

President's Note Expresses Grief

Message of Condolence Over Death of Mrs. Harding Sent to George B. Christian, Jr.

Washington, Nov. 21.—President and Mrs. Coolidge kept closely in touch with the progress of Mrs. Harding's last illness. They sent her a message yesterday expressing hope for her recovery, and as soon as her death became known today the president addressed this telegram to George B. Christian, Jr. "Please express to the members of Mrs. Harding's family the sincere condolences of Mrs. Coolidge and myself. We share in the fullest measure the sorrow which her death brings to them. We are disappointed that her brave fight was in vain, but it is a source of pride to know that she made it and made it so valiantly as to arouse the admiration of her countless friends. "We shall never forget her unceasing and helpful friendship for us, which will become an increasingly sweet and grateful memory. "The whole nation mourns for her. Our deepest sympathy goes out to those nearest and dearest to her. "At the president's direction, the flag at the White House will fly at half-mast until after the funeral services Monday. Mr. Coolidge also sent Capt. Adolphus Andrews, his naval aide, to Marion to render such assistance as is possible, and designated Secretaries Weeks and Work to represent him at the funeral.

ANGLO-RUSS TRADE PACT REPUDIATED

London, Nov. 21.—The commercial treaties made by the recent MacDonald labor government with Christian Rakovsky and his Russian soviet trade delegation will not be put into effect, the Exchange Telegraph this evening quoted Austin Chamberlain as saying. "After due deliberation," said the communication attributed to Chamberlain, "his majesty's government find themselves unable to recommend the treaties for consideration by parliament or to submit them to the king."

FARMER INJURED MYSTERIOUSLY

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Columbus, Neb., Nov. 21.—James Vaughn, farmer, living in northern Platte county, suffered severe injuries last night. Vaughn had gone to the barn to do his chores. He was found lying unconscious between the barn and house, badly injured about the head. His blood-spattered hat was found in the barn. Whether he was attacked by animals or man he does not know.

NEBRASKA GAS CASE REMANDED

The United States circuit court of appeals of St. Louis Friday overruled the decision of the trial judge in the suit brought by Stromberg, Neb., to enjoin the Nebraska Gas and Electric company from failing to conform to franchise rates and to compel the company to turn back an alleged excessive collection. The court reversed the decision and remanded the case for retrial with instructions to find whether the franchise rates were in fact confiscatory.

WOAW TO CHANGE BROADCAST HOURS

WOAW will change its schedule of evening broadcasting for one week, beginning Sunday, in order to allow American experimenters to attempt to hear European stations during the trial broadcastings. WOAW will begin its second evening program at 8:15 instead of 9 p. m. All stations in the United States will be silent from 10 to 11 p. m. WOAW will use a 333 meter wave length during this program.

Reference Suit Begun.

Jury was drawn and trial started Friday morning in the case of the Business Men's Reference association, which was appealed from municipal to district court. The defendants, Talmadge G. and Wynman C. Beebe, claim that they are not compelled to take out a license under the law governing labor agencies.

Mrs. Warren G. Harding Won Admiration of Omaha on Visit Here With Husband on Campaign Tour in October, 1920

Joked With Camera Men at Hotel Fontenelle; Smile Radiated to All Who Saw Her.

Mrs. Warren G. Harding visited Omaha on October 7, 1920, while on a campaign tour with her husband, then United States senator and nominee for president. Without any apparent effort, Mrs. Harding endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact. She was endowed with good cheer, tact, a love for all good and beautiful things. The special train bearing the Harding party arrived at Des Moines about 8 a. m. Mrs. Harding stepped from her car and greeted the newspaper men and others along the platform with "Good morning, everyone." "We love her," remarked an eastern newspaper man to one of the Omahans in Des Moines to meet the train. Her smile and lovely nature radiated to all around her. Message to Omaha Women. On the railroad platform at Des Moines she was asked for a message to the women of Omaha where she was due in the afternoon. "You may tell the women of Omaha that I am pleased to see women come into their own and to play their part in the sphere of governmental affairs," she said. "I am traveling in the reflected glory of the senator. I am getting lots of pleasure out of this trip. The Lord is on our side and He sent this beautiful sunshine which has been with us since we left Marion."

Had Sense of Humor.

