New Men, New Monuments. O'Banion and Napoleon. Harvard's Catholic "Fellow." Behanding Two Sisters.

As men change, their monuments change. A pile of drying skulls, five times the height of a man, seemed glorious to one kind of ruler.

Yesterday in Chicago, S. W. Straus dedicated to the use of constructive finance a building 32 stories high, costing $18,000,000, looking out across Lake Michigan, and creating a new financial center on Michigan avenue.

With his "Straus plan," S. W. Straus has done more building, in the big cities of the United States, than any other individual in America.

Dollars gathered together and wisely used together have power as great as that of the waters gathered together above Niagara's cliff.

S. W. Straus is able truthfully to boast of the fact that in more than forty years of continuous business no investor has ever lost a dollar through his firm.

He deserves congratulations on his new and gigantic monument to conservative finance.

Clergymen in Chicago deplore the "grand funeral" given to Dion O'Banion, a professional murderer.

Another interesting question is this: What will civilized human beings in the future think about the honor we pay the corpse of Napoleon, lying under the magnificent gilt dome of the "Invalides"?

John J. Chapman of New York protests to William Lawrence, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts, because a Roman Catholic, James Byrne, has been elected a "fellow" of Harvard college.

Mr. Chapman knows the history of ancient universities. He knows that in France, Spain, Italy, England and elsewhere, they were founded directly by the Roman Catholic church.

lows" that are supposed to rule Harvard.

In Berlin yesterday two young sisters, Elizabeth and Gertrude Alma, 23 and 24 years old, were sentenced to have their heads cut off for murder.

You know that there is a difference between men and women when you read that. To read that two young men had murdered some one would not shock you much, but sisters committing a murder—that seems very strange.

It is hard to imagine two young, educated women committing murder, and harder still to imagine any human being standing up, broad-ax in hand, to chop off the heads of two girls, one after the other.

The girls will feel nothing. The moment their necks are broken sensation will end. The man that cuts their heads off will feel as little, probably.

How deep are the depths of brutality in human beings, of all nationalities?

In New York a woman has been convicted of atrociously burning the fingers of her stepdaughter, a child 9 years old, for taking a 5-cent piece.

The government is arranging to supply the Shenandoah, Los Angeles and future dirigibles with fuel in midocean.

That will seem strange in future, when airships will be five times as big as any vessel ever launched and will easily go twice around the world under their own power, or more probably by "wireless power" taken up from power stations on a gasoline supply.

Builta Tells of Airplane Trip, London to Paris

Lions Also to Hear Frank Beels in Plea for Better Roads in Nebraska.

A 140-mile trip by airplane from London to Paris was the most thrilling experience during his recent trip abroad, said Frank Builta in relating some of his experiences and impressions to members of the Lions club Tuesday noon at the Hotel Fontenelle.

"It was a 10-passenger plane and the majority of travelers in it were Americans," said Builta. "The revolution made to a height of a mile were frightening but the bumps from air pockets made gooseflesh. I was relieved when we reached Paris."

In reference to Paris, Builta told the men that all they had heard of Paris was true. He said that 90 percent of the devastated war region had been cleared up in France.

A plea for all civic organizations to join the Nebraska Good Roads association was made by Frank L. Beels, secretary of the association.

"The stronger counties and stronger cities must help the weaker," Mr. Beels continued. "Your paved roads now lead to dirt roads and we want them to lead to paved ones. The association needs the support of the taxpayers in Omaha."

Plans Made Here for G. A. R. Camp; 8,000 Are Expected

National Officers Also to Attend State Encampment in Omaha Next May 5.

Twelve hundred delegates and 5,000 to 8,000 visitors are expected to be in Omaha the week of May 5, 1925, at the Nebraska department encampment of the G. A. R. and allied organizations, it was stated yesterday at a meeting of officers of all the organizations in the Rome hotel to make preliminary plans.

