THIS WAS THE GAME FOR NEW YORK

Many Seek Tickets for Dawes Meet

O. E. Engler, G. O. P. County Chairman, Swamped With Requests for Seats at Talk Here Friday.

Auto Parties Organized

Continued requests came today to O. E. Engler, chairman of the republican county committee, for tickets to the Dawes meeting at the Auditorium next Friday evening.

In order that all those living in nearby towns may take a part in boosting the meeting special posters have been printed at the request of republicans in those towns.

These posters will be supplied to the Dawes boosters in these places and they will post them in store windows and in other convenient places.

Calls Four in. "We believe that the very shortness of the notice may be a help," said Mr. Engler today.

"Here in Omaha the interest is encouraging. Every republican worker and hundreds of those who are not ordinarily active in arranging for political meetings have also been in touch with me and everywhere I have been asked, 'how can I help?'"

Representative Committee. The reception committee will represent all phases of the business life in Omaha. Invitations were being prepared today to go to this committee.

The names will be made known tomorrow. Each of these committee members is asked to consider himself or herself a committee of one to make sure that nothing is left undone to make the Dawes meeting a roving success.

"The short time which we have within which to make ready for the meeting makes it necessary that everyone work," said Mr. Engler.

THIRD OIL JURY AVOIDS SUBJECT

Washington, Oct. 6.—The third federal grand jury to delve into the leasing of naval oil reserves finished its work today without mentioning the oil question in its report.

Albert B. Fall, Harry F. Sinclair, E. L. Doheny and E. L. Doheny, jr., were indicted by the first grand jury to consider the case but a second jury was halted when Fall's attorneys, charging it was merely a "fishing expedition" for additional evidence, complained that certain persons were in the grand jury room illegally.

The present grand jury then heard witnesses but no mention of their testimony was made upon adjournment. Under the law the government may present evidence to still another jury if it deems it advisable.

FAMOUS EDUCATOR DIES IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 6.—Dr. William Arnold Shanklin, 62, president emeritus of Wesleyan university, died suddenly of heart disease in a subway station today.

Rabbit Jumps Through Windshield and Knocks Out 2 of Woman's Teeth

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. O'Neill, Oct. 6.—Miss Teresa Hayden, member of the faculty of the O'Neill High school, lost two front teeth Sunday evening when a jack-rabbit, blinded by the lights of the car in which she, her brother and her mother were returning from Stuart, sprang through the windshield, striking her in the face.

McCullen Carries Campaign Nearly to Colorado Line

Republican Candidate for Governor Stresses Conservation of Water Power Sites in Talks.

By P. C. POWELL, Staff Correspondent The Omaha Bee. Imperial, Neb., Oct. 6.—Adam McCullen, republican candidate for governor, today carried his campaign within 15 miles of the Colorado line. During the day he visited the towns of Hershey, Sutherland, Paxton, Ogallala, Grant and Imperial.

When Mr. McCullen left North Platte in the morning, he was accompanied to the Lincoln county line by Fred McClaymatt, Henry P. Hanson, candidate for the legislature; T. S. McCrane and E. H. Evans, former mayor of North Platte.

At Hershey, J. Sharpley Thompson introduced the gubernatorial candidate. At Sutherland, Will M. Dunn, R. G. Shappell and Frank Coats were in charge of the meeting.

When he arrived at Paxton, State Senator J. S. Kroh and County Attorney L. A. Devoe met the party and conveyed it to Ogallala.

Fred Pease and O. M. Gunnell introduced Mr. McCullen at Paxton. Guests at Luncheon. At Ogallala the party was entertained at lunch by a band of Ogallala business men, including C. L. Countryman, C. C. Worden, L. P. Storey, H. G. Hough, E. A. Smith, C. C. Walbridge, F. J. Siball, Robert A. Goodall and M. E. Haxdall.

Among the Ogallala women who participated in the meeting were Mrs. J. S. Kroh, Mrs. Harry A. Goodall, Mrs. L. N. Porter and Mrs. J. W. Welpiton. A delegation from Grant was waiting at Ogallala. It included Ben F. Hassel, H. B. Hoff, John E. Priest and Dick Bradley.

At Grant, John S. Wise of Hamlet, candidate for the lower house, and P. W. Scott of McCook, candidate for state senate, were waiting to accompany the party to Imperial. En route to Imperial, Mr. McCullen was the oil question in its report.

Throughout the western country there is much complaint over the lethargy of the state administration in road building. The Bryan trick in holding up road building until just before election hasn't proved the best bit popular, and it is generally believed that delay in awarding road contracts will leave many unfinished roads when winter arrives and work on the roads must end.

Mr. McCullen in his talk today continues to stress importance of safeguarding water power sites in the state and repealing the intangible tax law.

