La Follette and Wheeler Rapped by Iowa Editor

Legionnaire Flays War Record of Both Third Party Heads; Wisconsin Stronghold for Reds.

Frank Miles, editor of the Iowa Legionnaire, has bitterly assailed the party headed by La Follette and called the attention of former service men to the "war record" of both La Follette and Wheeler.

Miles is a democrat. "The progressive party, headed by a Follette and Wheeler is a vicious nsult to patriotic Americans," said "In condemning them, we ealize that some will accuse us of getting out of legion bounds, into olitics. Let them, the brazen ef contery of this pair of hyphenates running for president and vice president presents not a question of politics but a question of Amer-

"La Follette has been in the senate nany years. Wisconsin has long been stronghold for reds, pro-Germans other breeds of hyphenates. When the United States declared war on Germany, La Follette announced he was a pacifist. His pacifism was manifested in such violent attacks on this country's action that the senate came within a hair's breadth of kicking him out and there was a well-defined movement to have him indicted. only his great influence as a United States senator must have saved him for many men were convicted and served long terms who were less zuilty than he was of obstructing the overnments' prosecution of the war.

True to German Trust.

'Throughout the conflict he was Never once did he turn his hand to our cause. That attitude rought to his standard every enemy within' in the United States. They accepted him as their leader and the same outfit to the last man and woman is now with him

"Since the war he has seldom if ver lost an opportunity to deprecate merica's purpose in entering. The Veteran, a great ex-service men's publication, reported about two years ago that he said, 'he war was nurely commercial and the boobs who fought and died in it thought they were dying for democracy when they were dying for capitalism.' La Follette, so far as we know, has never denied that story.

Wheeler's War Record. 'Wheeler's war record is as odoriferous as La Follette's. He was United States district attorney in Montana in 1817 when the sheriff of Carbon county, Montana, arrested 80 W. W.'s who had defied the draft. They not only refused to register, but they noisly said they would not. Wheeler absolutely refused prosecute. The Montana house representatives passed a resolution demanding his resignation. scoffed at that. Then the Montana state council of defense, half of half of whom were republicans, con ducted an inquiry. The verdict unanimously brande him an unpatriotic citizen. He did not leave office immediately, but President Wilson did not reappoint him in 1913 and he became counsel for W. F. Dunn, who letin, an able seditious agitator and J. W. W. leader. 'With such revolting records, La

Follette, who went to the senate as a republican, and Wheeler, who was elected as a democrat, now want to States. They have no hopes whatever of getting even a plurality of the votes, but, while hypocritically prating about giving the country back to the people, they believe they can wield a balance of power, throw election into congress and there say who shall be elected. Their method is cowardly; it is un-American, for will be in Laurel Hill cemetery. if they realize their ambition they will put an organized minority in the Students of Clarinda

The progressive party, so-called, is the most dangerous thing that has confronted this country since the world war. Its rosy promises are nothing by hydrophobia froth with La Follette and Wheeler as its lead-We offer no apologies to any body for assailing them, and we are ready to stand or fall on the proposition that it's the American duty of Americans to repudiate these men yigorously as we would any pro nosal for American uplift from the kaiser himself. There may have been some excuse for that despicable individual, for he was a German mad with militarism; La Foilette and Wheeler call themselves Americans.