Harmon Brass, assistant adjutant general of the Nebraska G. A. R., presided. The following general committee was appointed for the encampment:

J. S. Davison, past department commander, chairman; R. S. Wilcox, Charles T. Moore, Dr. J. B. Ralph, Joseph T. Beatty, all of the G. A. R.; Moses P. O'Brien, Earl S. Lewis, W. H. Hatterworth, Charles T. Smith, Bryant gained one.

John Berger, all of the Sons of Veterans; Selestine Troyer, department president; Women's Relief corps, Grand Island; Ora D. Jones, department president; G. A. R. Ladies, Lincoln; Lena Rubick, department president; Daughters of Veterans, St. Paul; and Mrs. A. B. Butler, division president, Sons of Veterans auxiliary, University Place.

The commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans and other national officers will attend the encampment.

The Rome hotel was chosen as headquarters. Memorial hall in the courthouse as well as two other meeting places outside the hotel will be used for the sessions of the organizations.

JUDGE BRYANT WINS BY 9 VOTES

Hartington, Nov. 18.—The canvassing board in making the official count of votes for Cedar county judge found that Judge Wilbur F. Bryant, republican, had defeated Clarence E. Haley, democrat, by 9 votes.

The mail vote gave Bryant 15 and Haley 4. Before the official count Haley was leading by 5 votes but in the final count he lost one and Judge Bryant gained one.

Nebraska Prize Corn Samples to Be Shown at Chicago

Bridgeport, Nov. 18.—Acting upon advice of Professor Stewart of the Agricultural college at Lincoln, who judged the exhibits at the corn show held at Chappell last week, Paul Mc-Nair, winner of sweepstakes prize, and other winners in the various classes will exhibit corn at the International corn show at Chicago.

Mr. Stewart declared that some of the specimens on exhibition at Chappell were the most perfect samples of corn he had ever seen, and offered to take them to the Chicago show and look after them while there. The Chappell exhibition included samples of corn and potatoes from seven counties.

Ponca.—A high school literary entertainment and carnival held here was attended by a large crowd and the proceeds, $141, will be used to pay for football equipment.

