

Police Search for Girl, 13; Parents Fear Kidnap Plot

Police of Omaha and Council Bluffs were still combing the two cities last night in a search for Helen Schmitz, 13-year-old Omaha school girl, who has dropped out of sight since she left her home Sunday afternoon to drive to Council Bluffs with Fred Lynch, 23, a farm worker of Huron, S. D.

Parents of the girl believe she has been kidnaped. Ed Burke, alias Ed Beytel, 23, a fugitive from justice, who was employed on the Schmitz farm at Huron, S. D., last summer, is being sought in the case. Burke escaped from officers who arrested him on the Schmitz farm and were returning him to Guthrie Center, Ia., to serve a 10-year term.

Police believe Lynch may have conspired with Burke.

In Borrowed Auto. Lynch and the girl left the girl's home at 3019 Leavenworth street Sunday afternoon in a car belonging to J. W. Schmitz, the girl's father. Lynch had asked to borrow the car to visit friends in Council Bluffs, and the girl had asked to accompany him for the ride. They have not been seen since.

Lynch did not give the name of the friends he intended to visit, but police believe he may have intended to see Burke, who is still at large.

Lynch is employed by Schmitz on the latter's farm near Huron, S. D., and drove to Omaha with Schmitz Saturday afternoon. Schmitz came to Omaha to visit his wife and daughter, who have been in Omaha for several months. Schmitz planned to move to Omaha later.

Paid Ardent Court. According to Schmitz, Burke paid ardent court to the young girl while he was employed on the farm last summer. Burke was arrested in September by officers from Guthrie Center, Ia., who said that he had escaped from custody there after he had been sentenced to serve 10 years in the penitentiary. Schmitz does not know the charge on which he was sentenced.

Burke escaped from the officers for a second time while they were on their way with him to Guthrie Center.

According to Schmitz, Burke and Lynch appeared to be close friends while they were working together on the farm, and he believes that they may have been associates before they entered his employment. Police are now checking up the records of both men.

The girl's mother told police that she did not believe that the girl held any affection for Burke, and declared that she was sure the girl would not elope with either of the missing men. The mother was prostrated by anxiety Monday.

According to her parents, the 13-year-old girl has the appearance of a girl 19 or 20 years old.

REBEL BATTLESHIP REACHES URUGUAY

Monevid, Uruguay, Nov. 10.—The Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo, whose crew mutinied last Tuesday and sailed the vessel out to sea from Rio Janeiro harbor, arrived here today and anchored in the roads. She was boarded by the Uruguayan authorities.

The battleship did not show any exterior signs of damage from the shell which, according to official accounts, was hit when the Rio Janeiro forts attempted to prevent her flight.

When the Uruguayan pilot boarded the battleship early this morning about 80 miles from the coast, she found her steaming slowly, clear in position. She was flying the Brazilian flag, but lowered it as soon as the pilot took charge. It was estimated that the pursuing Brazilian fleet was about 200 miles behind.

THIRTY REBELS KILLED IN FIGHT. Porto Alegre, Brazil, Nov. 10.—Thirty revolutionists were killed and a large number wounded in a battle yesterday in western Rio Grande do Sul in which the loyal forces were victorious, according to an announcement today by the state government. The dead are said to have included the revolutionary civil governor, Antonio Monteiro. It was stated that the government troops lost four dead and six wounded.

Labor Supply Exceeds Demand at Columbus. Columbus, Nov. 10.—The supply of labor for corn picking exceeds the demand by a ratio of three to one. Employment agencies are swamped with applications for work, averaging 30 a day. Herbert Hahn, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said most of the men are coming from the west. Many of them are from the lumber camps, which lessened demand for building material has impelled them to leave. They bring their families with them.

Countess Admitted Under Protest

In 1925 the government's income will increase about $150,000,000 over 1924, under the present tax act, according to estimates. Secretary Mellon pointed out that "a decrease of taxes causes an inspiration to trade and commerce which increases the prosperity of the country so that the revenue of the government even on a lower basis of tax is increased."

Treasury experts said that the schedules of the 1924 act pertaining to low incomes and those of the Mellon plan regarding surtaxes, may be re-enacted into law with reducing revenue over $100,000,000 the first year. Thereafter a material increase in revenue might be expected, they maintained.

"Every tax reduction since 1918 has resulted eventually in increased revenue," an official declared.

Current Securities Unaffected. In the last annual report of Secretary Mellon which he has declared he will reiterate next month to congress the secretary said that "a reduction in the income tax reduces expenses not only of the 7,000,000 income tax payers, but of the entire 110,000,000 people in the United States."

Such an amendment would not affect the $13,000,000,000 now invested in tax-exempt securities. Officials said that a continuation of the policy of high surtaxes ultimately will compel the government to resort to higher taxes on small incomes to make up the loss it will sustain on higher incomes because of the avoidance of taxes through the channel of tax-exempt securities.

Treasury Plans Slash in Taxes; Income Growing

Mellon to Deal With Situation in December Report; Will Accelerate Trade.

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH, International Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The United States treasury tax reform program, shaping into definite form today, indicated that it may be possible to slash more than $100,000,000 of governmental revenue for 1916 and yet maintain a few million dollars' surplus. Officials said that would make possible a material cut in taxation.

The real drive for tax revision is anticipated at the initial session of the Sixty-ninth congress. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, in his annual report to the December congress, however, will deal with the tax situation, making similar recommendations to those partially disregarded at the last session.

Figures compiled at the Treasury department show that the 1924 revenue act cut government income $470,000,000 this calendar year; $351,000,000 resulted from income tax cuts.

In 1925 the government's income will increase about $150,000,000 over 1924, under the present tax act, according to estimates. These men were convicted of entering a residence while armed and stealing some money and a piglet and holding up four persons on the street, assaulting two of them and firing shots at them.

This is the first case ever tried in the courts here under the Ku Klux Klan law.
