Guest Conductor of Omaha Symphony From Family of Famed Musicians

Engelbert Roentgen Considered One of World's Greatest Cellists.

Engelbert Roentgen, guest conductor of the Omaha symphony orchestra, who is to direct the concert at the Auditorium Thursday night, has had an interesting musical career.

He is a member of a noted musical family. His grandfather was for many years concert master of the Gwendhaus orchestra in Leipzig. His father is a well known composer and director of the conservatory at Amsterdam, and his mother was a prominent Swedish concert violinist, while his brother, Julius, attained prominence as a member of the famous Kniesed quartet which played in Omaha a number of years ago.

Roentgen, who is regarded as one of the world's great cellists, began his studies at the age of 8 and continued for a number of years under the best masters of Europe. As a member of the Roentgen trio he has toured Europe with his father and brother, and as solo cellist with the Tonhalle orchestra at Zurich, the opera and the Philharmonic orchestra in Vienna he won fame.

In 1916 he was invited to join the Damosch orchestra in New York, where he continued until 1918, when he joined the field artillery of the Seventy-seventh division and engaged in several important battles in the world war. As a valuable souvenir of his war service, Roentgen has a cello, which he played in the war camps of France, which is entirely covered with autographs of his company and of famous generals, including Pershing, President Wilson and Margaret Woodrow Wilson. On the sides he carried his war diary. This cello, which Roentgen values at $10,000, was displayed in the Burgess-Nash window last spring and attracted much attention.

Following his release from the army he toured Europe with the New York Symphony orchestra and then went to Minneapolis to accept the position of first cellist and assistant conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, where he has been for the last four years.

Lad Breaks Down at Likelihood of Birthday in Jail

Youth Convicted of Manslaughter While Speeding Broken Hearted by Punishment.

A frail boy, huddled in the corner of a cell in the county jail, cried heart-brokenly Tuesday at the thought of spending Wednesday, his birthday, in prison.

The boy, Jimmy Decker, has been in jail for 107 days and recently was found guilty of careless driving by a jury in District Judge Fitzgerald's court. The accident which caused Jimmy's imprisonment resulted in the death of Thomas Healy, 4.

Jimmy's youth—he is only 19—and his previous good record for industriousness and faithfulness led Judge Fitzgerald to favor a parole for the boy. But objections raised by the father of the accident victim have led him to delay the parole.

Public Defender John Baldwin's efforts to comfort Jimmy were unavailing.

"I didn't mean to do anyone any harm," sobbed the boy. "I've always worked hard and I would do anything I could to help Mr. and Mrs. Healy. I'm sorrier that the accident happened than anyone will ever know, and it's not because I've had to suffer that I'm sorry, either. But I'm not a criminal, and I can't stand thinking about being in jail on my birthday."

Baldwin is thoroughly aroused over the case.

"The boy is breaking down under this punishment," said Baldwin. "He is frail physically and he is too sensitive to get along with other prisoners in the jail. They ridicule him and he doesn't understand them."

Even the jail attendants, hardened by their contact with all sorts of law violators, are touched by Jimmy's plight, and express the hope that he will soon be paroled.

Baldwin is determined to fight for the parole of the boy, and Tuesday morning issued a statement giving reasons why he is convinced the boy should be paroled.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

A feeling that is very queer. Will sometimes warn us friends are near. —Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit Has a Queer Feeling.

There are some people who call autumn the sad time of the year. In a way it is a sad time, for it is the time of parting with many friends. But even if he had to say goodbye to so many of his neighbors, Peter Rabbit never could be really sad. The cool, crisp air always made him feel good. Then, too, whenever he said goodbye to an old neighbor who was going away for the winter, he always thought of the joy of welcoming that neighbor back again in the spring.

Peter had gone over to Farmer Brown's garden. There was nothing to particularly interest him there now excepting a few old cabbage leaves. Still he liked to go up there. Now, as he sat munching a cabbage leaf, it popped into his head that he hadn't seen Old Mr. Toad for a long time.

"I wonder where the old fellow is," said Peter to himself between bites. "I wonder where he will spend the winter. I would like to say goodbye to him before he goes to sleep for the winter."

I've Hunted This Garden All Over, and Old Mr. Toad Isn't in It.

The winter, but I haven't the least idea where to look for him. The last time I saw him he was up here in the garden. But that was some time ago. I wonder if I can find him around here now."

