

In Society

For Noted Musicians. Guests at the executive council of the woman's division, chamber of commerce, Wednesday noon at the chamber will be Mr. and Mrs. Englebert Roentgen, Mme. Renee Chemet, Mr. and Mrs. August M. Borglum, Jean Duffield, H. K. Mansfield and Ernest Nordin.

Mr. and Mrs. August Borglum will entertain Mr. and Mrs. Roentgen and Mme. Chemet at dinner Wednesday night.

Gamet-Schwarz. On Sunday afternoon at 4 Rev. Charles Holler of Trinity Baptist church, united in marriage Miss Catherine Schwarz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Schwarz, and Everett Gamet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ada Gamet. The bride was attended by Miss Vera Gamet, sister of the groom, and Harry Anderson attended the groom.

Depart for California. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Peters, who leave this week for California, were entertained at dinner Monday night by the Frank Selby and will be honored tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. T. Belt.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Peters will occupy the R. C. Peters' home during the latter's absence.

Pilgrim Club. Mrs. L. J. Blake will be hostess for the Pilgrim club at her home, 4826 Dewey avenue, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Prize Winner

For the second successive year, Miss Ann Longman, member of the Nebraska State Journal staff, Lincoln, has won first place in the Omaha Woman's Press club contest, fiction class, according to announcement made Monday at the annual banquet of the club at Hotel Fontenelle. Mrs. Guy Spencer, Omaha, and Trella Lamson Dick of North Platte were accorded second and third places by the judges, W. R. Watson, Ralph E. Bailey and Anna Steese Richardson of New York.

Your Problems by Martha Allen

Boys Does Not Answer Letters. Dear Miss Allen: I am a girl in my middle teens. I have written to a boy from another town for quite a while. He did not answer my last letter as soon as I thought he should, and so when I wrote him, I was rather harsh. He has never answered. I would like your advice as to whether I should write again, as I regard his friendship very highly. PAT.

You should not write again. The second letter was a mistake, and a third one would be just that much worse.

Two Lonesome Girls: People are very likely to be lonesome if they have nothing in their heads to keep them company. Try a little good reading, or some worth while pursuit, if it's nothing better than learning to be a good skater. You will be happier if you have some definite aims. Busy people are never lonesome.

Just Me: There's no real objection to serve pie, cake and fruit with the same meal except that it is too much food. The best people don't do it. Ice cream and cake are all right together, or vice versa and pie. But the three dishes you mention are more than good taste permits.

H. G.: Even in a worldly way, it pays to make a kindness so much a rule of life that it is second nature. And it's the only way to deserve or win true love.

How is the man you love going to know you truly if you play a part with him? He'll like you for yourself if you are natural and unassuming. Then when you wed there'll be no bitter disillusionment.

So be natural if you'd be at ease and put others at ease—make real friends and win true love honestly.

Pals: A girl 5 feet 3 inches tall, 15 years old, should weigh 120 pounds. That weight increases as she grows older, so that a woman of 60, that height, should weigh 145 pounds. Your writing is legible.

Worried: I think the young man who asks you not to go with the other boy is unreasonable. Let him alone. He will get over his peevishness.

Smiles: If your girl chum is not refined and humiliates you, better stop going with her. Continue giving her a friendship which may be helpful, but don't give her a companionship which brings you no real pleasure.

Dood: Your decision about the young man should rest on your regard for him. You are young to mar-

Carey Cleaning Fluid, 25c. at Drugstores 521 Park Ave.—Advertisement.

Buehler Bros. advertisement listing various meats and prices. Choice Beef Pot Roast 9c, Choice Beef Chuck Roast 11c, etc.

A Wife's Confessional by Adele Garrison

Madge Gets a Clue From a Torn Postcard. Despite the vaunted impassiveness of all Chinese, there was a distinctly mournful cadence in Lee Chow's voice as he uttered the words, "and I never see big boss man again," which betrayed how deep and sincere was his affection for Hugh Grantland, whom he had served so long and so faithfully.

