Gov. Smith's Daughter.
Only 6 More Days.
The Sins of the Children.
What Is the Issue?
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Can women be of use in politics? Ask Governor Smith of New York. He has a daughter named Emily, 21 years old, working in his campaign. She doesn't make fancy speeches, or long speeches. In fact, she makes the same speech every time, and it's only eight words long. This is it: "I hope you will all vote for father."

That speech has probably made more votes for her father than many of the speeches five hundred times as long.

Six days more and then the voting. Candidates are trying hard to make the election seem exciting, but not succeeding. Gamblers whose judgment is said to be sound on national elections are betting 6 to 1 on Coolidge.

And President Coolidge, to the annoyance of other candidates, persists in keeping his mouth shut.

Poor John in the midst of his boils, exclaimed, "Oh, that mine adversary had written a book." John W. Davis exclaims, "Oh, that mine adversary, (Coolidge) would make a speech." Davis even suggests topics for Coolidge speeches, but Coolidge doesn't make the speeches.

There is power in silence. And the attentive notice it. They don't notice speeches, there are so many of them.

Modern crime turns an ancient text upside down. In Exodus, 20th chapter, 6th verse, you are told that the iniquity of the fathers is visited upon the children "unto the third and fourth generation."

Now the crime of the child is visited upon the father. Albert Loeb, whose son killed the Franks boy, is dead, killed by sorrow and disgrace. That should satisfy the bloodthirsty that demanded "somebody hanged."

That unfortunate father died a thousand deaths to atone for his son's hideous crime.

While Coolidge persists in giving his lifeline imitation of Uncle Remus' "Tar Baby," John W. Davis, admirable, energetic, is telling the people of America all about it. He says the issue in this campaign is "the moral leadership of mankind, by the United States."

Many Americans do not understand it so, and believe that one issue of the campaign is minding its own business by the United States and doing it well. Many Americans feel that the business of a president is to look after the interests of the United States, while allowing Divine Providence in the future as in the past, to attend to the moral leadership of mankind.

The voters will be quite satisfied if they get a president to mind the business of the United States, keep prosperity alive and people at work, keep this country in a condition successfully to resist attack and postpone for as many years as possible the evil day when we shall have to pay for that war debacle.

Within 24 hours, a girl of 14, scolded by her father, shot herself to death. An 18-year-old boy, beaten by his father, killed himself by turning on the gas.

Strange that man, said to descend from the "higher apes" or some animal like them, should treat his own children with a brutality or chimpanzee was ever guilty. A man that would not allow anybody to beat his young horse or dog for fear of "breaking its spirit" will break the sensitive spirit of his own child.

New York state legalizes prize fighting. It amuses and delights the low-browed mob, enriches politicians and promoters. Therefore, in favor of prize fighting laws against assault and battery are set aside. Ralph Thomas, professional prize fighter, was knocked down in the second round last night. The blow that sent him to the floor killed him. That was a nice night's entertainment. But it's profitable, and therefore it's allowed.

France has made a treaty with Russia, and will do business with the Russians, all the business possible, regardless of the fact that the bolshevik government has refused to pay billions of francs that the czars borrowed from Frenchmen.

The French are intelligent. Instead of worrying about water that has run over the mill, they reach out to get Russian business for French workers and business men. Our American "statesmen" might become less provincial if they would study the methods of France and England.
