

Coolidge Praises Nation's Press in Speech to Editors

Pathway to Success Lies in Avoidance of Propaganda, President Declares in Talk.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The pathway to success in American journalism lies in the avoidance of propaganda, the separation of news policies from business motives and continued appeal to the idealism of the American people, President Coolidge declared tonight in speaking to the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

A warning for the most part reference to commercial problems, Mr. Coolidge "talked shop" with the editors, speaking from the viewpoint of one not in the newspaper business as was his predecessor, but as one who has watched the growth and development of the American press.

Mr. Coolidge made it plain that he entertains no fears as to the influence of what is sometimes called a "capitalist press."

"Some people feel concerned about the commercialism of the press," he said. "They note that great newspapers are great business enterprises entering large profits and controlled by men of wealth. So they fear that in such control the press may tend to support the private interests of those who own the papers, rather than the general interest of the whole people."

"I am convinced, however, that the real test is not whether the newspapers are controlled by men of wealth, but whether they are sincerely trying to serve the public interest. There will be little occasion to worry about who owns a newspaper so long as its attitude on public questions are such as to promote the general welfare."

President Coolidge said that he admires a newspaper which is a true instrument of the public interest, and that he admires a newspaper which is a true instrument of the public interest, and that he admires a newspaper which is a true instrument of the public interest.

Agency of Propaganda. "The public press under an autocracy is necessarily a true agency of propaganda," he continued.

"I do not believe that the American press is a true instrument of the public interest, and that I do not believe that the American press is a true instrument of the public interest."

"I do not believe that the American press is a true instrument of the public interest, and that I do not believe that the American press is a true instrument of the public interest."

"I do not believe that the American press is a true instrument of the public interest, and that I do not believe that the American press is a true instrument of the public interest."

"I do not believe that the American press is a true instrument of the public interest, and that I do not believe that the American press is a true instrument of the public interest."

Desire to 'Show Off' for Girl Wife Turns Youth, 23, into Mail Robber

New York, Jan. 17.—A boy's desire to "show off" for his "girl" made a mail robber out of Jimmy Cadoo, 23, son of a rich Long Island lumberman, and a social favorite, according to a confession he made today to the federal authorities.

Only, in this case, the "girl" happens to be Jimmy's bride of five months.

Jimmy, traced by his automobile, was arrested early today in his Lynbrook (L. I.) home, confessed he was the desperado who boarded a Long Island train at Bellmore, L. I., Tuesday night, and helped himself to a pouch of registered mail. Tonight he is in jail, held in $75,000 bail, and anxious to take his medicine.

Asked if he had an attorney, young Cadoo said: "No, and I don't want any. I plead guilty."

When the story of the train robbery first "broke" the newspapers told about the coolness and finesse of the robber.

"I used to have that run in the postal service," he is quoted, "and I often thought what a cinch it would be for a man to get away with the money sent by registered mail. I knew it would be easy—the mail clerks work alone on the cars, and I had done it myself. I had been out to work—my wife is about to become a mother—I simply had to have money. I wanted my wife to believe I had 'made good' in a business way."

Jimmy's first knowledge that there was any possibility that he could be the heir of Lord Lawrence O'Keefe II, came late Thursday, when Howard Henley, Toronto attorney, climbed to the top of the plant and announced to O'Keefe that the manorial house of the earldom was waiting for him in Ballygongall county, Ireland.

The estate the now Lord O'Keefe III inherited was created for Lord Lawrence I, early in the 19th century. Lord Lawrence I left the estate to his own son, Larry O'Keefe's father.

Lord Lawrence O'Keefe II, after an arduous suit, married Larry's mother, who died at the birth of Larry, Lord Lawrence II, unable to look the son that had caused the death of his wife in the face, sent the boy with distant cousins to St. Louis, Mo., where the fact of his birth as Lord Lawrence III was concealed from him. He grew up as a son of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Keefe in St. Louis, became a butcher by trade, and finally an expert hogsticker.

Today he is back at the old job, starting on the second million hog, killed during 14 months. "My father's cellar is the thing that intrigues me most," the new lord said today. "I visited the manorial house after I was wounded in France under the Canadian flag, and I know what that cellar is like."

Packer Employe Police Seeking Cattle Salesman

Ancestral Cellar Chief Asset of Estate, in View of Heir to $250,000.

South Omaha detectives are searching for a person described to them as a "cattle confidence man" by John Wedber, Nebraska farmer and cattle raiser, who complained that the man had brought several loads of his cattle to the South Omaha market, but had failed to pay for them.

Wedber said he met the man, who gave his name as Sam Rips, in Omaha some time ago. Rips, he said, declared he was an expert cattle salesman and a little later came to the Wedber farm and offered to sell some of the cattle for Wedber.

Rips brought two loads of cattle to the Omaha market, sold them and paid Wedber, according to the report. He took two more loads of the Wedber cattle and failed to pay for them after they were sold, Wedber told police. Detectives Keane and Killian have been working on the case and reported Saturday night they had recovered seven loads of cattle which they believe were brought to the market by the mysterious cattle salesman.

