Queen's 12 Princesses Given Pearl Necklaces by Ak-Sar-Ben Board

At the eleventh hour before the Ak-Sar-Ben coronation, Mrs. W. R. Wood, wife of the chairman of the ball committee, clasped two-strand pearl necklaces with jeweled fastenings, about the necks of the 12 princesses of the queen, the gifts of the Ak-Sar-Ben governors.

To the four duchesses she presented imported evening beaded bags. The queen's gift, the Ak-Sar-Ben signet ring, with the crest wrought in an amethyst, was presented to her majesty, after the crowning.

For the first time, the governors this year presented the king with a signet ring, a masculine duplicate of those given the past two reigning queens.

WYMORE'S ANNUAL STYLE SHOW OPENS

Wycome, Neb., Oct. 3.—The second annual style and fashion show staged by Wycome merchants, under the auspices of Anderson post No. 25,

American Legion, was opened in Marble hall here Thursday evening and will continue three nights. A record crowd, estimated at over 2,400 persons, from Wycome and surrounding country, filled the hall so completely that maneuvering of the living models was difficult. The streets were blocked with autos. Music was by the Pollyanna Synopators orchestra of Lincoln, a ladies' orchestra. Twenty-five Wycome merchants had displays, operated booths and gave prizes. The models were Wycome young men and women and the styles shown included all late patterns and designs. Republican and democratic headquarters were both in a corner of the hall and political buttons and literature were distributed. A home talent "hobo" band and the impersonation of "Jiggs," "Maggie," Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford excited much merriment. Saturday "Barney Google" and "Spark Plug" will appear. Dances are held each night after the show.

South Sioux City Wins Bridge Suit

Federal Judge Woodrough Denies Petition of Company Against Tax Levy.

Federal Judge J. W. Woodrough decided Friday that the school district of South Sioux City had the right to levy and collect taxes upon the Sioux City bridge. He denied the petition of the Sioux City Bridge company for a permanent injunction, enjoining the levying and collection of the tax, which in 1921, amounted to more than $10,000.

The bridge tax case has been in litigation for the last 35 years, since the completion of the structure in 1888. When the present suit was instituted a temporary injunction was granted.

Upon the motion of Wymer Dressler, attorney for the bridge company, Judge Woodrough extended the temporary injunction until Dressler appeals the case to the United States circuit court of appeals, as he announced his intention. Dressler posted a $5,000 bond.

In the decision, Judge Woodrough ordered the bridge company to pay the costs of the suit. The bridge company contended that the bridge property was not in the school district, boundary of which coincided with the high-water mark.
