

Head of Detroit University Raps Dry Law Flouting Drunkenness and Impurity Go Hand in Hand, Rev. J. P. McNichols Tells Creighton Students.

Rev. John P. McNichols, president of Detroit university, believes that the sins of drunkenness and impurity are closely associated. He made this statement Saturday morning during a talk to more than 1,000 students of Creighton university at the annual retreat.

Father McNichols asserted that he is not a "crank" on the subject of prohibition, but he insisted that to be an efficient and successful business man, it is necessary to have a clear mind, not clouded by liquor.

"It seems to be a joke to violate the prohibition law," he said. "Everywhere you go you are offered liquor. Someone everywhere has some 'prewar' stuff, but, young man, if you value your future, don't tolerate booze. When you're with a group of young men, the first one who suggests bringing booze into the party, for your own sake and for his, hit him between the eyes."

"You meet liquor at every turn of the road. Some of it is bad and some of it is worse. Some of it blinds you physically. All of it blinds you mentally. Are you willing to expose your future just for whiskey?"

He stated that a man can be just as happy and have as many friends without drinking intoxicants. He asserted that the man who lets liquor alone wins respect even from those who drink.

"The same young man's danger, from a purity standpoint, is not the woman of the streets, it is the young girl, often highly decent, who does not realize that what she says and does to excite the passions of men," the speaker said.

He warned against "netting parties," and advised the students not to be "lounge lizards." He urged personal purity for men, stating that a man should give himself to his wife as spotless and undefiled as she gives herself to him.

GREECE, TURKEY EMBERS FANNED

Athens, Jan. 31.—Greece and Turkey, perennial enemies, threatened to reach for their scabbards again today.

Greece was aroused in the extreme by the expulsion from Constantinople of the head of the Greek church in that city. Church bells tolled all over Greece today in token of national mourning over what is considered an affront to the church and to the country.

Former Minister of War Pangalos in a fiery address declared: "Only by armed force can Turkey be brought to reason."

A meeting of the cabinet has been called to consider what steps shall be taken in retaliation.

Kiwanis Club Is Friend of Under-Privileged Child; Places Human, Spiritual Above Material Values of Life

Omaha Chapter Organized in 1918; Now Has 135 Members; Meets Every Friday Noon.

This is the second of a series of articles about the service clubs of Omaha. Last Sunday the activities of the Rotary club were described; next Sunday the article will be on the Concord club.

Kiwanis International is the friend of the underprivileged child. The work carried on by this great organization, with its 22,000 members, finds no more loyal advocates and helpers than the members of the Kiwanis club of Omaha, which was chartered in January, 1919. Kiwanis International is 10 years old.

On the back of every Kiwanis membership card the following ideals of Kiwanis are inscribed: "To give primacy to the human and spiritual, rather than to the material values of life."

"To encourage the daily living of the golden rule in all human relationships."

"To promote the adoption and the application of higher social, business and professional standards."

"To develop, by precept and example, a more intelligent, aggressive and serviceable citizenship."

"To provide, through Kiwanis clubs, a practical means to form enduring friendships, to render altruistic service and to build better communities."

"To co-operate in creating and maintaining that sound public opinion and high idealism which make possible the increase of righteousness, justice, patriotism and good will."

Joseph Barker First President. During the preliminary stages of organizing the Omaha club in 1918, Joseph Barker was president. Following his term, the other presidents have been D. E. Bradshaw, H. R. Bowen, H. W. Buff, E. W. White, M. E. Thomas and Max I. Walker.

The officers at the present time are E. J. Phelps, president; H. M. Baidridge, first vice president; H. P. Patrick, second vice president; R. B. Wallace, district trustee; S. H. Yates, treasurer, and Lester D. Ladd, secretary.

The directors are H. M. Binder, B. F. Marti, G. A. Marsh, F. C. Rudisell, H. W. Thomas, H. A. Weston and O. A. Youngerman.

Crossman International Trustee. Raymond M. Crossman of Omaha was elected at the last convention of Kiwanis International and International trustee, a high honor and one that carries with it considerable responsibility. In that capacity he serves on the important finance committee of the international. Victor M. Johnson, of Rockford, Ill., is president of the international, and Fred C. W. Parker of Chicago secretary.

The Kiwanis club of Omaha aids the work of the Hattie B. Munroe home for convalescing crippled children at Benson. This year all of the 135 members contributed to the support of the home, which is for the care of children after they have received medical or surgical attention at one of the Omaha hospitals.

During 1924 the club maintained three beds there, at an approximate cost of $100 a bed, and thus from 20 to 25 children were helped through their convalescence by the Kiwanians.

Sponsors Boy Scout. The club has sponsored a troop of Boy Scouts in a neighborhood where previously it had been almost impossible to carry on any boys' work. Equipment has been freely given to this troop, which has a member of Kiwanis as scoutmaster.