He also pointed to the fact that road building must continue and outlined the plan of the Farmers' union for cutting auto licenses in half and imposing a gasoline tax as a means of raising revenue or road building for consideration of the voters.

Must Study Plans. "This plan must be studied thoroughly by communities and before the next session of the legislature public opinion should be crystallized sufficiently so members of the legislature may know what you want done regarding road building, road maintenance and paving for this work," Mr. McCullen told his audiences.

Plainview, Oct. 6.—As a mark of appreciation of his five years' service at the Methodist, Episcopal church, a surprise party of welcome was given in honor of the Rev. G. M. Bing and his wife on their return from the conference and a brief vacation. Addresses of welcome were given by the heads of the various departments of the church and by Rev. L. Conrad in behalf of the County Ministerial association and Rev. W. Dudley in behalf of the community and Congregational church.

Fleaharty's Accusation Gets Laugh

Editor of Literary Digest, in Telegram to The Omaha Bee, Scoffs at Charge Election Poll "Faked."

"Conspiracy Impossible"

William Weaver Woods, editor of the Literary Digest, in a telegram to The Omaha Bee Monday indignantly denies the charge of Harry B. Fleaharty, democratic candidate for attorney general of Nebraska, that the presidential straw vote is being "faked," or that the magazine is being imposed upon.

The New York editor clearly explains in his telegram, the impossibility of postmaster's engaging in a conspiracy to give Coolidge a bigger vote in the poll than he is entitled to. Wood's telegram follows:

"We are surprised that anyone should have been imposed upon by the charge alleged to have been made by Harry B. Fleaharty, democratic candidate for attorney general of Nebraska, that the nation-wide poll of the Literary Digest on the presidential candidates is 'faked' and the lead of the republican candidates is due to the work of partisan postmasters all over the country voting ballots which they have been unable to deliver."

"We have not yet had the opportunity of reading Mr. Fleaharty's explanation in full, all we have seen of it is what appeared in a special dispatch to the New York World of October 6, but if, as he is said to have alleged, republican postmasters all over the country are engaged in a conspiracy to mark the Literary Digest ballots for Mr. Coolidge, will Mr. Fleaharty please explain how it happens that the ballots from Wisconsin show a very strong tendency in that state for Mr. La Follette? Will Mr. Fleaharty explain also how the ballots in California show that Mr. La Follette is running very close to Mr. Coolidge?"

"Conspiracy" Ridiculous. "Human nature being what it is, it is not beyond possibility that of the 370,000 postal employees in the United States some should be weak enough to tamper with the mail but it is safe to assume that there are not so many sinners as to make possible such a conspiracy as Mr. Fleaharty accuses the postmasters of being engaged in. But even supposing there was such a conspiracy, the conspirators would get nothing for their pains except perhaps the loss of their jobs, because no fraud can get past the lynx-eyed vigilance of the expert jury clerks employed on the Digest poll."

"Another point! Supposing there are a few recant postmasters, as Mr. Fleaharty charges, the number of ballots they could mark would be insignificant in a poll of such enormous size as that of the Literary Digest. As to the charge that the ballots of the present poll are undelivered because the addresses are taken from old lists, we should like to emphasize the fact that the lists from which we have taken these addresses were completed in the state of Nebraska during the past summer."

"We have no reason to believe that they would not be made as correctly in such towns as Norfolk and Fremont in Nebraska as in other parts of the country."

Investigation Faulty. "As an illustration of the value of the investigation described in the Omaha dispatch to the New York World, we beg to call attention to the following: Postmaster Bartling of Nebraska City is quoted as saying that from 400 to 500 ballots were received there and 336 are undelivered. Now the fact is that our records show that 2,404 ballots were sent to Nebraska City. If 136 are undelivered, everybody who is familiar with large mailing lists knows that a non-delivery of only 136 out of 2,404 ballots mailed is a remarkable showing of efficiency and the accuracy of our lists. Whenever we have had a nationwide poll during the past years there always appeared critics who for this reason or that attacked the honesty of the poll. The best answer to such attacks is the record of the Digest polls which shows that although they are merely straw votes they invariably have come pretty close to forecasting the results of the actual election."

Hoover Suggests National System of Radio Programs

Secretary Opposes Attempts to Monopolize Air, Says Local Stations Are of First Importance.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Organization of a national system of radio programs through a broadcasters' association, to give service such as press associations do for newspapers, was suggested by Secretary Hoover tonight in an address opening the third national radio conference.

The conference is attended by representatives of all branches of the industry and was called by Hoover to consider the numerous problems of radio development in the United States. Beginning tomorrow morning, the general sessions will be open to the public for presentation of any problem involving the industry.

