Personnel of Symphony Orchestra Completed
After Recent Rehearsals.

The roster of the 60 musicians, who form the personnel of the Omaha Symphony orchestra, which will give three concerts this winter under the leadership of the business and professional women's division of the Chamber of Commerce, now is complete.

The orchestra has been rehearsing for several weeks. During this time, Ernest Nordin, resident director; Rudolph Seidl of the Rialto theater, associate director, and Herman K. Mansfield, manager, selected the musicians.

Harry Brader, director of the Rialto Symphony orchestra, has been chosen for concert master.

Brader Is Concert Master.

Mr. Brader began studying the violin at the age of 8, under his father, James Brader. At the age of 17, he began his career as director, conducting orchestras for several years in Lincoln, Chicago and Omaha before becoming director of the Rialto orchestra.

Many rehearsals will be held during the next two weeks.

The first concert will be given Thursday evening, November 20. Engelbert Roentgen, "guest conductor," will arrive from Minneapolis November 16 to hold daily rehearsals.

Tickets on Sale.

Season tickets now are on sale by the members of the women's division at the Chamber of Commerce and local music stores.

There is no extra charge for reserved seats.

The personnel of the orchestra include the names of several of Omaha's best known teachers and soloists, while the other members are all well known players in theater orchestras. The list is as follows:

Jury of 12 Women
Convicts Widower
of Nebraska Girl

J. A. Jordan, found guilty of bigamy in Los Angeles Friday by a jury of 12 women, married a former Shelton, Neb., girl last February. She was Sadie Kessler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kessler. Sadie Kessler had lived in Long Beach, Calif., for eight years. Jordan was charged with having married Miss Kessler while still wed to Mrs. Grace Jordan of Toronto.

Jordan returned to Long Beach one day last summer with the body of his bride and told authorities that she fell from a 100-foot cliff. He was convicted of bigamy also several years ago. It is said he has been married seven or eight times.

10 Names Urged
for Cabinet Job

Farm Organizations Present Eligibles for New Secretary of Agriculture.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Ten names have been submitted to President Coolidge for the post of secretary of agriculture by farm organizations who were asked by him for suggestions.

They are: Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, Columbus, O.; Charles H. March, Littlefield, Minn.; Farmer, John Fields, Oklahoma City, editor of the Oklahoma Farmer; Samuel Adams, Washington, former president of the Agricultural Editors' association; E. E. Fayville, Portland, Ore., editor of Western Farmer; Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois; Herbert Myrick, Springfield, Mass.; Charles Grand, Urbana, O.; C. W. Furgess, president of South Dakota Agricultural college and former assistant secretary of agriculture, and J. Lee Coulter, president of North Dakota Agricultural college.

Numerous messages continue to arrive at the White House from every section of the country in regard to the appointment. So far, it was said at the White House there is no apparent unanimity of opinion.

Charles W. Pugsley, former Nebraska and until a year ago assistant secretary of agriculture, is being urged upon President Coolidge as the logical man to succeed the late Henry C. Wallace as secretary of agriculture.

Pugsley is now president of the South Dakota State college at Brookings. Agricultural organizations in South Dakota and individuals have wired the president suggesting Pugsley's appointment. Word of this reached Omaha Friday when Wayland W. McGee of the Summer Hill farm received a telegram from Pugsley.

Another mentioned for the post is former Governor Sam McKelvie and it is understood that McKelvie and his friends point out that, as editor of a farm publication, he is as equally fitted for the post as was the late Henry C. Wallace.

A movement with the ultimate goal of Pugsley's appointment is now under way in Omaha and throughout the state in the hope that he will win a place in President Coolidge's cabinet. He is one of the foremost agricultural experts in the country and is thoroughly familiar with the duties of the position vacant by Wallace's death. John T. Kennedy, president of the First National bank; County Agent Earl Maxwell and others are working to bring about the appointment.
