Weddings Hold Prominent Place in Events of 1925

Weddings will take a prominent place in the social events of January, though two of the very interesting ones will be solemnized in other cities.

Miss Maude Borup and C. T. Kountze will be married January 17 in St. Paul. The marriage of Miss Esther Meyer and David Caldwell will take place in Miami, Fla., Wednesday, January 14.

On January 21, at St. Cecilia, Miss Stella Murphy will be married to Otto Schmitt of Chicago.

Many other ceremonies will follow in the year. Among them will be Miss Elizabeth Elliott's marriage to Phil Downs; Miss Flora Shukert and George Wilfred Summers whose engagement was announced Sunday; Miss Fredricka Nash and Dick Stewart; Miss Mary Findley and Fred Telgier of Fremont whose ceremony will take place in June; Miss Thelma Burke and George E. Wilson, Miss Winifred Smith and Charles Brown who have not set their date. Miss Elizabeth Barker will become the bride of Irving Busing of Toronto in the early summer. Miss Olive Means has not set her wedding date though her engagement has been announced.

Miss Frances Patton has not set the date of her wedding to Ralph Campbell but it probably will be an event of early spring.

Greetings by Radio Received at Banquet of Pawnee City Club

Pawnee City, Jan. 5.—A novel greeting to the Worth White club of this city came from a former member of the organization, now living at Kansas City, Mo., at the annual banquet of the club. A verse for every member of the Worth Whites was sung to the tune of "How Do You Do?" over the radio from a Kansas City broadcasting station. E. S. Nesbitt, author of the verses, formerly lived here and is now development manager for the Kansas City Radio company.

Lemon Pie.

Line a pie pan with crust, and have it extend one-half inch above edge to hold filling in place. Bake crust until slightly brown and piece with fork to prevent wrinkling before baking. Filling—Take three tablespoons corn starch, one cup sugar. Mix and add one and one-half cups boiling water. Stir constantly and boil five minutes. Remove from fire. Add one tablespoon of butter, juice of one lemon and yolks of two eggs beaten and blended with a tablespoon of the cooked mixture. Put filling in crust and return to oven and bake until filling bubbles. Beat the two egg whites until stiff and dry. Add four tablespoons of sugar, a few drops lemon juice and for an especial flavor, one-fourth teaspoon orange extract and one-fourth teaspoon pineapple extract. Spread over pie and bake until slightly brown.

London, Jan. 5.—Many Americans in London entertained lavishly on New Year's evening. Joseph M. Schenck, who came over to London to look after general film matters had a party of 12 at the Savoy where Mrs. Burn Callender of Washington, also gave a big children's party in the afternoon. In the Savoy cafe in the evening was Mrs. Harry Rosenkrantz of Los Angeles just back from an Indian trip, wearing a famous rope of pink pearls that belonged to a former Rance of Sarawak, and said to be 1,000 years old.

Lasell Club.

Your Problems

by Martha Allen
Disappointed in Friend.
Dear Miss Allen: I am a young married woman of 24. When I was 17 I had a very dear girl friend who moved out of town. I missed her terribly and she missed having me for a friend. We wrote to each other often and exchanged presents every Christmas. After she had been away three years her father and mother died in the same year and she was left with quite a little money. From that time on she began writing about love affairs, but something always happened and she never married.

Madge Investigates a Lurker in the Hedge.

I rose early on Monday morning, for I knew that Mother Graham's impatience would insist upon my getting to the bank as soon as the institution opened its doors and obtaining the $100 in currency which she had asked of me. I was anxious, moreover, to lend a hand in the many domestic details of the Durkee ménage under the combined stress of the new baby and the incursion of our family into the house because of my mother-in-law's accident.

"I Haven't Answered."

"Thank you," she said shyly, her cheeks flaming. "But—" she stopped abruptly.

People Nag Her.

Dear Miss Allen: I am 25 and have been married twice. I have a little girl living with my first husband and he has a nice home for her. My second husband and his folks nag me continually, as we live together. I am not of the same religion and they say I am not my second husband's wife by the law of God. They admit that by the law of the world I am. Please tell me what to do to settle my worried brain. I will never join their religion until I see their viewpoint.

John: If your former sweetheart is dead, certainly it is all right for you to go with another girl. In fact, it is much better for you to have friends than to go about alone. I cannot furnish you with the names of girls, but I am sure you can find for yourself some one who will be friendly and companionable.

shook her playfully before stooping to kiss her.

"Go Ahead and Work."

Her fluffiness always capitulates most gracefully when she sees the inevitable in front of her, so I was not surprised to hear her give a silly little laugh at my threat.

but whisked Marlon away to the closet where Mrs. Durkee keeps all her cleaning utensils. For the next two hours, interrupted only by breakfast and the dressing of Junior, Marlon and I ran the cleaner, dusted and rubbed furniture until I was sure that the result satisfied even the critical eyes of our little hostess.
