County Farm Sale Approved by West Leavenworth Club

Report That University of Omaha Contemplates Purchase If Land on Market Wins Favor.

A special committee of the West venworth Improvement club will report favorably Monday night on the roposition of moving the county tospital to a location in Douglas county, beyond the limits of the city of Omaha.

This committee was named by President John F. Dailey at a regular meeting of the club on Monday night, November 17, and was directed to investigate the situation and report back to the club in two weeks. Members of the committee are A. E. J. Gernandt and A. Wisler.

Behind him he could Keyes said. hear the frightened cackling of hens in the henhouse, the sound of a man's footsteps as he ran toward the henhouse, and the excited yelping of a dog. It was dark and he knew that he hadn't been seen. But he also knew that it wouldn't be long before that dog would find his scent.

As a matter of fact, it was only a few minutes before the voice of that dog broke into steady baying. It meant that that dog had found his scent and was after him. Reddy ran his best, but that dog was gaining fast. The scent was so strong and fresh that it was easy for that dog to follow. Reddy knew that he couldn't carry that hen and hope to outrun that dog. As he jumped over an old stone wall Reddy tossed the chilcken to one side. Then he jumped back on the wall and ran along it for some distance. Finally he jumped out as far as he could and then how he did run! When he began to get short of breath he sat down and list-

Reddy grinned as he listened. That dog hadn't yet found the place where Reddy had jumped from the old stone-wall. He knew all about that dog. It was a young dog with a very good nose, but a dog without much experience. He was not yet wise in the ways of a Fox. "I'm glad it isn't Bowser the Hound," thought Reddy. "It won't take me long to fool this fellow. That man won't follow in the dark, so I haven't got to worry about him. I'll lead that dog off far enough so that it will take him some time to get back home. Then I'll lose him." Pretty soon the steady baying of the dog warned Reddy that it was time to move on again. He didn't try to break his trail. He wanted to leave
