Tech High Interpretive Dancing Class to Give Ballet

Interpretive dancing class at Tech High. The ballet is based on the story of the sun and the earth's awakening.

An interpretive ballet, "The Sun and Earth's Awakening," in which 125 girls of the interpretive dancing classes of Technical High school will take part will be presented Wednesday morning at 10 in the school auditorium for students and Wednesday evening for parents and friends.

The ballet will be presented Saturday, November 8, for the Nebraska State Teachers' association.

Directors of the ballet are Mrs. Charles A. Musselman, Miss Marian L. Treat, Miss C. Pauline Spencer and Mrs. Lula Mann Jones of the physical education department of Technical High school.

All costumes for the ballet have been designed and made by the domestic art department of the school.

The story of the ballet is of a bat defying Father Time, who rules alone over the earth. The bat is banished on Earth's Awakening, in which all forces of nature to advance.

Snowflakes, the ocean, winds, clouds, thunder, lightning and dancing raindrops are included in the ballet. These disappear with the coming of the rainbow. The sun appears upon the earth followed by sunbeams. Early spring violets, daffodils and primroses are in the ballet.

Summer is portrayed by dancers with baskets of roses. The ballet ends with a final ensemble.

3 Women Who Hold Office at West Point

West Point, Neb., Oct. 25.—In the photograph are West Point's three women officials, left to right: Miss Emma R. Miller, who has been county superintendent for 18 years; Mrs. Lillian A. Elliott, acting postmaster since May, 1924, and Miss Sarah E. Lindale, city clerk for three years.

Banquets Are Planned for Dad-Lad Week

Churches to Have Special Services; Observances Begin Next Sunday.

Throughout North America fathers and their sons will have the spotlight for two weeks, beginning next Sunday. Churches will occupy the first week of observance and clubs, lodges, schools and parent-teachers' associations the second week.

J. H. Beveridge will open Father and Son week here officially from station WQAW at 9:30 a. m. Every night of Father and Son week, except Wednesday night, there will be broadcast from the Woodmen of the World station a special father and son message as a part of the regular program. J. G. Masters, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the father and son committee, is arranging these radio talks and will announce the speakers soon.

Practically every church in Omaha will have a special father and son church service on next Sunday morning. In many churches fathers and sons will occupy a reserved section in the church.

Branch Library Boosters Unite

Plans Made to Get Favorable Vote on Bonds, Election Day.

Winding up a campaign in favor of the library branch bonds, the special committee of the Omaha library board met at the central library Thursday afternoon to formulate final plans. John H. Mither, chairman, Nelson T. Thorson, Mrs. H. E. Newbranch, Bruce McCulloch and Mrs. P. A. Nash were present.

Volunteer workers are to be at the polls Tuesday, since the committee has no money to spend for active ballot solicitors.

There has been no dearth of volunteer speakers, however, and among the foremost of these has been Judge Duncan M. Vinsonhale, former county judge.

"When all is said, it is we who own each of the 159,000 volumes in the present central library," declared Judge Vinsonhale.

"We actually own these volumes, covering everything that is best in literature, and yet we do not stop to use them. They do not 'turn over more than four times a year."

"Kansas City has 13 branch libraries. Sioux City, a town far inferior in population and industry, has seven branch libraries."

There are about 200 candidates involved in the coming election, and it is planned to open a regular ledger account under the name of each candidate, and as each precinct sends in its total vote, the individual candidate's "account" will be credited with the votes he receives. The "balances" are constantly computed by these machines, so that at any stage during the evening the total vote for each candidate is immediately available.

When you see flashed on the bulletin boards election night '74 precincts out of 164 in Omaha give, etc. it is these machines that are rapidly turning out this information.

These modern Burroughs bookkeeping machines also perform direct subtraction automatically, and this feature is used in computing the majority on a candidate may enjoy over his rival.

Ten machines will be on the job to serve the public.
