$2,500,000 School Bond Project on November Ballot

Program Includes Extensions on Various Buildings; Junior High Plans to Be Delayed.

An immediate issue of $2,500,000 in school bonds will be asked at the November election, the board of education decided Tuesday night.

Further issues of $1,500,000 in bonds will be required within the next four years to provide the rapidly mounting enrollments, according to a report of the special committee named by the board, consisting of the chairman of the standard committees.

Junior Schools Delayed. Under the program tentatively adopted by the board by its informal vote Tuesday, the proposed two new junior high schools will not be built at once, though junior high school work will be carried on at a new Benson High school, at South High school and at North High school.

Tentative Program.

The tentative program to be carried out through the present $2,500,000 issue provides for a new junior-senior high school at Benson; a complete South High school; an auditorium and gymnasium at Central High school; new buildings for Scranton, Farnam, Walnut Hill and Washington schools, and a new building northeast of Krug park, and enlargements at Beals, Belvedere, Benson, Central Benson West, Highland, Mason, Minne Lusa, Rose Hill and West Side schools.

The exact program will be presented in a resolution to be brought in by the teachers' committee at a called meeting before the next regular session.

One might cost a fortune but millions sell at 5¢ each

One of the keenest struggles in the world is to get things we want at a low price. It is the whip in competition. It is responsible for much industrial and commercial progress.

Yet within our lifetime prices in general have steadily risen.

There are exceptions to this rule.

With volume and through scientific manufacturing and distribution, a few products have created a force that serves like an iron roof, holding the price down.

Coca-Cola is one of them.

When Coca-Cola was put on the market in 1886, the popular, convenient coin, 5c, was adequate to pay for ingredients of the highest quality.

Then prices steadily rose. But the 5c price made Coca-Cola a quick seller. And Coca-Cola would not be Coca-Cola with cheaper ingredients. There was begun an effort that has proved far-reaching—to maintain the highest possible quality in a beverage at the 5c price.

Coca-Cola was steadily gaining in volume. This volume made possible the most modern manufacturing methods—with the precision, perfect sanitation and labor-saving of machines.

The same efficiency was applied to distribution. Fourteen regional factories were built to assure quick deliveries and cut freight cost to a minimum. Twenty-four strategic warehouses were established. Twenty-three hundred jobbers with floor stocks were added to the organization. Twelve hundred and fifty Coca-Cola bottling plants in as many cities were built.

And now! The dollar is worth only about half what it was in 1886, but the nickel still buys the highest quality in a beverage.

Except for tremendous volume and established distribution, it would be impossible for a beverage of this quality to be sold at such a price.

The matter of price maintenance, of course, is voluntary on the part of retailers. The courts have so held. But among the 415,000 Coca-Cola retailers the conviction is established, because the facts prove it right, that the 5c price gives a volume and turnover with greater profits than would a higher price.

Suppose the pure products from nature and nine sunny climes that are blended in Coca-Cola were gathered for a single glass, the beverage prepared and served to you ice-cold, "delicious and refreshing!" It would cost a fortune.

But backed by the great industry that it is, the millions of glasses and bottles of Coca-Cola are sold at 5c each.
