

Jelf Is the Real Happy Tribe Fairy

TAS HAPPY ever told you about the quaint little fairy named "Jelf?" He is really a very, VERY old fairy, although he looks so young and gay. п Fairy Godmother says he was born the first day that a little child remembered to be kind to others, and Fairy Godmother KNOWS, for whenever she wants a new fairy horn she just wayes her Magic Wand and one comes to life, perhaps dancing to earth on the tip of a moonbeam or on long ray of sunshine. She says you never can tell where fairies make their home; that it is nearly always in some out-of-the-way place.

Long ago Fairy Godmother told Happy she had given Jelf to her an that she had told him to be always around watching his chance to help the children who had learned to think about others. That is the reason she made Jelf the special Happy Tribe Fairy. No one has every really seen Jelf, not even Happy. He nearly always comes around very early and straightens her desk, and when the room is full of children brought here just by the wish to be kind to others, then you may be sure JeW is never far away.

Fairy Godmother says that Jelf is so tiny that he could easily be carrie in a man's pocket and, in truth, he has made some wonderful trips that way. Perhaps we can get him to tell about them some day. It must be a strange thing to take a ride in a pocket.

It seems that Jelf knows how to make people laugh. It is not becaus he looks funny or says such funny things, because no one does see him or hear him speak, but whenever he is near, the children begin to smile and big folks feel like laughing, although they can scarcely tell why.

Fairy Godmother told Happy to send Jelf wherever she wished, and s whenever a home is sad and needs a bit of sunshine. Jelf goes there and every one grows cheerful. When every one in your home is bright and jolly, you may know that Jelf is with you. Perhaps he has found his way into your house on a big log of wood that he knows will soon be burning brightly in your fireplace.

Jelf never, NEVER goes where there is any one who is cross of ugly. He can't stand it. So if you feel cross, you must not expect Jelf to visit you When you are doing something to make another glad, then is when he love to be near you. You may not always know he is beside you, but h will be.

Fairies travel such long, long ways in such a short, SHORT time. Per haps Jelf will be here with us today and tomorrow over among the children whom we are helping. He never gets tired, for, of course, he wouldn't be a fairy if he did. Jelf made great plans to help us Christmas. He has been top of the other and pasts together. around in all sorts of homes, and so, you see, he was able to find for us the homes needing Christmas cheer.

"Do you suppose we shall ever see him?" One of the Go-Hawks asked this cross the center of the two middle or clump. The two captains go out question the other day after we had been talking about fairies and es Jalf

It seemed to the audience that the mother was not so much concerned with her fainting daughter as she was with the pleading of the wouldbe lover to remain. All this time the grandmother sat serenely at her wheel, and the curtain fell with Prudence clinging to Jack and begging him to forgive her "foolish daughter."

Donald's appearance on the stage in the second scene was the cause of wild cheering.