"That Questioning Vigil." He paused, evidently in reminiscence of his own quandry, while I had a swift mental photograph of that questioning vigil before his master's desk.

"Le Chow think hard for ve' long time," the impetuous voice went on, "and then he open desk and look at papers. He find nothing tell him anything, but in wastebasket he find these."

Fumbling in his coat he brought out an envelope, which he held out to me. I noticed that it had no scrap of writing upon it and I turned it over hesitatingly.

"Open it," Lee Chow commanded, "but lose nothing."

I obeyed him and drew from the envelope the torn fragments of a postal card of the same fashion as those which Hugh Grantland had sent me for so long. From his coat Lee Chow produced a thick manila envelope and laid it down upon the tree trunk.

"Put pieces on this," he directed, and I did so, fitting the torn edges together. My pulses accelerated as I saw that my name and address were written on the card in the fashion made so familiar to me by Hugh Grantland's faithful adherence to his self-imposed schedule of mailing cards to me.

Something else was on the card, also—a word followed by the initials 'N. Y.' which had been so slashed across by an ink-dipped pen that I could discern but a few letters of it. It was pitifully clear what had happened. Hugh Grantland had written his usual postal card to me, giving me his next change of address. Then ry, but with your father and mother dead, I think a home of your own would be the best place for you, provided you marry for love and not for the home. A girl of any pluck, and certainly a high school graduate, can earn her own living. So don't marry because you are lazy and lacking in enterprise, but because you have found the man to whom you can be kind, faithful and loving, and a worthy wife.

Mary Jane: No, please do not give a boy liberties with your person. Any book store can supply you with a volume on etiquette.

Lee Chow think maybe big boss man come back sometime, find out talkie talk, kick Lee Chow out. But Lee Chow got very sore heart, and at last he go in library and sit down before big boss man's desk and think hard. Shall he open desk and see if he can find something maybe tell him where to look for big boss man?"

For some reason he had decided not to send it and had torn it up, after destroying, as he thought, the address he had put down upon the card.

With fingers that trembled I took up the fragments of card which contained the ink-crossed name and scanned it closely. There had come to me suddenly and insistently the conviction that if I could decipher that name I would hold in my hands some clue, however faint, to the fate of Hugh Grantland, whose wild, weird letter to me, as well as his mysterious disappearance, pointed to his being involved in some tragedy.

"May I have these, Lee Chow?" I asked.

"I bring them for you," he said. "Maybe you know something from them after a while about big boss man. You look, find out, then you tell Lee Chow."

"I surely will tell you everything I can find out, Lee Chow," I said earnestly. "Is there anything more you wish to tell me?"

"No more," he replied. "Lee Chow wait."

"I obeyed him and drew from the envelope the torn fragments of a postal card of the same fashion as those which Hugh Grantland had sent me for so long. From his coat Lee Chow produced a thick manila envelope and laid it down upon the tree trunk."

"Put pieces on this," he directed, and I did so, fitting the torn edges together. My pulses accelerated as I saw that my name and address were written on the card in the fashion made so familiar to me by Hugh Grantland's faithful adherence to his self-imposed schedule of mailing cards to me.

Something else was on the card, also—a word followed by the initials 'N. Y.' which had been so slashed across by an ink-dipped pen that I could discern but a few letters of it. It was pitifully clear what had happened. Hugh Grantland had written his usual postal card to me, giving me his next change of address. Then ry, but with your father and mother dead, I think a home of your own would be the best place for you, provided you marry for love and not for the home. A girl of any pluck, and certainly a high school graduate, can earn her own living. So don't marry because you are lazy and lacking in enterprise, but because you have found the man to whom you can be kind, faithful and loving, and a worthy wife.

Mary Jane: No, please do not give a boy liberties with your person. Any book store can supply you with a volume on etiquette.

