

One Dead as Result of Dancehall Brawl

Assailant of Sheriff Keller Dies From Wound in Lung.

North Platte, Neb., Nov. 5.—Alfred Molsinger died in a hospital here today as the result of a gunshot wound suffered last Friday night during a dance hall brawl.

Molsinger was, at first, believed to be but slightly injured. He had shot and seriously wounded Sheriff Miles Keller just before he was hit by a bullet from the revolver of a friend of Keller.

Sheriff Keller was called last Friday night to Elsie's where trouble was said to have started at a dance. Upon his arrival in Elsie the sheriff went directly to the dance hall. He stepped into the hall and ordered Molsinger, apparently a leading spirit of the row, to put up his hands. Molsinger was standing near the center of the room with his hands in his pockets.

Disregarding the demand of the sheriff Molsinger fired from his pocket. The sheriff fell, wounded in the stomach. A friend of the sheriff, as yet unidentified, fired at Molsinger immediately after the sheriff fell. The ball struck Molsinger in the shoulder, took a downward course and penetrated his lung.

Sheriff Keller was taken to a hospital at once. An immediate operation probably saved his life. His stomach had been pierced twice and his intestines six times. He is now said to be recovering.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save 87, and yet have a better remedy than you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep their coughs under control if it were not for this simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

What Tracks in the Snow Told By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

If you wander in the snow, Footprints tell just where you go. Unc' Billy Possum was out of sorts. He was very much out of sorts. That hollow tree of Bobby Coon's was better than his own hollow tree. Unc' Billy had been so sure that Bobby was never coming back to it that Bobby's return had been one of the most unpleasant surprises of his life.

His had had to give up that comfortable home and now he must go back to his own hollow. To get there he must go through the snow, and Unc' Billy was very much out of sorts as he made his way home. Now no one could walk in the soft snow and not leave tracks. From the edge of the Green Forest where Farmer Brown's Boy had set him free Bobby Coon had left tracks in the snow all the way to his hollow tree. He hadn't thought anything about these tracks. He had been too happy in his freedom to think of anything else. Had he thought of them he might have been a little worried.

Farmer Brown's Boy had watched Bobby Coon out of sight. Then he had gone back to the barn to do some work. "That little rascal probably will go straight to his home," said Farmer Brown's Boy, talking to himself. "I don't know just which hollow tree he is living in now, and I guess this will be my chance to find out. I don't want him to know that he is being followed, so I will wait awhile."

A couple of hours later Farmer Brown's Boy started to follow Bobby Coon's tracks. They were very plain in the soft snow and Farmer Brown's Boy had no trouble at all in following them. It was fun. At last they ended at the foot of a big tree. Farmer Brown's Boy looked up. He saw a round hole. He knew then that there was a hollow in that tree and that he had found Bobby Coon's home. He didn't pound on the tree to try to make Bobby come out, as some thoughtless boys would have done. Instead, he took care to make no noise. He didn't want Bobby to know that he had been followed.

To make sure that Bobby was in there Farmer Brown's Boy looked around to see if there were any more of Bobby's tracks. Right away he discovered tracks leading away from that tree. He bent over to look at them closely. "Well, what do you know about this?" he exclaimed. "These are not Bobby Coon's tracks. Here is the mark of a tail dragging

So Farmer Brown's Boy followed Unc' Billy Possum's tracks.

In the snow. These are Unc' Billy Possum's tracks. As you live the old rascal must have been in Bobby Coon's home and had to leave when Bobby returned. I wonder where he has gone now."

So Farmer Brown's Boy followed Unc' Billy Possum's tracks. They wound in and out among the trees and at last ended at the foot of a tree. Looking up, Farmer Brown's Boy saw that there was a hole in this tree also. They were no tracks leading away from that tree, so he knew that Unc' Billy must be in there. He guessed that this probably was Unc' Billy's home, the home where he had lived before he moved over to Bobby Coon's tree. Again he took care to make no noise. "Unc' Billy will sleep better if he doesn't know that I know where he lives," thought Farmer Brown's Boy. "I've learned two secrets from tracks in the snow this morning. I wonder if I can learn any more? I hope no one else will find the tracks of Bobby Coon and Unc' Billy Possum. I don't believe this snow will last long, and I hope it won't. Their secrets are safe with me, but they might not be with others."

Wymore, Nov. 5.—Postmaster F. E. Crawford of Wymore states that the volume of business being done through the local postoffice has outgrown the present building and working facilities and more room is necessary.
