

Confessed Burglar Attempts to Leap From Jail Window

Seized by Officers Before as He Climbs Through Shattered Panes; Admits Four Thefts.

J. S. Harrison, 24, described by police as a "wildcat," admitted taking part in four burglaries Wednesday morning after he had snatched at a detective's gun, grappled with a half-dozen officers, and attempted to leap to freedom through a closed window from the second floor of police headquarters.

George Downey, 23, arrested with Harrison by Former Police Sergeant Olaf Thestrup after a chase and a fight Tuesday night, admitted participation in the burglaries.

The men were held at the city jail and were questioned separately Wednesday morning. When Harrison was being questioned by Chief of Detectives Ben Danbaum, Thestrup, Detective William Davis and others, Davis, who was standing beside him, turned his back for a moment.

Harrison pounced on him like a cat and grabbed for the officer's gun. Davis whirled on him, but Harrison attempted to pin his arms, still struggling for the gun. As the other officers leaped toward him Harrison broke away and raced for the window. He made a flying jump for the pane and smashed it to bits, but was seized by the officers before he could climb through.

Admits Four Robberies. Under further questioning Harrison admitted four robberies which he and Downey had committed in the two months that they have been in Omaha. Downey, when told of this confession, admitted his own part. Both men implicated Harry Loveman, 23, as the "lookout" for their robberies. Loveman was arrested at 114 North Eighteenth street, where the three had been staying, and is held for investigation. The men said they had come to Omaha from Baltimore, Md.

A quantity of loot was found in the men's rooms. One ring, valued at $275, was identified as one stolen from Ivan Gaddis, newspaper man, 3217 Pacific street, a week ago.

The other robberies confessed included the homes of C. E. Hasse, 3008 Pacific street; Morris Segal, 143 North Thirty-third street, and E. P. Billings, 421 North Thirty-third street. Jewelry and 2,000 gold rouble notes, worth nearly $1,000, stolen from the Segal home, were found in the loot. The gun which Downey carried was stolen from the home of E. P. Billings shortly before their arrest.

BUSINESS MAN HAS FAITH IN AIR MAIL

Inauguration of night air mail flying between New York and Chicago has given business men final proof of the effective functioning of the air mail service, according to a statement issued Wednesday from the office of Postmaster Charles E. Black.

When night flying was first begun, the statement says, it was only practicable from the eastern side of the Mississippi valley to the foot of the Rocky mountains, and for this reason New York business men used the service principally for mail destined to Omaha or points farther west.

The effectiveness of this service, however, caused thousands of firms to petition for the additional service. The air mail has now proved its worth so effectively, the statement says, that several planes will probably be used in daily service in each direction.
