EARLY BASEBALL SCANDAL REVEALED

"Brookhart Has Bolted," Says G. O. P.

Automatically Repudiated Party by Attack on Coolidge and Dawes, Iowa Committee Decides.

"Result of Conspiracy"

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 3.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, in denouncing President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes, republican nominees for president and vice president, in his Emmetsburg speech today, automatically repudiated the republican party, the republican state central committee decided after an all-day session here today.

The committee issued a statement late this afternoon outlining its views on the Brookhart situation.

It is our belief that this action on the part of Senator Brookhart, the statement said, "has been inspired by the heads of the La Follette party for the malicious purposes of attempting to turn the attention of the voters from the real issues of the campaign."

"Self-impelled Bolt"

Rather than declaring Senator Brookhart no longer a member of the republican party, the committee declared in its statement that "the self-impelled bolt from republican ranks by Senator Brookhart amounts to a repudiation of and a bolt from the republican party," brought about himself.

"The self-impelled bolt," the statement adds, "is the result of a conspiracy to defeat the right of the people to elect a president at the polls and to force such an election by a congress selected two to six years ago."

By Associated Press.

Emmetsburg, Ia., Oct. 3.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, storm center in Iowa politics since his election two years ago, and who started republicans early this week with a denunciation of Charles G. Dawes, vice presidential candidate, formally opened his campaign for re-election here today with an address, in which he attacked President Coolidge and "machine party leaders."

The party, Senator Brookhart charged, had strayed from the ideals of its founders, while the "machine organization," he declared, had refused to recognize the will of the people.

Referring particularly to his own differences with leaders of his party, Senator Brookhart said that although he had been nominated "by 200,000 republicans, without a machine and without money," and was "opposed by Wall street's money and by the president's power," his nomination had never been recognized by President Coolidge as the voice of republicanism in Iowa.

Outlines Issues.

Senator Brookhart declared republican leaders refused him favor because he had differed on so many occasions with the national administration, naming a dozen issues over which he opposed the ideas of President Coolidge. The ship subsidy, repeal of the Esch-Cummins law, the Mellon tax reduction plan, the soldiers' bonus bill, relief for the penniless and Muskie Shoals were some of the issues upon which he could not agree with the president, the senator said.

"I belong to the farm bloc; the president belongs to the Wall street bloc," he declared, in designating President Coolidge as "the machine republican candidate."

The recital of differences was prefaced with the statement that the senator had promised to "do as much for Coolidge as he would do for me," and that he wished the voters to know what each had done for and to the other.

Won't Quit Party.

"I have never had a thought of leaving the republican party," the senator said, by way of reply to reports that he would leave the party.

Labor Paper in Omaha Declares Coolidge Is Man

Mid-West News Deserts Ranks of La Follette and Wheeler Because of Indifference of Wage Earners.

The Mid-West News, an Omaha periodical which has been supporting the La Follette-Wheeler independent ticket in the national campaign, has just come out for the re-election of Calvin Coolidge.

This is one of the most important switches made so far in the three-cornered fight between Coolidge, La Follette and Davis. The paper is a labor and agricultural journal with a large nationwide circulation. J. A. Lochray, editor of the Mid-West News, has returned from two weeks' tour of eastern states and in a signed statement in his paper declares that the La Follette forces have failed in their effort to line up labor.

"Wherever I have gone among the La Follette supporters I have found nothing but pessimism—a condition brought about by the general indifference, if not actual opposition, on the part of the rank and file of the American wage earners toward the campaign of Senator La Follette and Wheeler," the statement reads.

"Campaign Destructive One."

"This attitude, Lochray asserts, has sprung from the inherent common sense and conservatism of these wage earners themselves." He characterizes the La Follette-Wheeler campaign as a destructive one "aimed against established institutions long recognized as a part of our American life." The statement continues: "American institutions and American standards are at stake in this campaign. American wage earners are vitally concerned in the protection and preservation of those institutions and standards. They prefer the standards which they have today, standards which are superior to those of all other countries and infinitely preferable to the rosy pictures of a millennium which La Follette and Wheeler promise them when the house in which they are now living has been torn down."

