Lowly Chocolate Fudge Takes Place in Sun

At last the lowly chocolate fudge has taken its rightful place in the sun! The Omaha Bee carried a story on page one Sunday under the heading "Zeppelin On Way to Join Navy of U. S." It contained information that Mrs. Howell Geiger, wife of the assistant United States military attache at Berlin, was the only American woman present to see the craft depart. "She spent half the night making delicious fudge which she handed out to the delighted Americans, who were departing on the greatest dirigible voyage in the history of aeronautics," the account said.

One wonders why this American woman handed out fudge at the last moment instead of hot coffee and doughnuts.

Mrs. Lawrence Churchill, wife of Major Churchill of Omaha, who know more about aeronautics perhaps than any woman in the city, says that eigarets are not allowed on such journeys as the ZR-3 was about to make, and the fudge was provided as a life-saving substitute.

Mrs. Geiger is known in Omaha. She formerly attended Brownell hall here. She is a niece of Dr. E. L. Bridges and Dr. W. O. Bridges. During the war her husband took his balloon training at Fort Omaha.

been receiving the attentions of a proposal he so cooly had made, young man three years my senior for "You told mother what?" I in the past 18 months. I love him. Can ed with the emphasis every wife I find out whether he cares for me?
Is it possible to make a young man care more for you than as a friend?

Dicky turned astonis

Don't try to find out whether the young man cares for you. If he does care, you will soon learn of it. You peated huffily, "What's the matter can't hurry matters in any way. Just be patient. The test of his love will be patient. The test of his love will be his asking you to be his wife.

Surely he enjoys your society, or he would not have continued his attentions for 18 months. If he is the man to make you happy I hope that you will soon learn that he loves you. But even though he continues to treat you merely as a friend, do not worry. Enjoy as much of his friend.

Crowding to my lips were hot words denouncing the inconsistence and selfishness of expecting me to be a seamstress far into the night and a chauffeur early the next morning. But I repressed them, contenting my-self with a nonchalant.

"Nothing, except that I'm afraid worry. Enjoy as much of his friend-ship as he accords you. There is no way of forcing him to love you. Be your natural, charming self and do not think too seriously of him or of any other young man who has not proved his love by asking you to be lis wife.

"Nothing,, except that I'm afraid you'll have to make other arrangements. I cannot possibly drive her to Marvin."

"Well I'll be—" Dicky began the sentence in amazement and finished it in a burst of rage. Would-be-popular: As soon as you try, every time you or any of your forget yourself sufficiently to become friends want an errand done! But interested in the happiness of others when I ask a simple favor of you—"

instead of bending every effort to attract admiration, you will have made great strides toward the goal that means so much more than pass-with traits that command the quick night if you want your things to and universal admiration called popularity, deep and fine qualities—old-fashioned qualities such as un-selfishness, strength of character, gentleness, self-forgetfulness.

But in many cases popularity means merely the glitter of cheap appeal at the expense of sincerity and self-respect. In such cases it repels the person whose friendship and love are worth having.

So do not worry over your popularity or unpopularity. Forget yourself in helping others and you will earn far better gifts than popularity -- the devotion of the persons who really understand you, your own self-respect and—in all probability—the love of the one man who will mean all the world to you.

"I'll take them to a tallor, you poor, over worked martyr!" he sneered. But long experience with my tem-peramental husband has taught me to

National Picture Week

National Picture week will be observed in most of the cities and towns of the land by appropriate exercises in libraries and museums.

The American art bureau has as its object the promotion of art appreciation in home, school and other appropriate places, and is a central oureau of information on art matters especially in spreading information on the subject of excellent reproducions of paintings, both classic and nodern, which are now available to all at reasonable prices. The celebration of National Picture week in Omaha has taken the form of an exhibition of water colors prints and drawings assembled by the Society of Fine Arts in the public Its object is to encourage good taste in home pictures. The public schools too are entering into this feast of pictures. This is the time for everyone to look into hi picture problem