One thoughtful and greatly appreciated work the Kiwanis club has done unostentatiously was in giving automobile rides frequently during last summer and fall to the inmates at various homes for aged persons. This will be repeated again this year. At other times the club gives free moving picture entertainments at these institutions. At the time of the Ak-Sar-Ben electrical parade last September the children of the Hattie B. Munroe home and the Riverview Detention home were brought to the place of business of one of the members so they could see the parade. While waiting, a motion picture film was exhibited.

Good Roads Boosters. Seventy per cent of the Omaha Kiwanians are members of the Nebraska Good Roads' association and are boosting for the program to "pull Nebraska out of the mud."

The Kiwanis club of Omaha meets at Hotel Rome every Friday noon and after luncheon a program is always given which is varied, interesting and instructive. Good speakers, free moving picture entertainments and good music, good entertainers—these feature the regular programs of the club.

Rediscovering OMAHA

By T. W. McCULLOUGH. Omaha always has been rated a good show town. Redick's opera house, and the Academy of Music served well in their time. When James E. Boyd erected his theater building at the corner of Fifteenth and Farnam, back in 1881, it seemed as if the goal had been attained. Only one theater in the west compared with it, for comfort and elegance. That was the world-famous "Taber Grand," at Denver. Erected by Horace A. W. Taber in the heyday of his wealth.

To Omaha came the great, to appear at the Boyd opera house. Here we saw Booth, Barrett, McCullough, Keene, Salvini the Elder and Salvini the Younger, John T. Raymond, Barney Macaulay, Roland Reed, Frank Daniels, the Bostonians, Joseph Jefferson, "Billy" Florence, Stuart Robson, Crane, Sothern when he was playing "Lord Chumley" and the like, John Drew in his youthful vigor, Maurice Barrymore, Ada Rehan, Maurine Mathers, Marie Walworth, Fannie Janauschek, Helena Modjeska (Countess Bozenta), the statuettee Rhea, Rosa Coghlan, Rose Eyetings and Maude Adams. Here Sarah Bernhardt played, and made the mistake of the "chicks" who came to see her, forgetting that someone in Omaha might understand French!

Fay Templeton sang. Here Fay Templeton sang, a vision of girlish loveliness, in "The Mascotte" and "Olivette." Here Emma Abbott displayed her charms of voice and person in "Norma" and other remembered but since neglected roles she made her own. Patti sang there, and Nilsson, Nordica, Scalchi and others of those renowned song birds. Sarasate fiddled there, and Eugene d'Albert played the piano, and talked broken German, pretending he had forgotten his mother tongue, drilled into him in childhood days at Boston. Memories cluster thick around the fine old theater, whose glory only was partially dimmed when the New Boyd was reared at Seventeenth and Harney. No performance ever given at the old Boyd is so cherished in memory as was the presentation of "Hamlet," with Julius Smith Cooley in the name part.

It was in the fall of 1889. Omaha was just emerging from the dust of a shattered boom. The community was dignified, and heeded one that had just won a baseball pennant, and was looking ahead to greater things.

Moving Spirits. James C. Crawford, who had been city editor and later a special writer on the Herald, and "Jack" Monaghan, brother of "Andy" who run the "Drum," were the moving spirits in the momentous undertaking. They were aided by some others of the newspaper fraternity of the day. Cooley, who had but lately been dubbed "Judge" by the gang, was then a man-about-town, probably the most advertised of any. His name was in one or the other of the papers every day. Crawford and Monaghan, who was an actor, conceived the idea of presenting Cooley in "Hamlet."

Once the notion was born it took root and thrived, and the fruit it bore gave Omaha such a laugh as it never had before or since.

A company was formed, mainly made up of actors who were spending the summer in Omaha. It will not be necessary to recall their names. To had almost a tragic end. Along in the middle of the play, at the "Volloquy," I think it was, Cooley's big heart broke. A more pathetic figure never drooped in the sable suit of mourning worn by the Prince of Denmark. He gave up acting all at once, and became a man suddenly brought face to face with his failure. Turning to the audience he could not see for tears, he addressed it in broken sentences. The gist of his remarks were that it might be fun for the crowd, but it was terrible torture to him. He could go no further. The curtain was run down on one of the saddest scenes I ever witnessed at a theater.

And the audience felt the same. While an attempt was made to finish the play, the joy had gone from all. Cooley had triumphed even in his defeat.

OMAHAN BEFORE SENATE HEARING. Washington, Jan. 31.—Action on the Capper bill limiting packers' operation of private stockyards is expected next week, final testimony having been taken today by the senate agriculture committee.

G. N. Dager, representing the Department of Agriculture, presented statistics to show that Armour & Co. received approximately as many hogs at their own yards as they purchase at public government-controlled markets.

J. S. Boyd, Kansas City, representative of the National Livestock exchange, said this method of purchasing reduced competition and kept producers from obtaining top prices. E. L. Burke, Omaha stockman, denied that packers' yards affected prices on the public market.

Better endure the tortures of the damned than be caught in the tentacles of that octopus, morphine.
