Consider the Criminal as Seen by the Detectives

"THE CRIMINAL AS A HUMAN BEING," by George S. Dougherty; D. Appleton & Co., New York, publishers.
"THE CRIMINAL'S CRIMINAL," by George C. Henderson; D. Appleton & Co., New York, publishers.

Two eminent detectives prove that it is not essential to set a thief to catch a thief. What is needed is a man who is shrewd, resourceful and courageous. Possessed of an honest mind and a sympathetic heart. Who can gain the confidence of the criminal, and hold it, even after the criminal has found out the identity of the man who brought him to justice.

George S. Dougherty, who is known to come one of New York's efficient police commissioners, rose to his eminence as a detective. He relates personal experiences to prove his point that the criminal has a great deal more of the human in him than is generally understood. It is just the quirk of the mind that sends him wrong, and that same twist that later betrays him to the law.

George C. Henderson, also a detective of wide experience, tells how the crooks work. How they plan and carry out their assaults on society. Many of the games he exposes are simple, some are very elaborate and call for careful and skilled stage management. It is plain enough after one knows how it is done. The volumes together are worth much to the student of criminology, and are of a sort that will be interesting to any reader.

Burns Mantle Picks His Fifth Crop of Best Plays

"THE BEST PLAYS OF 1924-1925," THE YEAR BOOK OF THE DRAMA IN AMERICA," by Burns Mantle; Small, Maynard & Co., Boston, publishers.

Burns Mantle is a critic of seasoned judgment and ripe experience. His judgment of a play, therefore, is a safe guide for the common run of theatergoers. He not only presents the play of his choice, but gives a good reason for making that choice. Mr. Mantle himself reviews the season in New York, and Mr. Frederick Douglass does similar service for the Chicago season. These reviews are prefatory to the actual selection of the plays that get honorable mention. An interesting chapter on "The Little Theaters" is contributed by Walter Hartwig, director of the Little

Dandruff Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair head and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to pull or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid auron; apply it at night, rub it gently enough to moisten the scalp, rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and scaling of the scalp will stop, and you will look and feel hundred times better. You can get liquid auron at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.