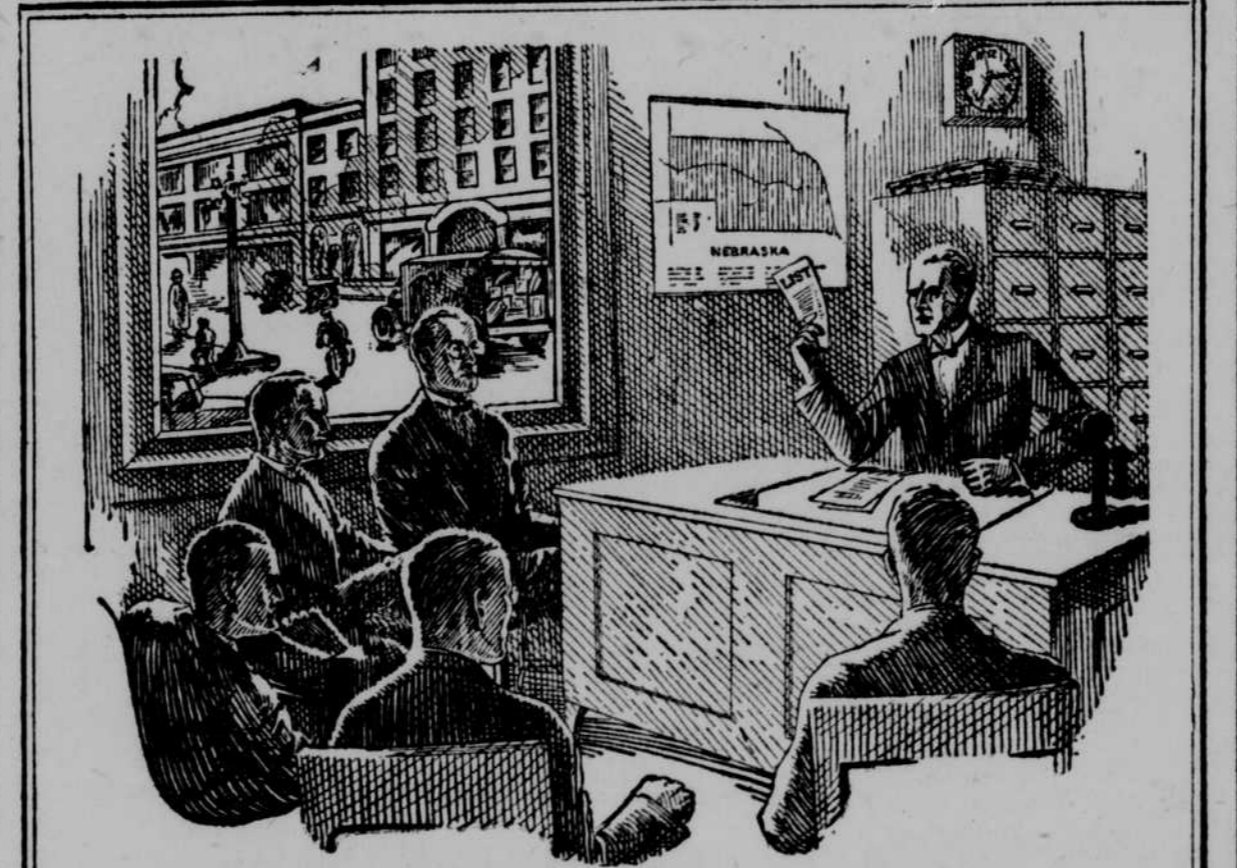

JUDGE KELLEY DIES IN IDAHO

Madison, Nov. 18.—The Teton Peak Chronicle, St. Anthony, Idaho, chronicles the death of Judge Hugh D. Kelley, at his home at Ashton, Idaho, October 31, death resulting quite suddenly from acute indigestion.

Funeral services were conducted by the Odd Fellows of Ashton and St. Anthony with 200 Odd Fellows present, representing every part of Snake River country. Among those who spoke was Judge N. D. Jackson, formerly of Neligh, Neb.

Judge Kelley was a pioneer of Madison, coming from Iowa in 1881. In 1882 he was appointed county judge of Madison county, and afterwards was elected for several terms.

In 1891 he moved to Norfolk, where he resided until 1901 when he went to Squirrel Creek country, Idaho, where he has since made his home. He was a member of Madison Lodge No. 85, I. O. O. F.

At a Meeting of the Board of Directors: The General Manager speaks:

"Gentlemen, since our last meeting we have received notices from our insurance agents, stating that our policies are expiring. I recommend that I be authorized to renew these policies on our stock and buildings and automobiles."

The President: "That should be attended to—but I think we are ignoring an important point in regard to the placing of our insurance. Have you a list of the companies whose policies we now hold?"

General Manager: "Yes, sir. Here it is."

The President: "Gentlemen, I am surprised to find none of our insurance is with our good Omaha companies. I am impressed with the financial strength and progress of our Omaha insurance companies. We all know their various managers personally. I think you will agree with me that we owe it to our own business and to the community at large to show special consideration to these prosperous Omaha companies when renewing these policies."

General Manager: "Are you sure, Mr. President, that they are safe companies to handle our risks?"

The President: "Certainly. I have examined the statements of the fire companies who are now carrying our risks and find that the ratio of their assets to their obligations outstanding is about $1.65 for every $1 of their obligations, while our Omaha fire insurance companies have assets of approximately $5.28 to every $1 of obligations outstanding."

General Manager: "That convinces me of the safety of our local companies. I desire to patronize them. I have found, moreover, that many of their thousands of employees are customers of ours. These companies expend large amounts in Omaha annually. I have recently learned that their combined assets and investments centered in Omaha exceed $150,000,000."

"I, therefore, move that we establish the rule that we shall hereafter require that Omaha insurance companies be offered their full line of insurance—fire, tornado, casualty, automobile, accident, together with business life insurance, before we purchase policies in any of the other companies."

From the Minutes: "The motion was unanimously adopted."