"No Halfway Ground."

"La Follette is an enemy of the existing order of things. He has accepted the unqualified endorsement of the socialists and other radicals. There is no halfway ground. Between our institutions and those of socialism, the forerunner of communism, there lies an impassable chasm. We must choose one side or the other. La Follette accepts the support of the socialists who expect him to put their doctrines and theories into force, and he must be classed as a socialist by all thinking people, even though he does not label himself as such.

"La Follette stands on the socialist side of the question. On the other side stands Calvin Coolidge, with a constructive program for the preservation and betterment of our institutions."

Coolidge Record Good.

In his statement, Lochray quotes from several of the president's messages to working men to demonstrate Coolidge's interest in the advancement of wage earners. The president's labor record, the statement asserts, is above reproach. His determined position in favor of economy and tax reduction should appeal to labor, Lochray believes.

The editor's statement concludes: "The president wants to help everybody's business by making easier the business of making a living.

"Because he stands for American institutions, for common sense and economy in government, and for the rights of all under the constitution, Calvin Coolidge will be re-elected, and his victory, in my judgment, will mean a more prosperous and happy people, not only in America but in Europe as well, during the next four years."

Deputy Sheriff Young of Platts mouth denied today Larison's claim that the road was bad at the scene of the accident and that Larison's car had been struck by another machine, causing the fatal accident.

Investigation led the Cass county authorities to the belief that Larison was intoxicated at the time of the tragedy, when bottles of alleged liquor were found near the scene after the wreck.

Larison and his mother, who was taking care of Mrs. Dodge, were taken to jail at the coast this summer. Officials claim that the Larison car was driven directly off the road into the bank where no conditions justify the mishap.

Indian Heir to $1,000,000 Land

Phone Lineman One of Ten Descendants of Walking Eagle.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Falls City, Neb., Oct. 3.—Louis Roubidoux, half-breed Indian, may soon quit his job as lineman for the local telephone company and live a life of ease, having been advised that he is one of 10 heirs to an estate of several thousand acres of land in the White river country west of Pierre, S. D., left by his uncle, Walking Eagle, Sioux Indian, who died on the Cheyenne reservation 40 miles west of Pierre, 27 years ago.

The exact acreage of this estate was not announced, but is reported to be worth upward of a million dollars. The other nine heirs live on the Indian reservation at White Cloud, Kan., 20 miles southeast of Falls City.

When Walking Eagle died he left two sisters, the only surviving heirs in his line, but they could not be located, so the land reverted to the government in trust and for 27 years the Indian commissioner's office has been handling the affairs of the estate. The value of the estate grew each year, as most of the land was leased out to large cattle concerns at $1.25 per acre annually.

The first intimation that he was a potential plutocrat came to Roubidoux, whose mother, Mrs. Jennie Roubidoux, was a sister of Walking Eagle, when he received a letter from the Indian agent in charge of the reservation, asking for the names and addresses of the nine other heirs. The letter indicated that the division of property would be made at an early date.

Attempt to Bribe Red Sox Player

Ban Johnson Discloses Secret Affidavit of Lou Criger, Boston Catcher, on Offer Made Him in 1903.

Tuned Down $12,000

By Associated Press. Chicago, Oct. 3.—President Bar Johnson of the American league to-night made public a hitherto secret affidavit revealing that crookedness was attempted in the first world series ever played when in 1903, Lou Criger, famous catcher with the Boston Red Sox, contesting the Pirates, was offered $12,000 to throw games.

The affidavit relates that the attempted bribe was made by a professional gambler, introduced to Criger two years previous in the presence of John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, and Wilbur Robinson, pilot of the Brooklyn Nationals.

President Johnson said the affidavit was made by Criger in February, 1923, at a time when the famous catcher, rapidly falling in health, was starting for the west, abandoning all hope of living longer than a few weeks.

"It was a statement of a man going west to die," President Johnson said. "Fortunately, Criger is alive today, however, and is living in Nevada."

Met Him First in 1901.