Lee Chow think maybe big boss man come back sometime, find out talkie talk, kick Lee Chow out. But Lee Chow got very sore heart, and at last he go in library and sit down before big boss man's desk and think hard. Shall he open desk and see if he can find something maybe tell him where to look for big boss man?"

With fingers that trembled I took up the fragments of card which contained the ink-crossed name and scanned it closely. There had come to me suddenly and insistently the conviction that if I could decipher that name I would hold in my hands some clue, however faint, to the fate of Hugh Grantland, whose wild, weird letter to me, as well as his mysterious disappearance, pointed to his being involved in some tragedy.

"May I have these, Lee Chow?" I asked.

"I bring them for you," he said. "Maybe you know something from them after a while about big boss man. You look, find out, then you tell Lee Chow."

"I surely will tell you everything I can find out, Lee Chow," I said earnestly. "Is there anything more you wish to tell me?"

"No more," he replied. "Lee Chow wait."

"I obeyed him and drew from the envelope the torn fragments of a postal card of the same fashion as those which Hugh Grantland had sent me for so long. From his coat Lee Chow produced a thick manila envelope and laid it down upon the tree trunk."

"Put pieces on this," he directed, and I did so, fitting the torn edges together. My pulses accelerated as I saw that my name and address were written on the card in the fashion made so familiar to me by Hugh Grantland's faithful adherence to his self-imposed schedule of mailing cards to me.

Something else was on the card, also—a word followed by the initials 'N. Y.' which had been so slashed across by an ink-dipped pen that I could discern but a few letters of it. It was pitifully clear what had happened. Hugh Grantland had written his usual postal card to me, giving me his next change of address. Then ry, but with your father and mother dead, I think a home of your own would be the best place for you, provided you marry for love and not for the home. A girl of any pluck, and certainly a high school graduate, can earn her own living. So don't marry because you are lazy and lacking in enterprise, but because you have found the man to whom you can be kind, faithful and loving, and a worthy wife.

Mary Jane: No, please do not give a boy liberties with your person. Any book store can supply you with a volume on etiquette.

Lee Chow think maybe big boss man come back sometime, find out talkie talk, kick Lee Chow out. But Lee Chow got very sore heart, and at last he go in library and sit down before big boss man's desk and think hard. Shall he open desk and see if he can find something maybe tell him where to look for big boss man?"

wait now for your goodbye." He stepped back and made a low obeisance, and clutching the envelope with its precious fragments in my hands I hurried back to the Durkee house, bent upon getting hold of a powerful reading glass which I knew Alfred owned, in the hope that I might decipher the name of the town which Hugh Grantland had written. First making sure that Mother Graham still slept, I made my way to the library where I knew the glass was kept. As I opened the door I saw Alfred himself seated at the table, his head in his hands, his whole attitude expressive of the deepest despondency.

Mrs. J. M. Krug is at Paxton Memorial hospital, where she is suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Our Prices Are Always Right BUY-RITE STORES

Wed. and Thurs. Specials

Grapefruit Celebrated "Atwood" 3 for 29c Large, Juicy and Sweet

Oranges Medium Size, Sweet and Juicy. Doz. 39c

Apples "ROME BEAUTY"—Splendid for Baking and Eating 10 lbs., 89c

Potatoes "IDAHO RUSSETS"—Splendid for Baking and Boiling (uniform size), per 15-lb. Original Box, 75c

Carrots Delicious When Served Creamed, 5 lbs., 23c

Rutabagas Genuine Canadian 5 lbs. for 17c

Butter FAMOUS NISHNA VALLEY Lb. 42c Fresh Daily (guaranteed)

Flour SELECTED TEA TABLE—Made from Selected Turkey Wheat, Money-Back Guarantee with every sack, 24-lb. sack, $1.25; 48-lb. sack, $2.25

Bran PILLSBURY'S BEST HEALTH Splendid for Muffins, etc. Large pkg. 16c

Sorghum Pure Old-Fashioned Country 100% pure, full quart can, 35c

White Syrup 5-lb. pail 33¢ 10-lb. pail 63c

Corn Syrup 5-lb. pail 30¢ 10-lb. pail 55c The Kind With a Delicious Case Flavor

PURITAN MALT Highest Quality 60c The richest, strongest malt extract made. Gives best results. A perfect blend of choicest barley and freshest hops. For can.