The addresses tonight were broadcast through a system of 16 radio stations, others in addition to the secretary scheduled to speak being C. P. Edwards of the Canadian department of marine and fisheries and Pedro P. Torres of the Cuban radio service.

Local Stations First. In presenting his views tonight Secretary Hoover reiterated his opposition to any attempt to monopolize the air, declaring that local broadcasting stations are of first importance and must not be driven from the field.

The secretary's suggested plan for a national program association would provide for a self-sustaining system of interconnection of radio broadcasting stations and the offering through those stations the best the nation has in music and entertainment.

"My proposition," Hoover said, "is that the local station must be able to bring to its listeners every important national event with regularity. The local station must be able to bring to its listeners the greatest music and entertainment of the nation, but far beyond this it must be able to deliver important pronouncements of public men, it must bring instantly to our people a hundred and one matters of national interest."

"To this it must add matters of local interest. This can only be accomplished by regularly organized inter-connection on a national basis, with nationally organized and direct programs for some part of the day in supplement to more local material."

Not Governmental Place. "It may be stated with assurance that the greatest advance in radio since our last conference is the complete demonstration of the feasibility of inter-connection. We owe a debt of gratitude to those who have blazed the way. The pioneers have been the American Telephone and Telegraph company in wire inter-connection, and the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company in radio inter-connection through the use of short wave lengths."

Pure-Bred Special Halts in York, Where 2,000 Hear Lectures and Trial of Short-Bred Sire; Then Goes on to Seaward, Where 1,500 Meet Train.

By WILL M. MAUPIN, Staff Correspondent The Omaha Bee. York, Neb., Oct. 6.—A judge, a jury, a prisoner and a good samaritan enacted a drama at York this morning. The judge was impartial, the jury quick in reaching a decision and the prisoner was sentenced to death.

But it was not a human being who was tried and found wanting. It was merely a lazy member of the stock of the C. I. Jackson and Sons farm. Old John Quincy Scrub-Bull, the prisoner, was given little opportunity to speak for himself. He belonged to a passing order of things and had to go.

Coolidge First, La Follette Next in Nebraska, Predicts J. H. Allen

Lincoln Political Seer Forecasts Victory for McMillen and Norris in Races.

"Tower and Power" Allen, picturesque democratic leader of Lincoln, and one of the real political seers of the west, believes that Nebraska will give majorities to both Coolidge and McMillen.

He was in Omaha Monday and made his pre-election prognostication. "Coolidge will carry the state with ease," he said. "La Follette will be second and Davis third. McMillen will be the next governor of Nebraska, and Senator Norris will be re-elected to the United States senate."

Wrong Once in 30 Years. "Tower and Power" signs his checks J. H. Allen, but he has been known by his unusual sobriquet for many years. He takes pride in his ability to pick election winners. In 1894 he made a wager that Bryan would carry Nebraska by 10,000, and he also won an overcoat that year by making the closest guess as to the Commoner's majority over McKinley in this state.

"The only election bet I ever lost," Allen said, "was in 1918, when I predicted Morehead would defeat Norris for the senate."

Allen Works for McMillen. On one or two occasions "Tower and Power" has supported republicans for local or judicial offices, but this is the first year he has ever been for a republican gubernatorial nominee. He is not only in favor of McMillen, but he is out in the state working for him. For the last five weeks he has made an extensive tour of Nebraska. He will campaign for another week before returning home.

"Trading will not do any good," said Allen. "The people of Nebraska have faith in McMillen's honesty and his solid convictions in the same manner that they believe in Coolidge. 'I've never been wrong in my judgment of Nebraska elections but once in 30 years. This year is an off year for democrats. Mark my word and do your betting that way.'"

Wife Asks Divorce From Convict Mate

Lena South Seeks Separation From Husband Convicted of Murder.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Beatrice, Neb., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Lena L. South today filed suit in district court here for a divorce from her husband, Francis South, who is now serving a life sentence in the Nebraska penitentiary for the murder of Charles Wolfe.

Mrs. South asks for the custody of her boy.

South, 25, was convicted in 1923 of the murder of Wolfe, a teamster, who was killed and robbed of $45. South is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel South, pioneer residents of Beatrice.

Francis Stewart and Charles Warren, companions of South, were also convicted of murder. Stewart and South were convicted on the evidence of Warren, and sentenced to life. While Warren, who turned state's evidence, was sentenced to serve but 25 years in the penitentiary.

OPERATION UPON M'ADOO IS OVER

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 6.—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, was operated upon at Johns Hopkins hospital today for the removal of gravel in the bladder. Dr. Hugh H. Young, who performed the operation, declared that it was a very simple one, only taking a few minutes and that the patient suffered very little pain.

