God Told Her.
England's New Fleet.
Washington, in Butter.
The Oldest Priest.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

A Polish woman, in a fit of religious mania, cuts off the head of her sleeping employer with an ax, and tries to kill his wife and daughter. Taken to the police station, she explained that God ordered her to do the killing.

That is not new. In old days maniacs of various religions used to butcher and burn alive selected victims, explaining that God desired the killing for His glory. In those days the people did not know enough to lock them up, they stood around and applauded.

England now has 18 squadrons of fighting airplanes. The number will be raised to 52 squadrons. And the British have established a separate air force, independent of the army and navy and above both.

Air Marshal Sir John Salmond will command the air force, the new fleet upon which the British empire will rely, as it used to rely on its floating ships.

Here we have no squadrons, no separate air forces. We have a few inadequate, pitched up machines in which our men risk their lives every time they fly. Our air force is under ancient dodos of the army and navy, ruled by selfish interests seeking to conceal the fact that battalions are out of date.

President Coolidge will change that. Somebody, called "Erndite," has made an improved translation of the Bible, into modern English. The mess of pottage becomes a "red omelet," "begat" is changed to "was the father of." Archaic words are left out. "God's covenant" becomes a "compact."

The new Bible will be as much like the real Bible as a butter statue of George Washington at a dairy show is like George Washington. The revised version is bad enough. This version is like rewriting Wagner's Evening Star song into ragtime.

Father John J. Roche, oldest Catholic priest in the world, is dead at Wexford, in Ireland, aged 100. Father Roche, who attended the funeral of Daniel O'Connell in 1847, has probably told O'Connell, by now, that the Irish have not lost their fighting power and that he, O'Connell, and the other brave men did not fight in vain.

Henry Adelbert Somerset, duke of Beaufort, is dead. He probably spent time asking "what is England coming to?" Especially after MacDonald reached power.

What did his grace do, with his education, rank, money, thousands of acres, and seat in the house of lords, to make England better?

He lived and died "master of the fox hounds." Servants bred the hounds. Tenants "walked the puppies." Grooms broke, bit, exercised and cleaned the hunters. His Grace put on his pink coat, rode, and pretended to "hunt" his hounds, while the whips really managed them. That is a modern duke for you. And we have some imitations of them here. They won't last.

Republican senators have voted "out of the republican party" Senators La Follette, Brookhart, Ladd and Frazier. They will not be admitted to regular conferences or named to fill any committee vacancies that may occur.

That is all good advertising for the four ostracized.

The synagogue in Holland excommunicated Spinoza with most terrible maledictions, declaring that his name must never again be mentioned by anybody.

The big men of the synagogue are remembered only because they signed that foolish, futile document. The four senators will be important in politics, when a majority of those that seek to ostracize them are forgotten.

Fifty stocks climbed up to new high prices today. The stock boom is hurrying bond sales, and savings bank deposits. Those that continue to buy good bonds and continue their visits to the savings bank will laugh last.

Money for speculation was dearer, 4 per cent instead of the 2 per cent. Even that is cheap, when rising prices enable the speculator to double his stake overnight. Prices are not high yet. They are low, if prosperity is really sound, and if you select the right stocks. There are stocks selling a little above par that are intrinsically worth three times par, and may be worth three times more.

Eldridge, a British automobile racer, has broken all records in France by driving his car 10 miles at an average speed of 121 miles an hour.

When will railroads utilize the lightness, speed and economy of the gas engine, breaking up their long heavy suburban trains now stopping everywhere, and send out passengers and trains in sections, those for the more distant points starting first, and all on a non-stop basis?

Two more Chinese were killed yesterday in the tong wars. They were thoroughly killed. One was criddled with bullets, the other with 18 knife thrusts. Eight similar murders have been committed within a few days.

European nations have their own courts, for trying their citizens on Chinese territory. The Chinese have their own courts dealing with their nationals, here on our territory.

It is hard, even for those that know our seasoned gunmen, to comprehend the reckless fury with which the tong men carry out orders to kill. The man named is as good as dead when his name is pronounced, and the killers are sent on their errand.

SHAKESPEARE TO BE PLAYED HERE

In the repertoire of Fritz Leiber, who will open his engagement at the Brandeis tonight, "Hamlet," is perhaps the most popular play. True this is the play in which the young star made his New York debut as a star six years ago and in which he achieved a noteworthy triumph, "Hamlet," is the play that best typifies Shakespeare's genius. For the local engagement, Mr. Leiber will be seen as "Hamlet" tonight, "Macbeth" tomorrow night, Brutus in "Julius Caesar" Wednesday matinee and "Antony and Cleopatra" on Wednesday night.