So Peter started out to look for Old Mr. Toad. He hopped about all over Farmer Brown's garden. He looked under everything that he thought Old Mr. Toad could hide beneath. Not a trace of Old Mr. Toad did he find. Then he came back to that cabbage leaf and began to eat again. But as he ate a queer feeling took possession of Peter Rabbit. He couldn't get rid of it. He had the feeling that Old Mr. Toad was very near. Two or three times he stopped eating to look around, half expecting to see Old Mr. Toad sitting close at hand. But he didn't.

The very next evening Peter Rabbit was back in Farmer Brown's garden. He was after more cabbage. The cabbages had been gathered by Farmer Brown's boy, but the stalks still stood there in rows, with the big outer leaves clinging to them. Peter didn't think of Old Mr. Toad until he happened to stop by the same cabbage stalk he had sat by the night before. Then again he had that queer feeling that Old Mr. Toad was very near him. He even peeped under all the old cabbage leaves. He couldn't find Old Mr. Toad.

Peter scratched a long ear with a long hind foot. He was puzzled. He couldn't imagine why he should have that feeling that Old Mr. Toad was near, yet not be able to see him. "I don't see why I have that feeling," said he, talking to himself. "I've hunted this garden all over, and Old Mr. Toad isn't in it. I haven't the least idea where he is, but he certainly isn't in this garden."

Peter was wrong. Old Mr. Toad was in that garden. Not only was he in that garden, but he was very near to Peter, and that is why Peter had that queer feeling. The truth is, Peter was sitting right over Old Mr. Toad. Old Mr. Toad had gone to bed for the winter. He had dug down into the ground close to that very cabbage stalk. He had dug with his hind feet, as is his funny way. He had backed into the hole as he dug it, and the earth had fallen in over him and covered him up. He had dug down and down and down until he had felt sure that he was deep enough to be beyond the danger of freezing when Jack Frost should come and freeze the earth. Then he had gone to sleep.

So all the time that Peter was sitting there he was sitting right above Old Mr. Toad and didn't know it. That is how it happened that he had that queer feeling.

LEGION MEMBERS PLAN CROW SHOOT

Kearney, Nov. 18.—American Legion members are making plans for conducting a crow shoot this winter. Originally it was intended to hold the shoot during the early spring, but lovers of bird life feared that it might result in driving the insectivorous birds away just at nesting time and perhaps even result in many of them being accidentally killed. Crows have increased greatly in numbers here in recent years.

4 out of 5 are victims

The law of averages is immutable. Dental statistics prove that four out of every five over 40—and thousands younger, too—are married by Pyorrhea. Do you want to escape?

It takes healthy gums to keep healthy teeth

Bleeding gums are Nature's first warning of Pyorrhea. Then they begin to recede, lose that rich, pink color. Disease-breeding poisons collect in pus pockets and often drain through the entire system.

If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea, or check its progress—something ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to do. It contains just the right proportion of Forhan's Astringent (as used by the dental profession in the treatment of Pyorrhea). It is safe, efficient and pleasant tasting. Even if you don't care to discontinue your favorite dentifrice, at least start using Forhan's once a day.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

NEW POWDER FROM ITALY MAKES RHEUMATIC PAINS GO QUICKLY

The well-known Italian physicist, Alessandro Volta, for whom the electric volt has been named, has made a scientific discovery that promises to make rheumatic pain a thing of the past for the thousands who have suffered its terrible tortures.

He compounded a powder called Volta that is claimed to be a powerful and active Uric Acid solvent. It is not taken internally, but is shaken into the shoes or stockings and is absorbed through the pores in the soles of the feet. It is intended to be absorbed almost immediately into the blood, and this is due, no doubt, to the fact that the soles of the feet contain over ten times the number of pores in the square inch as does any other part of the body.

So remarkable and rapid have been the results from the use of Volta powder, both in this country and in Italy, that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense Volta with an unqualified guarantee of relief from the use of the very first package or your money will be refunded.

If you suffer from Rheumatic pains, Sciatica, Lumbago, Gout or Neuralgia, you owe it to yourself to try this remarkable new scientific treatment. It is absolutely harmless and will not cost one cent if you do not receive wonderful relief.

You can get a box of Volta, from such good druggists as: Sherman & McConnell, Boston, Drug, Haynes Pharmacy, Pope Drug Co.
