight southward, and was not discovered by the crew until the ship had passed well over Switzerland. Cron was turned over to the Italian police when the dirigible arrived at its destination.