VETERAN RAIL EMPLOYEE DIES

Henry Templeton Reed, 71, veteran employe of the Illinois Central railroad, died Sunday at his home, 2706 Fowler avenue. He is survived by his widow, Lillian Adair; three sons, William and Harry of Peoria and Hunter Peak of Omaha, and one daughter, Mrs. Ophelia Adair Tilsforth of Omaha. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon from the residence. Burial will be in Forest Lawn cemetery.

Jewish Community Center Celebrates Start of Building

Widow of Man Who Made Structure Possible Turns First Earth—Will House All Activities.

The formal beginning of the construction of the Jewish Community center was observed Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Bertha Levy turned over the first earth in the presence of 1,900 attendants. Morris Levy, husband of Mrs. Levy, pledged $50,000 toward the building fund, and this pledge has been observed by the widow.

Henry Monsky, speaker of the day, is a member of the board of trustees and of the building and site committee. During his address he said: "This occasion marks the realization of the hopes and aspirations of the Jewish community. These hopes have extended over a period of 20 years. The occasion marks the beginning of a new era in our welfare activities. It reassures us of the undiminished spiritual values which characterize our Jewish life."

The late Morris Levy, our beloved leader in this work, by his good will and munificent contribution, transformed the hopes and dreams of many years into a reality, and yet he was forbidden the joy of sharing in that realization. It is a manifestation of the community's gratitude and in reverence of his memory, that his widow turns the first earth on this site.

"Not only by its special Americanization activities but by making better Jews and consequently better American citizens, will this institution render a valuable service to our city, state and country."

The site of the new Jewish community building is at the northeast corner of Twentieth and Dodge streets. It is estimated that the building will cost $250,000. The institution will house the Jewish Welfare Federation, the Y. W. H. A., the Y. M. H. A., and will have various recreational and educational activities. Lodge rooms will be provided. Rabbi Frederick Cohn and Rabbi J. M. Charlap participated in the exercises.

Members of the building and site committee are: Dr. Philip Sher, H. A. Wolf, Joe Wolf, Harry Mallashock, William L. Holzman, Jacob Slosburgh, Jr., Henry Monsky and Harry Lapidus. Mr. Holzman is president of the board of directors of the incorporation.

MAHON CHILDREN WIN OLD FARM

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Ponca, Neb., Nov. 30.—In a land case involving 160 acres of improved farm lands near Waterbury, valued at $20,000, children and heirs of Barney Mahon, who was an early pioneer and homesteader in this locality, won the supreme court decision against A. L. White. The land being just over the line in Dakota county, the case first was tried in district court at Dakota City and decided against the heirs of Mr. Mahon in 1922. The case was appealed and just last week the supreme court reversed the decision, giving the land to the Mahon heirs.

Barney Mahon homesteaded this land in 1877 and was well known here as an old settler and progressive farmer. He died in August, 1903, while living on the farm, leaving six minor children from 3 to 12 years old. Later when the land was in possession of Mr. White, upon investigation of the title to the lands and the court records at Dakota City by the attorneys for the heirs, C. A. Kingsbury and C. H. Hendrickson, it was decided to bring suit, which resulted in intricate questions of law and the final decision by the supreme court.

Herman Heyn, proprietor of the Lumiere studio, Baird building, Seventeenth and Douglas streets, specialized in the taking of character photographs. The taking of character photographs is not a mechanical problem, but is the result of thought, study and experience," Mr. Heyn says. "The artist photographer depends upon his personality and good fellowship to obtain a pleasing and natural reproduction of his subject." Mr. Heyn says that many photographers still employ the old-fashioned method of directing the position and attitude of the subject by words and gesture. "Character photographs cannot be obtained by this method," he says.

HARLEY-DAVIDSON CYCLE IN DEMAND

Victor H. Roos, 2701 Leavenworth street, reports a popular demand for the new 1925 Harley-Davidson motorcycle now on display at the firm's show rooms. "The demand for the new model enables us to offer attractive prices on used machines," says Mr. Roos. "These machines have been taken in on trade and represent some of the best values of the season."

DOCTOR ADVISES EYE EXAMINATION

"It is the mind which sees, hears, feels, checks and corrects the report of the senses. What gives man his power over beasts is not the superiority of his sense mechanism, for it is inferior in many respects to that of certain beasts, insects, and birds. Man triumphs because he is a thinking animal," says Dr. McCarthy, eye specialist, fifth floor Douglas block, Sixteenth and Dodge streets. "All knowledge is acquired through the senses. If any sense is impaired, all our judgments are warped. It is estimated that 85 per cent of all knowledge comes through our eyes," says McCarthy.

"In a recent survey made in New York city it was found that about 80 per cent of the school children had some form of eye trouble. Parents should have their children's eyes examined twice a year," advises McCarthy, "as eye trouble in form handicaps the child in his studies."

Dr. McCarthy has a method of straightening cross-eyes that has met with due popularity. A specially ground lens is used.
