Each step we took we sank into it as though walking on a Chinese carpet.

"Except for the few people who mine cryolite the only men who ever visit Ivigut, Greenland, are explorers on their way to the Arctic ocean. The place consists of an Eskimo village and a mining camp. So far as I know it is the only place in the world large enough to make mining worth while. Cryolite is a scaly mineral made up of sodium and aluminum and each spring the Danish firm that has the mining concession sends up about three hundred husky men and supplies them with living quarters, clothing and food, tobacco and drink.

"Next day while waiting for the weather to clear between Greenland and Labrador several of us went trout fishing. This was the first opportunity I had had of using the rod and line presented to me by the Post-Intelligencer before we left Seattle. The fishing was marvellous. I initiated my Seattle rod by catching 40 trout in less than two hours. But the sailors from the Milwaukee decided that hook and line were too slow, so they went up stream several miles and then waded back, driving the fish as they came. They had put a net in a pool and when they pulled it up they got nearly 500 trout at the final haul, most of them weighing from one to five pounds.

"When we were down at Frederiksdal the Danish officers on the coast guard cutter the Island Falk had asked us to tell them the dates on which we were born. We told them, but had no idea what their object was. The cutter came in to Ivigut on the 28th, and as that happened to be 'Les' Arnold's birthday the captain of the Island Falk passed the word along to the miners on shore and a big party was given that night in honor of 'Les.' These Danes who are marooned in Greenland take advantage of every opportunity to have a party. If a boat comes out they do the same. A birthday also provides them with ample excuse to throw a party.

Always Dodging Ice.

"We were staying on board the cruiser and on our way ashore to attend the soiree our launch had to dodge in and out among the icebergs. The previous night one of the launches collided with a berg on the way back from Ivigut and the occupants got to the Milwaukee just about two minutes before she sank.

"The night of the 29th we again attended movies on the deck of the cutter. The sky was perfectly clear and in addition to the show on the screen we had a marvelous exhibition of the northern lights. They flashed and crackled across the sky in a weird, uncanny way. To attend an American movie by the light of the aurora borealis was surely a unique experience. And as we sat there on the deck of the cutter, with icebergs drifting all around us, and with the peaks of Greenland's icy mountains lit up by the flashing northern lights, it seemed hard to realize that only a few weeks had passed since we sat underneath a tropic moon in a lagoon in far off Indo-China.

"During the night of the 26th fair weather reports came by wireless from Labrador, so we were up at 4 and ready to leave at 6 o'clock. But I had a bit of trouble with the Chicago and it was 8:30 before we finally got away from Ivigut. Five miles out over Davis strait we ran into a fog bank, but knowing the weather was clear in Labrador we figured that the fog would not last long. In 15 minutes we were through it and had perfect weather most of the way.

been running short and for three days they had had nothing to eat but codfish, which they had been obliged to catch themselves. To kill time they had put a brass plate on a wall and inscribed thereon that the American world fliers had first landed on the shores of North America on August 31. This had been done several weeks before we came in and they had simply guessed at August 31, as the day they thought we ought to get in. How they happened to hit it just right is a mystery to me.

Scribner Couple Married 50 Years

Covered Wagon Days Recalled at Low Golden Wedding Celebration.

Fremont, Jan. 28.—Covered wagon days were recalled at the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Low at Scribner, where 50 friends and relatives gathered to pay tribute to the sturdy pioneers of Dodge county. Of unusual interest is the fact that the couple pledged their troth in Ridgely township of Dodge county 50 years ago and have lived in the same vicinity since that date.

Mrs. Low was Miss Frederica Groetke, daughter of William Groetke. At the wedding they were attended by Miss Augusto Draemen and Louis Groetke, who also were in attendance Monday. Miss Draemel is now Mrs. Herman Wegner of Scribner.

Egg Shipments Heavy to New York Despite Embargo on Poultry

Wymore, Jan. 28.—Although there is still an embargo on shipments of live poultry from Nebraska to New York markets, and conditional arrangements exist to other markets on chickens, eggs are being shipped through here from Nebraska points to New York and Chicago and eastern markets daily. New Yorkers seem to like the eggs, even if the chickens that lay them are not good to eat in their judgment. An average of two carloads, or 30,000 dozen eggs, pass through here daily. The price of eggs at local markets today is 45 cents. Two weeks ago they were as high as 60 cents per dozen here.

BUCKLEY HELD ON FRAUD CHARGE

Falls City, Jan. 28.—Joseph L. Buckley, former president of the defunct Advance Brick company of Humboldt, recently extradited from Chicago, was bound over to the district court on $2,000 bonds on the charge of violating the Nebraska blue sky law in connection with the sale of about $40,000 worth of stock. A dozen witnesses, most of them from Humboldt, appeared at the hearing. J. D. Craig, chief of the state bureau of securities, was the first witness and was followed by John A. Beard of Humboldt, who lost about $20,000 in the venture.