Mrs. Harding had a sense of humor. When she arrived in Omaha and was about to step from her automobile at Hotel Fontenelle, a camera man said: "Let me take your picture." "Oh, I don't take a good picture," she replied, with a merry twinkle in her eye, while she was getting ready to accommodate the picture man. "You're too beautiful," the camera man replied. "You need spectacles," Mrs. Harding rejoined, whereupon all laughed. Commenting on her home life Mrs. Harding said "My husband is my fad." She specialized in waffles which President Harding enjoyed, and she supervised the cultivation of flowers at the White House as she did at the Harding home in Marion. Mrs. Draper Smith, now in a hospital, was one of the leaders among the women who received Mrs. Harding on the occasion of her Omaha visit. Others in the committee were Mrs. S. R. McKelvie and Miss May Ferthing.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

Who by his wife his living gains Doth get no nothing for his pains. —Paddy the Beaver.

Why Old Man Coyote Got No Beaver Dinner. Old Man Coyote, his eyes glistening and his mouth watering, crouched in a clump of ferns and watched Paddy the Beaver and Mrs. Paddy come up from their pond to a tree just a little way from where he was hiding. He fairly trembled with eagerness. That tree was an aspen tree. Aspen bark is the favorite food of Paddy and Mrs. Paddy. The tree was already nearly cut through. It was clear that Paddy and Mrs. Paddy were coming up to finish the job. It was all Old Man Coyote could do to remain in hiding, but he knew that he must wait until the unsuspecting Beavers were at work. Then he would have a better chance to catch one of them. Just now they were too watchful. He must wait until they had made up their minds that all was safe.

Paddy and Mrs. Paddy Came Slowly up From the Water.

Paddy and Mrs. Paddy came slowly up from the water. When they reached that tree they stopped. While Paddy carefully examined the tree where they had been cutting it Mrs. Paddy sat testing the Little Night Breezes with her nose for any telltale scent of enemies they might carry. Fortunately for Old Man Coyote none of the Little Night Breezes had passed his way. Of course, Mrs. Paddy didn't smell him. Paddy sat up, put his hands on the tree and went to work with his great teeth. He hit out his chips. But Mrs. Paddy didn't go to help him. She still sat there, testing the Little Night Breezes and looking and listening. Old Man Coyote impatiently wondered why she didn't also go to work. He wouldn't dare move until she did.

His wondering was brought to a sudden end by a startling thump on the ground. Paddy had slapped the ground hard with that big, flat tail of his. It was a signal to Mrs. Paddy to watch out. Paddy himself had run toward the pond an instant after giving the signal. Then there was a cracking and snapping, and before Old Man Coyote understood what was happening that tree came down with a crash straight into that clump of ferns! It was well for Old Man Coyote that that tree was not taller and bigger. As it was, only the slender top struck him. But that struck hard enough to hurt. It stung. It was like being struck with a whip.

BREWERY ASKS BEER DESTROYED

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Attorneys for the Mutual Brewery here today sent a request to Major Owen, federal prohibition director, asking that his agents destroy 3,000 barrels of real beer. The attorneys explained it had been made lawfully for the purpose of extracting the alcoholic content above one-half of 1 per cent but that the brewery now has more stock on hand than it needs and does not want the real beer on the premises. "All such requests are duly complied with," Major Owen remarked as he gave instructions to agents to dump the 3,000 barrels in a sewer tomorrow.

COUPLE REUNITED AFTER 25 YEARS

Danbury, Conn., Nov. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Stephen O'Dell, 74 and 70, respectively, have resumed housekeeping here after a separation of 25 years. School-day chums, they married 35 years ago in New Milford, where they lived happily together for 10 years when O'Dell suddenly disappeared. Going to Bridgeport, O'Dell assumed the name of Jack Hussy, obtained employment and remained until recently. Becoming homesick, O'Dell said, he revisited his old haunts in New Milford. Through friends he and his wife were reunited.

MUTINY REPORTED IN RUSSIAN NAVY

London, Nov. 21.—Mutiny has broken out in the Russian navy at Kronstadt, the principal fortress and military port of Russia, according to an unconfirmed report from that city. The heavily fortified port lies 20 miles west of Leningrad. It is connected with the metropolis by a channel through which deep sea ships pass to the Leningrad wharves. Emerson—A carnival held here three days under the auspices of the American Legion band was attended by a large number of people. The receipts amounted to over $500.
