

Union Men Form Republican Club

Defeat of Coolidge Would Tear Page From Constitution, Speaker Asserts.

Union labor leaders made an earnest plea last night for organized labor to stand "four square" for the republican ticket and aid in placing Coolidge and Dawes in the White House.

where a Union Labor Coolidge-Dawes club was organized.

"I plead with you men as I never pleaded before to stand 'four square' for the republican ticket and Coolidge and Dawes because they stand for frankness, sincerity and efficiency in the administration of the affairs of our government," Tony Donahoe, veteran labor leader told his audience last night.

E. D. Warren, railroad conductor, was elected president of the organization. F. J. Sullivan, of the typographical union was elected secretary and E. M. Woodland of the Carpenters union was elected vice president.

"If Coolidge and Dawes should be defeated, and we know they won't, but if something should happen and they were, we would be tearing a page from the constitution of the United States," said Mr. Ford.

Resolutions were passed at the meeting in which these points were brought out:

"The republican party has always championed the liberties and rights of the masses, without regard to race, creed or color.

"Under republican administrations, the working man has enjoyed prosperity. Under democratic rule of Cleveland and Wilson there was widespread misery. Many were thrown out of employment.

"The republican protective tariff has encouraged home industries and developed a high standard of living. The democratic policy of free trade exposed American industry to the destructive competition of foreign workmen and lowered the standard of living.

"The republican party, through its platform, is pledged to the doctrine of collective bargaining. It recognized the right of labor to organize into unions.

"The republican 17th congress enacted 17 laws approved by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. The work in the 68th congress was frustrated by democrats and radicals.

"Calvin Coolidge while governor of Massachusetts had approval of organized labor because of his fairness."

Burgess Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The dog that's tied you need not fear if careful not to go too near.

—Old Man Coyote.

Old Man Coyote Gets Another Melon.

"That is why he didn't follow me last night," thought Old Man Coyote.

he had been left tied to the fence on the edge of Farmer Brown's shadowy form of Old Man Coyote. As before, he rushed after Old Man Coyote as far as the line would let him. But this time Old Man Coyote didn't disappear. Instead, he sat down just a short distance away and with a grin on his sharp face watched Bowler struggle to get free. The harder Bowler tugged at the line which held him the broader grew Old Man Coyote's grin. He understood perfectly why Bowler was tied out there in the melon patch.

"That is why he didn't follow me last night," thought Old Man Coyote. "He could go only as far as that line would let him. As long as I keep beyond the length of that line that dog is harmless. I didn't have a melon feast last night because I didn't know then Bowler was a prisoner. But if there is a nice, ripe melon beyond the reach of that dog it is going to be mine. My, my, my! such a racket as that dog makes! I guess I'll have to move quickly or Bowler will have his master down here."

Old Man Coyote moved in a half circle just beyond Bowler's reach until he found out just how much of the melon patch the line by which Bowler was fastened would allow him to cover. He knew that within this half circle he couldn't hope to get a melon. But there were melons outside that half circle, and these Old Man Coyote visited one after another until he found one that suited him. This he soon tore to pieces, greedily swallowing the red, juicy inside. He gulped it down, for he was in a hurry.

All the time Bowler was tugging at the line, which held him, and barking as if he would bark his head off. Only a few feet away was Old Man Coyote, paying no more attention to him than if he didn't exist. But Old Man Coyote was keeping watch of Farmer Brown's house as he gobbled that melon. He suspected that the noise Bowler was making would bring some one to see what it was all about. It was just as he swallowed the last mouthful of the melon that the door of Farmer Brown's house opened. Old Man Coyote disappeared like a gray ghost.

Two unmasked bandits Thursday night held up and robbed Miss Olive Means, 502 South Thirty-sixth street, and W. J. Daily, Hotel Fontenelle, of jewelry valued at more than $500 and a small amount of cash, on the West Pacific road.

The couple, engaged since last month, had been out riding. They stopped alongside the road about one mile west of Elmwood park.

The bandits parked their machine a short distance from the car occupied by Daily and Miss Means. They made their escape toward town after the holdup.

Daily saved $137 in currency by hiding it in the pocket in the car reserved for curtains. Miss Means attempted to hide her diamond engagement ring, but was unsuccessful.