Criger, in his affidavit, declared he was introduced to a professional gambler of the name of Anderson, whose first name he does not recall, by Robinson in Baltimore in 1901, and that in the company of McGraw and Robinson, he spent the afternoon with Anderson at a country bowling club located near Baltimore. Criger said Anderson left the impression that his business was that of a professional gambler.

According to Criger's affidavit, he did not see Anderson again until 1903, when he met him in the Mononahie hotel in Pittsburgh when the Boston and Pittsburgh clubs were contesting in the first world series played after the settlement of the war between the American and National leagues.

Anderson, the affidavit relates, called Criger aside in the lobby of the hotel and offered him $12,000 cash to throw the games so that Pittsburgh would win. He declared that he had inveigled a millionaire oil man to wager $50,000 on Boston and that Anderson desired to bet on Pittsburgh.

"Why did you single me out for this crooked proposition?" Criger asked Anderson, according to his affidavit.

"Because you're the only one capable of turning the trick," Anderson replied.

Johnson Passes Series.

Anderson, Criger's affidavit said, told him he could "feather your nest for life," but the famous catcher refused to have anything to do with the proposal. Criger said he never mentioned the attempted bribery to anyone, with the exception of Cy Young, famous pitcher, with the Cleveland ball club, and later to President Johnson during a discussion of the 1913 scandal of the world series between Cincinnati and the Chicago White Sox.

President Johnson tonight telegraphed Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, refusing to attend the world series games starting at Washington tomorrow. He said he had no desire to see the Giants engage because of the "intolerable condition that has permeated the club," and that the Brooklyn club should have been selected to represent the National league. The Giants, he said, should have been disqualified.

"I have no desire to take anything away from Washington, who won its championship honestly, but I have no desire to see the Giants engage the Senators," Johnson said. "It is my opinion that others of the Philadelphia players, in addition to Heinie Sands, were approached in an effort to have games thrown."

Howell Stresses Administration Economy Policy

Points Out Reduction in National Debt Due to Rigid Program of President Coolidge.

By P. C. POWELL, Staff Correspondent The Omaha Bee.

Kearney, Neb., Oct. 3.—Senator Howell spoke today at Litchfield, Ravenna, Gibbon, Shelton and Elk Creek.

As at all other places he has had large audiences and his calm, businesslike presentation of the issues of the campaign had telling effect. In his addresses today he laid stress upon the "cash register" program of the republican administration.

"When the republican party assumed control of the country, in 1921, following the great war," said the senator, "the national debt exceeded 24 billion dollars, of which seven billion dollars was in short time securities demanding early refunding, and that in the face of the fact that government bonds were selling materially below par. The national expenditure for the year ending June 30, 1921, amounted to $5,539,000,000. This, together with the enormously increased state, county and municipal requirements throughout the country resulted in a tax burden unequalled in the history of the nation."

"The first thing demanded was economy and more economy. To meet this situation congress enacted the 'budget and accounting' act. It might be well to note that it was a republican congress that adopted this act after bitter opposition from democratic members."

Debt Reduced.

"Through the adoption of this measure the reduction of the interest on the public debt and the termination of some 100,000 civil employes on the public pay rolls, national expenditures were decreased during the three years following an average of $1,877,000,000. This decrease has been progressive and the progress will operate as the expenditures for the year ending last June were more than $2,000,000,000 less than for the year ending in June, 1921.

"In addition, during this three-year period the public debt was reduced $2,750,000,000, which carried with it a reduction in interest charges alone of $125,000,000 annually. There have also been two reductions in the income tax rates and the elimination of many special taxes. In the face of these huge reductions there was a surplus last June of nearly $500,000,000.

"When all of this is considered in conjunction with the fact that all government bonds are now selling above par—that unemployment is negligible—that all short time securities have been either retired or refunded on favorable terms, and that last year was the most prosperous in our history, why should it be seriously believed by anyone that there is a sentiment throughout the country for supplanting the present republican administration."

Returns to Omaha.

Senator Howell also outlined to his audience the details of many congratulations from those who pledged wholehearted support during their reign. They doffed their habiliments of state during the evening and entered the dance floor.

The balcony of the den was filled with visitors who merely wished to view the coronation and the dancers. Comments that the ball was in keeping with this event of former years.