He was doing very well, Dr. Young added, and said further that McAdoo would remain at the hospital for treatment about eight or 10 days.

The operation was performed under a local anaesthetic. The patient was able to talk to the surgeons during its progress, it was learned and was in excellent spirits throughout.

Resignation of Fosdick in Hands of First Church

Presbytery of New York Refers Communication of His Church for Report.

New York, Oct. 6.—The presbytery of New York received today, but delayed action upon the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, the Baptist preacher of modernist ideas, who for five years has had an assistant ministership in the First Presbyterian church of this city.

The resignation was Dr. Fosdick's answer to the request of the presbytery that, in accordance with a ruling of the general assembly five months ago, he should renounce his Baptist membership and become a Presbyterian or relinquish his association with the local church.

Referred to Church. A special committee of the presbytery, headed by Dr. Edgar Whitaker, Work, communicated the decree of the general assembly to the Rev. Dr. Fosdick, and today read before the presbytery the minister's answer, ending in resignation.

At the committee's recommendation the case was placed in the hands of the First church for further investigation and deliberation with instructions to report to the presbytery by November 16. It is expected that on that date the First church, which has stood by the Rev. Dr. Fosdick for two years while the battle between fundamentalists and modernists raged around him, will make known whether it proposes to accept or reject the resignation.

Resigned Once Before. Once before the Rev. Dr. Fosdick resigned from the assistant ministership. The occasion was the furor which ensued when he used, "Shall the Fundamentalists Win?" as the subject of a sermon. But the church, despite strong pressure from fundamentalists throughout the country and a vote of censure passed upon the preacher by the general assembly at Indianapolis in 1923, rejected the resignation.

Although Dr. Fosdick declined to discuss his plans, it was the general belief among the members of the church on Fifth avenue who flocked to the meeting of the presbytery today, that he would continue to preach from the First church pulpit until the report of November 16 was submitted.

Third Game Is Giants' Score, 6 to 4

Second Baseman Is Star of Diamond at Polo Grounds Making One Sensational Play After Another.

By DAMON RUNYON, Editorial Staff Correspondent. New York, Oct. 6.—When you are old and feeble, and the gray whiskers are hanging low, and you can't toddle out to the ball yard any more and you have to sit back and listen to the young folks gabble about their great players—tell 'em about Frisch.

When they get to talking of the wonderful plays they see, about the slashing stops, and the marvelous throws their players are making—tell 'em about Frisch!

When they start speaking of second-basemen in particular, and bragging of the way second base is played in their time—tell 'em about Frisch!

Tell 'em most specifically about the way Frisch played second base in the third game of the world series of 1924, playing it at the Polo Grounds, for the New York Giants against Washington's American league champions.

Tell 'em how he not only played all of second base, but some of the center field, and a good slice of right field, too.

"Seven-Legged Devil." Tell 'em about Frisch playing second-center—right for the Giants and he took on in the eyes of the Washington fans as sitting in the grandstand, the aspect of a seven-legged devil, though in truth and in fact he was only a slim young fellow with a pleasant smile, a few years out of Fordham university.

Tell 'em—these sapient young fans who will not have seen Frisch, "the Fordham flash"—how he played so much of the baseball field in one game that he was at least 99 per cent of the Giants' winning that third world series game by a score of 6 to 4.

Tell 'em this 99 per cent represented Frisch's work on defensive behind some loose pitching by various Giant pitchers. The other one per cent of the New York victory you may assign to the general faculty of the Washington pitching as produced by five different Washington pitchers.

Yes, sir, tell 'em about Frisch! Tell 'em how he turned lead into the outfield and pulled in wicking, twisty, fly balls, taking 'em coming in over his shoulder.

Tell 'em how time and again he plunged far to his right, or farther still to his left, and bagged bounding balls that blazed with disaster for the Giants.

Tell 'em how he burned up that old ball field with his speed, and accuracy, and finally, when he came to bat in the eighth inning, his little cap perched high on his head, 50,000 people joined in a spontaneous burst of applause, tribute to a great young artist of the game, and how he bunched a deep red clear down the back of his neck.

Tell 'em how his legs, and his wonderful baseball hands, as delicate in their way, as sure, and true as the hands of a great pianist, had kept that game from wriggling away from the Giants on numerous occasions.

Poor Game as Whole. It was a poor game, taken as a whole, but Frisch splashed a thrill, blood red and tingling, through most of it. In the seventh inning when Washington had two men on base and two out, he covered an amazing stretch of ground in few leaps, grabbed a bounding drive from "Goose" Goslin's bat, and ended the inning with an astonishing throw to first.

Others made sensational plays, notably Sam Rice, who caught a ball with one hand up against the concrete wall in right field, but Frisch made such a successful play, that day, he was one continuous sensation.
