

Omaha Business Men Are Carefree; Just Try to Find Them Working

Omaha business men work but four hours a day. At least, that is the number of hours when they can be found in their places of business.

If you don't believe it, try to reach 150 of them by telephone some day.

Otis Alvison, cashier of the Omaha National bank, was given the job recently of calling 150 prominent business men to invite them to be guests of W. W. Head, president of the bank, at a dinner for Governor Bryan and the capital commission. He began calling at 8:30 a. m. when he got to his desk at the bank. Only a few of Omaha's executives answered the phone. By 9:30 he had better luck.

From 11:30 to 2 o'clock he again met with dismal failure. Some sweet miss at the other end of the line would say, "Mr. So-and-So" is at the Blank club for lunch, and will not be back until 2 o'clock.

At 4 o'clock hard luck started again. The answers to his calls were that "Mr. So-and-So is gone for the day."

After two days of "real hard work," Alvison got 150 Omahans to partake of the dinner and hear from the governor and the other invited guests.

"And I, a cashier in a bank, come down at 8:30 a. m., and never leave until 5:30," Alvison said.

BURGESS-NASH

STOCK GOES FAST

Men competed with seasoned women bargain hunters Saturday in a struggle for the attention of clerks in the offering of men's and boys' clothing and furnishings and the furniture and rugs which were placed on sale at the Brandeis store in advance of the storewide sale in which the entire Burgess-Nash stock will be included.

Before 9 o'clock crowds of buyers were pressing on the chairs at the Sixteenth street entrance. At the 9 o'clock bell they surged into the store and separated into the departments where Burgess-Nash stocks were on sale. By noon the crowds had increased until salespeople were finding it extremely difficult to meet the demands upon them.

The work of moving is going on rapidly, according to Harry Zimman, treasurer for J. L. Brandeis & Sons. Every bit of merchandise will be in the Brandeis store by Monday morning.

"Helped Me Gain Strength"

Mrs. L. P. Lambert, for several years a popular school-teacher at Morse, Louisiana, tells the following story of how she used to be afflicted, and how she recovered better health:

"I would ache all over. My feet, my toes, my arms, hands, head—my whole body seemed to be in one awful pain. I would grow so nervous that I could not hold a cup in my hand. My husband would have to hold my coffee for me to drink. Last fall I was in such a bad condition that I had to spend about three days in bed every month. It seemed to me that I was on my last go-round."

Then one day, said Mrs. Lambert, she happened to read about Cardui and the experiences of some women who had been helped by it.

"I felt that Cardui might help me if I tried it," she continued, "for I had been suffering with similar troubles to those mentioned there. I had heard of Cardui all my life and I knew many women who said they had been helped by it. The very next day I began to take it."

"Very soon after, I began to notice my improvement. I kept on till I felt like a different woman. I gained in weight from 98 pounds to 115 and felt better than I had in years. I took six bottles right along and found it a splendid tonic. My suffering was partly due to a run-down condition and the Cardui stimulated my appetite and helped me to gain the strength I needed. . . . I take a bottle every now and then, even now, just as a tonic to keep up my strength, but I am in better health than I have been in for years."

All druggists sell Cardui. Try it.
