

Federal Judge Named Receiver for Selznick Co. Film Distributors Forced Into Bankruptcy by Three Creditors; Plan to Reorganize.

New York, Oct. 22.—Federal Judge Winston of the United States district court for the southern district of New York, today was appointed receiver for the Selznick Distributing corporation, positioned into bankruptcy by three creditors, the claims totaling $3,000.

The creditors and their claims are Kaplan & Barnett, for rental of films; Murray W. Garshon, motion picture prints, $200, and Myron Selznick, salary, $2,250. Selznick is vice president of the firm.

Root, Clark, Buckner and Howland, counsel for the creditors named in the petition, late today issued the following statement:

"The filing of the petition was precipitated by the fact that all of the officers and directors of the corporation have resigned with the exception of Myron Selznick, who is a director and vice president of the corporation. These resignations made it imperative to have a receiver immediately appointed to take charge of the business and continue it pending a reorganization.

"Despite its insolvency, the corporation and its subsidiaries are conducting a successful business and have on hand many valuable contracts for the distribution of moving picture plays and a very valuable good will. It is expected that the receiver will be able to work out a satisfactory agreement with the creditors and that the business can be put on a paying basis during the next year."

The present Selznick Distributing corporation was formed in April, 1923, when the Select Pictures corporation was absorbed. C. J. Doole, little of Trenton Falls, N. Y., was elected president and authorized information that the debts of an old organization, amounting to more than $1,000,000, were paid off in a single year. Lewis J. Selznick left the firm at this reorganization.

A short time ago the corporation is said to have planned further changes, eliminating the name "Selznick," and plans had been drawn up and copies distributed yesterday, it was learned.

No assets nor liabilities were mentioned in the papers filed today.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
Whatever happens show your grit: Make up your mind to conquer it. —Bobby Coon.

Bobby Coon Is in Great Trouble.
Bobby Coon had been in great trouble before, but never had he been more frightened. Fast to one black paw was a small tin can. To Bobby it wasn't a tin can, but a trap. He was sure that it was a trap. To be sure, it was different from any traps he had ever seen, but it had caught him and that was proof enough to Bobby that it was a trap.

He had found it in the water close to the shore of the Laughing Brook. It had looked innocent enough, and Bobby's curiosity had led him to thrust a black paw in to feel around for what might be inside. The edge of the partly cut top had become jammed and held that little black paw fast. The more he tried to pull his paw out the tighter it was held. Then the little black paw began to swell and, of course, this made it impossible for Bobby to get it out. He bit at it with his teeth. He tugged and pulled, but the more he tugged and pulled the more it hurt and the tighter it held him.

Poor Bobby Coon! He didn't know what to do. He wanted to get home. His snug home in a hollow tree seemed the one place where he could feel safe, so he started. But walking on three legs and holding the fourth one up with a can fast to it was not easy. I should say not! He hobbled along, but that can kept hitting against things, and every time it did that Bobby would squeal with pain. Then, too, he would keep forgetting and putting that foot down to the ground, and every time he did that it hurt. So getting home was slow work, and Bobby whimpered most of the way.

But at last Bobby reached the foot of the big hollow tree which was his home. The entrance was quite high up. It wasn't until he looked up at it that Bobby understood how great was the trouble he was in. He couldn't climb that tree of course not. In order to climb that tree he needed both of those little black forepaws of his. He couldn't climb the trunk of that tree with that awful can on one foot. He had reached the foot of his home tree, but that snug, comfortable home might just as well have been miles and miles away.

Bobby had been frightened from the first, but now he was filled with terror. He had felt that if he could once get home he would at least be safe. He had felt in that snug, hollow tree there would be no danger, and he had hoped that he might get rid of that dreadful trap. Bobby sends a great deal of time on the ground, but in time of danger he takes to the trees. Now he couldn't climb. He tried and tried, but it was useless.

"Oh! Oh!" wailed Bobby. "What ever shall I do?"

"What ever shall I do?" wailed Bobby. "What ever shall I do?"

"What ever shall I do?" wailed Bobby. "What ever shall I do?"

Coyote finds me! I can't climb. I can't run. I can't even fight very well. I don't know what to do. I don't know what to do.

Yes, indeed, Bobby Coon was in trouble. He was in very great trouble. That leg pained him dreadfully, but even worse than the pain was the fright he was suffering. And he still thought that that little can was a trap.

Mexico Outlines Japanese Treaty

No Claims to Be Filed for Causes Arising From Acts of Rebel Factious.

Washington, Oct. 22.—In a formal statement the Mexican embassy outlined the terms of "a treaty of amity, commerce and navigation," concluded October 8, between Mexico and Japan.

As described, the treaty embodies general provisions for intercourse similar to those contained in scores of similar international agreements in force throughout the world.

"One of the principal clauses of the treaty," continued the statement, "provides that no claims shall be filed for causes arising from insurrections or civil wars, rebels or savage tribes who may be temporarily out of the control of the respective governments. It also has been agreed upon that the contracting parties shall have recourse to diplomatic intervention only in cases of denial of justice, failure to execute final sentences of courts of law or after exhaustion of all legal means available for the settlement of disputes, by express violation of the provisions of the treaty."

"Prior to the conclusion of this treaty, the Japanese government expressly renounced all claims that it may have had against the Mexican government arising from revolutionary disturbances in Mexico since the year 1920 up to the date of the enforcement of the treaty."

"Synagogue Party," New Name Applied

Dominance of Jewish Pacific Element Causes Defections.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND, Universal Service Staff Correspondent. Berlin, Oct. 22.—"The synagogue party."

That is the name applied to the German democratic party the Deutsche Tages Zeitung, the nationalist organ, in explanation of the stunning blow this party suffered right at the start of the election campaign through the veritable exodus of many of its leading members.

Within the last few days five of its leading reichstag deputies, of whom it had only 28, left the party. They followed two of the leading democratic deputies in the Prussian diet.

Nationalistic circles claim that whatever public explanation is given, the real reason is the dominance of the party by the Jewish pacifistic element, which is being repudiated by the reviving national consciousness of Germany.

The nationalists jubilantly predict the complete destruction of that party on election day. It was the