Soaps Patrolene, 10 large bars, 85¢ Omaha Family, 10 large bars, 45¢ Electric Spark, 10 large bars, 35¢ Haskins' Hardwater Castile, 6 bars, 47¢

Soap Chips WHITE LILY, 24 Lbs. 83c Splendid for Washing Clothes and Kitchen Use

Laundry Supplies Lint, 3 pkgs for, 25¢ Parson's Ammonia, 2 25c bottles for, 43¢ Argo Glass Starch, 5 lb., 43¢

Honey PURE STRAINED—5-lb. pail, Full Combs, per sack, 25¢ 93c

Candy CHRISTMAS MIXED 30c and 35c Value to Close Out, lb., 19c

Plums HUNT'S SUPREME BRAND—IN HEAVY SYRUP Size No. 2 1/2 Egg Plums, can, 29c Size 2 1/2 Green Gage, can, 29c

Raisins Extra Fancy Seedless, Not-A-Seed Brand, 2 1-lb. pkgs., 27c

Mincemeat Quart Jars of Moist Kamo Brand, 45c

Pickles Sweet Split (new stock) Quart Jars, 43c

Olives Select Large Queen, Meaty, Fine Flavor, Quart jars, 49c

Fruits HUNT'S SUPREME BRAND—IN HEAVY SYRUP Number 1 Apricots, sliced, 3 cans for, 69¢ Tall Cans Peaches, sliced, 3 cans for, 69¢ White Cherries, 3 cans for, 69¢

Dried Fruits Apricots, large selects, 2 lbs. for, 59¢ Peaches, large selects, 2 lbs. for, 45¢

Vegetables Old Fashioned Hominy, 3 large cans, 35¢ Standard Sugar Corn, 3 large cans, 39¢ Pumpkin (solid pack) 3 large cans, 47¢ Grand Canon Tomatoes (solid pack) 3 large cans, 69¢

PHONE ANY OF THESE BUY-RITE STORES NORTH SIDE GEO. I. ROSS KE-0402 ARMAND PETERSEN WE-0114 JEPSSEN BROS. JA-1840 SOUTH SIDE LYNAM & BRENNAN AT-8096 F. L. BIRD MA-0728 SKUPA & SWOBODA MA-1066 E. KARSCH CO. AT-7701 WEST SIDE PROS GROCERY JA-9770 ERNEST BUFFETT WA-0761 J. D. CREW & SON HA-0936 GILES BROTHERS WA-5600 WILKE & MITCHELL HA-0284 HANEGAN & CO. HA-0780 A. E. SNYGG & SON WA-0570 Certified Members of the Better Grocers' Bureau 1-15-25

CARBON COAL advertisement. The Most Heat for the Least Money. Furnace Size $8.00 Per Ton. UPDIKE LUMBER & COAL CO. See Samples of This Coal at Hayden's Grocery Department.

Thomas Kilpatrick & Co. Women's Coats advertisement. IN ALL SALES THERE IS A ZENITH—A CLIMAX—A CRISIS—Choice of the House and We Specialize in Fine Coats $98. Garments Priced Up to $295.

Women's Shoes advertisement. Our Sale Started With the Promise to Sell Every Pair of 1924 Models. Wednesday Every Remaining Pair of $10, $12, $13.50 and $15. $5 the Pair.

White Sale Items advertisement. 72-inch Bleached Irish Damask, beautiful designs and Napkins to match, $1.95. 72x90 all linen Belgium Cloths made from Flanders Field Flax, each, $6.95.

Butter-Nut Coffee advertisement. The Coffee Delicious. Our Prices Are Always Right.