Wedber had an appointment with the man Saturday, and became suspicious when he failed to keep it.

Down at Iowa city state university, students nearly swamped the health department with demands for vaccination. One young man with a sense of humor put a sign on his fraternity house reading, "House to be under quarantine by 6 o'clock."

Apparently the burglars had been hurried by the early return of the Croxsons for a $500 worth of neckties, wrapped up in paper, was found lying on the floor.

Mr. Croxson believes the burglars left by the back door as he entered the front one.

Two others granted citizenship were Katie Ann Anderson and Hans Peterson, both of Fremont. Four other persons to be heard were postponed. One was continued for further study, one failed to appear and two lacked sufficient witnesses. One other was denied final papers because of a claim for exemption from the army during the world war.

Little Sioux Bank Given Cash Found by Bandit Car. Missouri Valley, Ia., Jan. 17.—The Little Sioux bank robbery of last fall was echoed in a court order from Judge Dewell at Logan directing Sheriff Millman to turn over to the bank all of the money found hidden near the abandoned car near Tabor, Ia., the morning after the robbery. There was over $700 in currency and silver.

Harry Raymond, alias "Pat Cadillac" is serving 15 years at Fort Madison for complicity in the crime. Attorney E. J. O'Grady, who defended Raymond, got the car, which had been purchased at Salt Lake and was registered in Raymond's name.

Child Victim of Motor Accident Wins Long Fight

Lystra Thomsen, 8, Recovers Use of Muscles on Left Side of Body After Operation.

Home and mother! Little Lystra Thomsen, 8, has both today after bravely fighting for her life since December 29 against injuries received in an automobile accident.

The little girl who lay unconscious for 10 days, partially paralyzed, in Lord Lister hospital was taken home Saturday afternoon to recover the strength which her gallant battle against death sapped from her little body.

Suffer Fractured Skull. Lystra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Thomsen, 3426 Lincoln boulevard. While running around the rear end of a street car while with her grandmother the evening of December 29, she was run down by an automobile, her skull fractured, and a piece of bone was pressed against her brain, leaving her unconscious, speechless and paralyzed, on the left side, for nearly two weeks.

An operation removed a section of the skull and relieved the pressure. Slowly she returned to consciousness, slowly she recovered her speech, still more slowly she is regaining the use of her left arm and leg.

Her first words were the name of her baby sister whom she saw in the hospital. Her first act of full consciousness was to shed tears when told how her mother had fallen and fractured her arm while her little sister lay in the hospital. And the first movement of her left hand was to squeeze lovingly the big, protecting hand of her father.

For days she couldn't move her left arm except with the help of her mother, said Lystra's father. "Now she can move both her left arm and leg left a little."

"She can talk, now, too, but speaks very slowly."

Yes, the doctor told us we might take her home Saturday, but she must be kept extremely quiet and her room must remain shaded, to rest her nerves and not to hinder her returning strength.

Doesn't Know of Accident. "The sight of home cheered her remarkably and we believe the change will give her returning vitality more quickly."

No, she hasn't been told yet how she was hurt. She has inferred from her mother that she fell in the street and hurt her head. She doesn't know how near we were to losing her. But she's been mighty brave, and we are heartened by the great improvement in her condition."

Poison Plot Seen in Death of Carley at Miami; Conflicting Details Given

Friends Believe Man Died in Gambling House Rather Than at Depot; Cash and Diamonds Missing From Body; Coroner pitched forward to the floor. He died two hours later. A coroner's jury will have a report on the autopsy Tuesday.

A young woman whose name the police refused to give out, later appeared at headquarters and said she had several thousand dollars and a number of diamonds belonging to Carley. She said she removed them when she saw that he was ill and added that she and Carley were engaged.

Funeral arrangements will be made after the arrival of his daughter Margaret from Omaha, pitched forward to the floor. He died two hours later. A coroner's jury will have a report on the autopsy Tuesday.

Over $6,000 in cash and three diamond rings, supposed to be on his person, are missing.

Omaha Saturday night said they did not believe that "Gabby" died in the depot but was either killed or died in a gambling house. Jess Aylesworth and Bert Muth, Omahas, were connected with Carley in Miami.

Miami police believe "Gabby" was a victim of a poison plot. "Gabby" was well known here, having earned the title as one of the best fast dealers in the country.

According to well known Omahas, Carley went broke here four years ago and left.

He is reputed to have won a large sum of money on the race track and then, a year ago, went to Miami when the big boom started, and opened a gambling house, according to his brother, Ralph Carley, owner of a restaurant at Twenty-sixth and O streets.

Mrs. James Carley, his mother, lives at 4516 Florence boulevard, along with the wife and daughter of the dead man.

Margaret Carley, 27, his daughter, left Omaha Saturday night for Miami to bring the body here for burial.

An autopsy over the body has been ordered by the coroner at Miami.
